National Corn Growers Recognize Farmer For Outstanding Yield

An experiment to see how "the better acres could do" in a tract of land turned out to be an award winner for Gerald Hoffer, left, with his wife, Connie. "It was planted right along with the rest (of the acres), fertilized right along with the rest, and there wasn't anything done different to that field," he said. Photo by Andy Andrews.

FONTANA (Lebanon Co.) — An experiment to see how "the better acres could do" in a tract of land turned out to be an award winner for Gerald Hoffer, who was awarded a first-place finish in a yield contest sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA).

Hoffer, a cash cropper who raises dairy heifers on Con-Ger Farms, said he was interested in seeing what one of the farm's better acres could do. "It was planted right along with the rest (of the acres), fertilized right along with the rest, and there wasn't anything done different to that field," he said.

Hoffer used 4472, a Funk G brand hybrid from Ciba-Geigy, to produce a yield of 174.92 bushels per acre. The seed was planted April 25 last year on a 1-¾ plot near his residence.

Hoffer, who operates a corn, soybean, wheat, and oat cash-cropping operation on 650 acres (585 rented and 630 tillable), said this was the first year he planted that variety.

This is the number

"My salesman is my neighbor right back here," said Hoffer. "I told him I'd like to enter one of his corns in the National Corn Growers Contest. And he said this is the number that can do it for you."

Although the entry called for an "irrigation class," Hoffer said that he did not have to irrigate to enter the class. "I entered the class and Mother Nature did the irrigating this year. 'Cause, hey, it never showed any stress whatsoever. It seemed like it rained every time it needed it and it just punched some corn out," he said.

Animal Issues Featured At Holstein Convention

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

READING (Berks Co.)—Under the panel discussion title, "Holstein Breeders-Supporters of Animal Welfare," four prominent agricultural leaders brought their knowledge and opinions to the start of the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention this week at the Sheraton Inn.

The panelists are Dr. Stanley Curtis, department head, dairy and animal science, Penn State University; Dr. Mabel Owen, director, division of animal health, Boston, Mass.; Dr. Thomas Hartsock, extension livestock specialist, University of Maryland; and Dr. Linda Detwiller, senior staff veterinarian, USDA, Beltsville, Md. Walter Wurster, Chester Co. agent, was the moderator.

Curtis said that in case we haven't believed the animal welfare issue is a real one, the national corn growers, at their convention this week, scheduled their leading debate on the subject of the care and treatment of livestock. Because the livestock industry uses a lot of corn, the corn growers said they need to be proactive on the animal welfare/rights issue.

"When the corn growers make the subject their lead seminar, we can agree the subject of animal

LF Writer's Extensive Research Needed To Find Pasteurized Eggs

LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — To reduce the threat of salmonella poisoning, health officials warn, "Don't use raw eggs."

But what do you do if you like lemon meringue pies, chocolate mousse, and home-made ice cream made with raw eggs?

Pasteurized eggs are the answer. They are safe and easy to use. Real eggs, not egg substitutes, are used to make the pasteurized product.

Many of our readers have asked where pasteurized eggs can be purchased. After a futile search in local supermarkets, numerous calls to egg companies, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and to the organizations that are telling us to use pasteurized eggs in place of raw eggs, I have found that pasteurized eggs are not available in grocery stores although the eggs are sold to hospitals and restaurants.

Hog Farmers Should Stop Health Problems At The Source

ANDY ANDREWS

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — A pump agitator clearing out a manure pit suddenly stops. A 21-year-old farmer's son climbs down the shaft into the pit and is suddenly overcome with the fumes, falling into the tank, unconscous.

The boy's 23-year-old brother goes down after him and encounters the vapors, falling unconscious to the ground.

The 56-year-old father of the two sons also goes down into the pits, and also falls to the ground, unconscious.

A hired hand sees what's happening, but there is no way he's going to climb in. Instead, he calls the emergency rescue service. After they arrive, the rescue team brings all three men out — who die before arriving at the hospital.

Classic example

"This is a classic example of hydrogen sulfide poisoning," said Kelly Donham, DVM, Iowa State U. professor of preventive medicine and environmental health. Donham spoke to about 120 farmers attending the Keystone Pork Congress on Wednesday.

Donham spoke about human health risks in swine facilities, and how hog producers can counteract those risks to workers and animals.

The above tragedy occurred in a town in north Iowa in 1985. A farmer and his family were killed by toxic hydrogen sulfide poisoning when they were trying to phase out a building and were agitating a manure pit — a dangerous thing to do, according to Donham.

"We measured the levels of hydrogen sulfide just by starting up the agitation of that pump and it was like 1,500 to 2,000 parts per million (ppm)," he said. That high dose is lethal to humans.

"It came down to the last three questions," said Ken Winebark, Lebanon County agent, third from left, after the Lebanon County team won the Keystone Pork Bowl Wednesday. Tied through two rounds, the Lebanon team won during the "toss-up phase," beating Chester Co. 185-155. From left, Jon Harnish, Amy Harnish, Winebark, Dan Atkins, and John Risser.

Hazardous gas

"Hydrogen sulfide is an extremely hazardous gas," he said. According to the researcher, the substance is similar to hydrogen cyanide used in gas chambers during World War II. "It causes you to stop breathing almost immediately."

During the past six years, Donham said the state of Iowa lost 19 people to hydrogen sulfide poisoning. And not only were humans affected (in addition to five dairy farmers last summer in Michigan and three from Ohio), but hogs are also lost — about $1 million worth every year in Iowa.

Working with hydrogen sulfide is dangerous. When farmers agitate liquid manure, "it's like playing with gasoline," he said. "If you do it right, you're going to be okay. But there are problems if you don't do it right."

Farmers should stay out of the building during agitation and watch the animals to see if they show a reaction. If they do, stop, because the gas will stop "almost immediately," he said.

Delmarva Broiler Fryer

Feb. 20, 1991

Movement of ready to cook whole fryers was mixed as reports of discounting disrupted normal operations. Offerings were generally sufficient for current needs. Less than trucklot asking prices were generally unchanged at 49-62 cents. Live supplies were irregular forcing some plants to reduced schedules. Average live weights were usually in a full range. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Trade sentiment was mostly steady.

National Egg Market

Feb. 20, 1991

Prices were higher in the Midwest, unchanged to higher in the Northeast, and unchanged elsewhere. The market tone was steady to firm Cartoned and loose egg demand was fair to occasionally good. Wholesale packer and distributor inquiry was generally active for the limited and confidently held offerings. Primary inquiry was for graded and ungraded heavy eggs. Floor stocks for regular business were about adequate. Breakers provided mostly moderate demand for shell eggs, and prices were generally higher. Live hen supplies were adequate for the light to moderate demand under a barely steady to steady market tone.

New York Eggs

Feb. 20, 1991

Prices were higher. Trade sentiment was steady to firm. Retail demand was mixed from light to fairly good, best where features were a factor. Inter- dealer inquiry was fairly active for the very limited offerings, and current negotiated trades were at premiums. Floor stocks were about adequate. The New Jersey inventory was 12% above last Monday's level, and the New York inventory was 8% above last week.

"2852 alfalfa stands up to everything."

"I've been using 2852 for four years," says Clyde Kreider of Millersville, Pa., "and it takes dry weather and wet weather equally well.
"In fact, two years ago when we had a great deal of wet weather it stood right through it when other alfalfas were going down."

Big on Protein

Funk 2852 features good lower leaf stay-green for improved forage quality.
"It's a real good looking alfalfa with leafy, fine stems," adds Kreider "Tests have been good on haylage, and the protein content is up there, too."

Bigger on Yields

A fast-starting alfalfa, 2852 produces big yields thanks to its excellent regrowth. In fact, Kreider's field yielded a record 8.8 tons in the 1988 Pa. Forage & Grassland Council trials.
"2852 will yield with anything out there," offers Kreider. "If we had taken a fifth cutting in 1988 it would have topped 10 tons."

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY

Best of all, 2852 is backed by CIBA-GEIGY research. That's why you can count on it for unmatched yields, outstanding disease resistance and superior forage quality.
Find out for yourself why 2852 can stand up to everything. Talk to your local Hoffman Seed sales representative today!

The LEGEND Continues...

Multi-leaf LEGEND alfalfa boosts tonnage and quality.

When LEGEND was introduced as the first multi-leaf alfalfa on the market, it was the biggest breakthrough in forage production in 30 years.

Today, LEGEND continues to defy the old tradition of 3 leaflet alfalfa with the new standard of 4 to 9 leaflets per leaf, bringing you higher tonnage yields and improved forage quality.

- LEGEND yields 121% of Vernal
- Relative Feed Value (RFV) for LEGEND averages 3% higher than other top varieties.
- LEGEND scores 24 points out of a possible 25 on the Wisconsin disease resistance rating.
- Winter-hardiness for LEGEND is exceptional.
- LEGEND's added value is a conservative $29 per acre per year more than other top varieties and possibly as high as $40.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

FEB. 25-MAR. 3, 1991

Full Snow Moon, Feb. 28.

Feb 25, 1836, Samuel Colt obtains a patent for his revolving barrel pistol, the "six shooter" Feb 27, 1883, Oscar Hammerstein of New York City patents the first practical cigar-rolling machine Feb 28, 1827, the nation's first commercial passenger and freight railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio, is chartered March 1, 1872, Congress authorizes the first national park, Yellowstone National Park It is not the knowing that is difficult, but the doing

Ask the Old Farmer: Pieces of wood are beginning to chip off my old driftwood lamps I don't want to paint them, but I do want to preserve them Any suggestions? C F, S C

If the wood is unfinished now, try a mixture of two parts boiled linseed oil to one part turpentine This will soak into the wood and help to preserve it, although it will change the color slightly Repeat the application in six months

Home Hints: Use an emery board to smooth out a small nick in the edge of a glass

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: A cold wave closes this short month, with snow in the southern sections Seasonable weather greets the new month, with light snow here and there Greater New York-New Jersey: After a brief, sunny beginning, a cold wave settles in, bringing more snow Milder, with rain, heavy in the north, to start March Middle Atlantic Coastal: A sunny and mild beginning abruptly ends as a cold wave and snow complete the month March's entrance is lamblike — mild with light rain Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: A cold wave ends the month with rain and snow March fares much better with warm, sunny skies and just a few showers

Drink Milk It Does A Body Good

Did you hear this? According to the Medical Tribune News Service, a pint of milk a day may lower the risk of heart attack. This from a new British study.

Once considered forbidden for people on low-fat diets, milk may actually lower the risk of heart disease. A 10-year study of 5,000 British men between the ages of 45 and 59 found that only one percent of men who drank at least a pint of whole milk a day suffered heart attacks. In contrast, 10 percent of the non-milk drinkers in the study had heart attacks, said lead researcher Dr. Peter Elwood of the Medical Research Council's epidemiology unit at Llandough Hospital in Penarth, South Glamorgan, Wales.

Milk may contain an ingredient that has a cholesterol-lowering effect, said Ann Fehily, a nutritionist who worked on the study.

The results of the study are scheduled to be published in the March issue of the American Heart Association's journal. According to the association, as many as 1.5 million Americans have heart attacks each year, resulting in 500,000 deaths.

The results of this study run counter to earlier studies, but certainly confirm what the dairy industry has been saying all along. Drink milk! It does a body good.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Keep Good Pesticide Records

The arrival of March means the beginning of a new growing season and warmer weather. And, the use of various spray materials and chemicals will be a common practice. They're all intended for a special purpose, if used correctly. In order to protect the producer from the danger of having excess residues in food and feed crops, it is very important that accurate records be kept. This is true with crops as well as with livestock. In case the producer is charged with excess residues, these written records may save your business. Don't rely on your memory or oral statements; they will not stand up at a hearing. Be sure records list the name of the material and the rate and date of application.

To Use Caution Near Manure Pits

No doubt many barns, liquid manure pits and poultry houses will be cleaned out in the near future. I would caution you to be very careful because of the poisonous and inflammable gases that develop in these pits. Some cleaning methods require the agitation of the liquid manure in the pit before pumping starts. Good ventilation is needed over the pits at this time, otherwise animals, poultry and people can be suffocated. Also, smoking should be prohibited and all flames kept away. In addition, anyone going down into the manure pits, after being emptied, should wear a gas mask. Don't take chances on the presence of toxic gases.

To Use Heat Lamps Safely

A portable heat lamp is a useful item around the home and farm during cold weather. The lamp's infra-red rays can be used to keep pigs from freezing, relax aching muscles, or warm crankcases of tractors and automobiles or trucks so they'll start easier. The heat lamp can also be used in brooders for small pigs or lambs, or baby chicks or at your workbench to give you quick heat.

But, I'd like to add a word of caution. A heat lamp can be dangerous because the lamp's rays can easily burn you, the same as a sunburn.

Also, if you are using the lamp continuously for a long period, use a porcelain socket. Most plastic sockets will not be able to stand the heat. Another thing ... in a brooding area, use a wire or chain to support the lamp. Don't hang it by its cord; the cord was designed to carry the current and not the weight. Remember, a heat lamp can come in handy around the farm or home in cold weather. But handle it with care.

To Apply Manure

This is the season of the year that a lot of manure is applied in preparation for corn planting. We need to be concerned with proper application of liquid and manure in such a way as to minimize odors and avoid pollution complaints.

Application should be made from mid-morning to mid-afternoon to allow maximum odor dispersion and manure drying before the calm, nighttime hours when neighbors are home from work. Fields for disposal should be downwind, rather than upwind from neighbors, if possible.

Whenever possible the manure should be plowed under or disked into the soil as soon as possible after spreading. This practice not only minimizes odors but also preserves nutrients and reduces potential for surface run-off that causes water contamination.

Farm Forum

Editor,

In regards to Keith Eckle's letter of Jan. 19, 1991, I still have some serious concerns regarding PFA and Farm Bureau policies along with Major COOPS and farm economists on dairy issues. Also our college economists. Mr. Eckle says they listen to membership on policy that is adopted at local, state and national level by majority votes. 1. I would ask Mr. Eckle what percentage of members actually vote in these elections. 2. I would ask what percentage of dairymen actually vote on dairy policy at both state and

WHEN ARE YOU FREE?

February 24, 1991

Background Scripture:
I Corinthians 8:1-11:1
Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 10:1-13

A woman noticed her neighbor's little girl hurrying down the sidewalk. "I'm running away from home!" the little neighbor announced as she sped by. A few minutes later the little girl passed again with the same announcement. As the little girl was making her third pass around the block, the neighbor lady asked why, if she was running away, she continued to circle the block? "—'cause I'm not allowed to cross the street!" snapped her little neighbor.

All freedom is relative, isn't it? Our freedom is never total; there are always limitations within which we must exercise our freedom. Some times, the more we seek to exercise our freedom, the more we are captivated. If I want to smoke a pack of cigarettes per day, I have the freedom to choose to do so. But, if I smoke a pack a day, am I really consciously choosing, or is a habit doing it for me?

WAS JESUS FREE?

Actually, wonderful as freedom is, it is not the highest of all goods. Love is higher than freedom. In a sense, we might even say that love is the fulfillment of freedom. When Jesus was crucified on a cross in Jerusalem, he appeared to be the prisoner — a man bereft of freedom. From the vantage point of time, however, we see that Jesus's acceptance of the cross was not imposed upon him, but a freely-chosen act of love. Even as he hung on the cross, Jesus was the only free man at Golgotha.

So freedom is not always what it appears to be. That is why I have always loved George Matheson's hymn:

Make me a captive, Lord, And then I shall be free.

Sometimes it is only when we recognize a loyalty higher than to our own desire that we can really appreciate freedom. Back in those days when educators were in conflict over the amount of freedom students should be granted in the educative process, I remember a cartoon in which a school boy raises his hand and asks the teacher, "Do we have to do just what we want to do again today?"

A STUMBLING BLOCK

It is against this kind of background that we have to put Paul's teachings concerning freedom in I Corinthians 8 through 11:1. Apparently Paul had received an inquiry from the Corinthian church about food offered to idols. Much of the meat that was sold in the market place came from animals that were sacrificed in pagan temples. Some Christians saw nothing wrong in buying and eating this meat because they didn't think of it as being "food offered to idols." Others, however, had some scruples about this meat, fearing that because of its source it made them participants in the pagan rites of sacrifice.

Paul agreed that there was nothing necessarily wrong about Christians eating this meat unless: "Only take care lest this liberty of your somehow become a stumbling block to the weak" (8:9). Paul himself concludes: "Therefore, if food is a cause of my brother's falling, I will never eat meat lest I cause my brother to fail" (8:13).

In other words, Paul believed that, although we are free to do pretty much what we please, there are times when, if in love we practice self-restraint, we experience the highest possible level of freedom. Only then, it would seem, are we truly free.

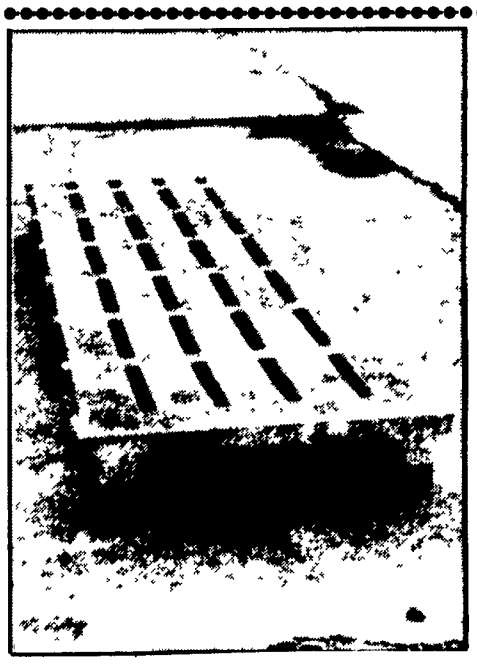
HOG "WAFFLE SLATS"
7/8", 1" or 1-1/4" Slot

2' or 4' Waffle Hog Slats can be custom made to any length that is suitable for your barn.

2' Waffle Hog Slats only weigh 25 LBS per sq. ft. so you can carry into existing barn.



Large percentage of opening keeps slats clean and dry.

Waffle slats are uniform and easy to install

N.E. Chicken Parts

Feb. 20, 1991

Trucklot buying interest was light and unaggressive. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were uneven but at least adequate and pricing was highly irregular. Breasts with ribs and particularly line run breasts were adequate to barely adequate and in closest balance of all parts. Leg items were adequate to fully adequate and in heaviest supply at several points on leg quarters. Wings were a bit more available and adequate overall.

TODAY'S NEGOTIATED SALES AS OF 11:30 A.M., PRICES PAID PER POUND ON ICE PACKED PARTS DELIVERED IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES:

Marketing Workshops Benefit Grain Producers

ROBERT E. LEIBY AND DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Cooperative Extension Office

Grain producers will learn about the marketing skills they need to prosper in the 1990s at upcoming workshops in southeastern Pennsylvania.

A grain marketing workshop is being offered on Wednesday, March 6 at the Days Inn Conference Center near Allentown, and repeated on Thursday, March 7, at the Cochranville Fire Hall in Chester County.

Both sessions begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude by 4 p.m. Cost for the first attender from each farm or family is $15. Additional employees or family members from that unit will be charged $10 each.

The purpose of these meetings is to help farmers make better deals in the marketplace with selling tools such as put and call options, the futures market, and forward contracts. These tools help reduce the farmers' risks in buying and selling grains and increase overall profits.

The workshop presenters are specialists with University of Maryland Cooperative Extension who have conducted similar sessions throughout their state. They also developed a grain marketing handbook in 1989, which will be given to each farm operator attending the workshops.

What is unique about the Maryland approach is the concept of voluntary grain marketing clubs through which farmers trade on their own and learn more about the complex issues in grain pricing and trading. There are eight such clubs in Maryland.

"Farmers will get better returns in grain when they make use of all the choices available to them in the marketplace," said Jeff Patton, extension marketing agent in Allentown, and workshop co-organizer. "Those farmers just south of us often get several cents more per bushel for corn, soybeans, and wheat just by setting a minimum price. Dairy, beef, swine, and poultry producers can also save on feed costs by setting price ceilings. They do this by using put and call options."

Another feature of the workshop will be the demonstration of commodity price reports, including an up-to-the-minute service using a small satellite dish.

The seminars, a joint effort between Cooperative Extension of Penn State and the University of Maryland, are also supported by Keystone Farm Credit, F.M. Brown's Sons, and Data Transmission Network.

For a registration flyer or more information, contact Jeff Patton at the Lehigh County Extension Office, (215) 391-9840 or Alan Strock at the Chester County Extension Office, (215) 696-3500.

Checklist: Setting Goals For A New Year

RICHARD LITTLE
Montour Co. Dairy Agent

DANVILLE (Montour Co.) — With the beginning of a new year, it is a good time to take a look at your herd management to see where you are and where you would like to be at the end of the year.

With predictions of lower milk prices during 1991, any small improvement in management that you can make will mean money in your pocket.

What are some of the things you should lool at? What are reasonable goals to shoot for during the coming year?

Let's take a look.

✔ Feed cost is the single largest out-of-pocket expense in producing milk.

What is the true cost of feed to produce milk in your herd?

The state average, reported on DHIA is $5.40. What is your cost? Can you do a better job of using lower cost feeds and still meet the needs of your cows?

✔ A reasonable goal is to strive for a grain-to-milk ratio of 1:3. Current DHIA records in this area show an average of 1:2.5. This indicates that some cows are being fed more grain than they probably need. This is probably true in late lactation, in some herds.

✔ No more than 10 percent of your cows should be fat and no more than 10 percent should be thin. Use the cow condition scoring system to see how your herd is doing. Cows in proper condition when freshening do better throughout the lactation, with fewer health problems.

✔ Are you cows eating a minimum of 2 percent of their bodyweight in forage dry matter? That is the equivalent of 2 pounds of hay per 100 pounds of cow. A reasonable goal is to increase this to 2.3 percent.

✔ A reasonable goal is to stay below 200,000 average somatic cell count for the year.

If you are running higher, milking procedures, milking system and dry cow treatment should be looked at carefully. If you are maintaining an average of 140,000 of below, you are doing an excellent job.

✔ A reasonable goal for calving interval is 12.5 months. A longer calving interval would suggest that first services may be delayed or heat detection may be lacking.

✔ If your cows are open more than 100 days on average, you need to take a long look at your breeding program.

✔ Days open to first service should average no more than 70 to 75 days. To accomplish this, you will need to start breeding at 60 days after freshening. Do you have pre-breeding checks by your vet? Are your cows ready to breed at 60 days?

✔ You should have no more than 10 percent of your cows open for 150 days or more. A higher percentage would indicate poor heat detection, weak heats or poor breeding practices.

✔ No more than 15 percent of your herd should be bred three times or more. A greater percentage suggests severe breeding problems.

✔ Services per conception is a true measure of your breeding efficiency. You should average no more than 1.7 breeding services for each confirmed pregnancy.

✔ The amount of milk sold per man will be different for different types of operations due to the difference in labor requirements.

Reasonable goals are 500,000 pounds per man in a stall barn and 600,000 pounds per man in a free stall.

If you are buying all you feed and just milking cows, a reasonable goal is 850,000 pounds per man.

How much are you selling?

✔ Did you increase your milk sold per cow by 200 pounds over the last year? This is a reasonable goal to strive for.

✔ The percent of cows in milk is another measure of breeding efficiency and culling rate. You should have at least 86 percent of your cows milking at all time to get efficient milk production.

✔ At least 30 percent of your herd should be first lactation heifers. A lower percentage would indicate a lower-than-normal culling rate. First calf heifers are the main way to improve your herd.

✔ If you have lost more than five percent of your calves during the past 12 months, it would suggest that you need to review your calf starting and calf raising techinques. This should start with where the cow freshens, and if the calf gets colostrum soon after birth.

✔ You should be freshening heifers at 22 to 24 months of age to start recovering your investment in raising that replacement. This also gives more opportunity for culling for improvement.

✔ To freshen heifers at an early age, they must be bred at 13 to 15 months of age. This requires that a good start and a good heifer-raising program must be followed to get heifers to breeding size by this age.

This includes adequate housing, good parasite control and proper vaccinations as well as an adequate and well-balanced ration.

✔ Both winter and summer ventilation must be adequate.

✔ As long as you have cows you will have some health problems. How much is too much?

For milk fever, fewer than five percent of your herd should have milk fever in a year.

Ketosis — a reasonable goal is less than four percent of the herd with ketosis during a year.

Off feed — you should have fewer than five percent of the herd affected by off-feed problems during any 12-month period.

These health problems indicate some problem with the balance of the ration, including not only the nutrients, but the form of the feed being fed.

✔ Do you have an organized vaccination program for your herd? Doe is include both young stock and adult cows? Work with your vet to develop a program to include IBR, BVD, P13 and LEPTO.

✔ How often do you balance your dairy rations? Who does it?

Does it include protein, energy, calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, Vitamins A, D and E, selenium and other trace minerals as well as dry matter intake from forages?

Your ration should be reviewed on a regular basis by a competent feed person, and espcially when you are changing forages to any great extent.

✔ One of the critical areas in herd management is to have an adequate supply of good forage. How much do you need?

Calculate on the basis of 2½ pounds of hay equivalent per 100 pounds of cow or heifer (for example, a 50-cow herd with 50 young stock would use 2,250 pounds of forage a day, or 410 tons per year.).

✔ Check out your cropping plans. Can you raise enough forage for your herd?

Must you buy some?

Make some arrangements now for the next 12 months.

If it sounds like a lot of things to think about, you're right. And there is more. Dairy herd management is not easy.

NEWVILLE (Cumberland Co.) — Richard Mains of Newville recently was named Master Farmer by Cooperative Extension. Three to four hundred nominations are received for this award each year. Only six are winners. Nominations come from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey. Richard attributes his success as a dairy farmer to family teamwork, being resourceful on the farm, and the new techniques he's tried in the past twenty years.

"Mains Acres" includes 700 plus acres of land in 6 farms. The efficient farm has been in the family for 140 years! Richard started as a partner with his dad in 1956 From 1956 until 1972 he was in this partnership with his dad and brother Francis. When the father died, the two brothers divided property and each went their own way. The Mains family has the policy of selling the farm to interested family members before ever going outside to a public auction.

Today his wife, son, and 2 part-time people all help to run the farm. He credits his wife, Shelva, for doing a good job with the records and helping to milk. His son Richard Jr. runs the dairy herd and is the farm specialist with artificial breeding. They've had better conception rates since he's doing the artificial breeding. Teamwork is Richard's advice for young families. That's what's helped him build a strong dairy farm. He also feels it important to have the cattle and equipment paid for first before investing in real estate.

Early in the business Richard and Shelva aspired to produce 1 million pounds of milk a year. They've over doubled their goal; 2.24 million pounds of milk are produced a year! The milk is shipped to Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Associations.

He uses as much of his own feed as he can to be self-sufficient. Soybean, corn and alfalfa are all grown on the farm, processed through the wagon with scales, and fed to the 140 Holsteins cows. He diversifies slightly from the dairy farm by planting extra acreage in corn and contracting it to parties in Lancaster County. Wheat is also grown as a cash crop and also used as straw. Occasionally 20-30 yearling heifers are bought when extra silage is available. The yearlings are fed, bred, and sold at 6-9 months.

In the fifties Richard spent 1 1/2 years at Penn State in a two year program which he thinks has really paid off. From that experience he decided to use a milking parlor rather than a stall barn and to purchase a diesel farm tractor He's been happy with both decisions. Another technique he strongly believes in is no-till. Half of the property is no-till. It's saved on labor and has helped to conserve soil on the slopes.

In his "free" time, he's very active with farmer groups. He's presently the State Director for Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA). This includes 9 districts and takes about 30 days of his time a year. He's recently just joined the Dairy Promotion Board. Two of his values which he'd like to share are to promote his own products and to educate animal rights groups that farm animals aren't mistreated.

Richard & Shelvy Mains

Ag Security Areas are another topic very important to him. He's helped to form them in West Pennsboro and in Penn townships. His goal is to help to plan them for each township in his districts.

Richard has also been an active church board member for the past 13 years. He's a member of the Session for his Presbyterian Church.

When asked what he would like to see in the future, he responded that he's turned down offers to sell farmland near Route 81. He hopes to be able to continue to do so. Rather than have the land developed, he'd like to offer his son and son-in-law the chance to farm the 700 plus acres. A father giving his sons the chance his father gave him.

Animal Rights Issues Featured At Holstein Convention

welfare has arrived on the national scene," Curtis said.

Unfortunatly, agriculture is not always without problems. "We have continuing evidence there is illegal use of drugs and growth promotants in the veal industry," Curtis said. "And the transportation and marketing of downer cows is a problem. Spent cows should be sent to market before they are completly spent. They should be able to walk on the truck, walk off the truck, and walk down the alleyway.

"We must take care of our own act before it is taken care of for us," Curtis said.

The veal protection act defeated last year had seven pages. And the report was 481 pages long. A lot of questions were raised that agriculture could not answer.

While agriculture won this debate, it will not go away. Public pressure will force the enactment and inforcement of regulations on the farms.

According to Curtis, agriculture has received little time to come up with answers, but not much is being done with the kind of research needed to answer the questions posed by animal rights activists on the cognitive properties of farm animals — the "thinking, feeling, remembering" activities at the crux of the rights issue.

"In my opinion, we need to do more research on animal behavior," Curtis said. "We know almost nothing about the issues raised by the animal welfare questions. We all agree that humans and animals share biologies, but what makes sense to a growing portion of the American public is that humans not only share biologies but also biographies — histories, memories of their lives that deserve respect."

Curtis said that as many as 11 million animal activitists or about five percent of the American population may have these beliefs.

What little research that has been done indicated that at least in the case of chickens, the old saying goes — out of sight, out of mind. Animals don't dream about their memories and don't really remember unless something they are confronted with triggers a memory in their current experience.

The 1991 version of the veal calf protection act has already been introduced into the house of representatives. Instead of seven pages, it contains only two. A lot of the controversy in the previous hearings has been delcted. "They (animal welfare people) are getting slicker," Curtis said. "They have written legislation that agriculture will find difficult to talk down when it's time for a vote in the agriculture committee.

"Only if research is done will we be able to get the answers we need for these people," Curtis said.

Owen discussed the 1987 Massachusetts referendum that was defeated but took many hours of farmer's time and $750,000 to change public opinion. Owens would have been the person to enforce the act if it was approved by the state.

The Coalition to End Animal Suffering and Exploitation, an animal rights group, placed the referendum on the ballot and by using words that were carefully slanted, they tried to push through what appeared to meet everyone's desire for animal well-being.

"Because the referendum law would have needed to interact with other laws, the impact on farmers was not generally understood,"

Animal Rights Issues

Owen said. "Every building on the farm would have needed to be remodeled.

"As late as the day before the vote, polls showed the referendum would pass," Owen said. "The resulting defeat by 71 percent to 29 percent was a landslide large enough that the referendum cannot immediately be repeated. But a study group was introduced by the animal rights groups and this study is still going on."

A veal operation and several dairy farms went out of business over the pressures involved in the referendum. They just gave up.

"The ease with which changes can be made in the atmosphere for animal agriculture that can be done without the democratic process is frightening," Owen said. "The emotionally charged referendum approach is backed by misleading photographs and artwork. The eventual impact of simular battles on the farm economy and cheep food to consumers should also be considered. The real need is education."

Detwiller said the animal welfare act covers animal housing, protection from elements, seperation of incompatible species, sanitation, ventilation, feeding, watering, veterinarian care, and transportation.

"These are common sense things that farmers realize are in their best interest," Detwiller said. "We think government should be in the business of research to improve the production procedures and education. There is a lack of information on the behavioral needs of farm animals."

Hartsock put on different hats to indicate character roles of animal rights groups to stimulate discussion.

"It would be a real mistake to catalog all animal rightists in one catagory," Hartsock said. "One group believes you don't need meat and animal products to have nutritional diet. They believe you should give the same consideration to take an animal's life as you do to take a human life. They want to put farmers out of business.

"The animal protectionists think its OK to eat meat but they want animals to be well cared for."

Hartsock asked that farmers not think that everyone who is asking questions is an enemy. They want to know their food is produced in a safe manner "just like you want to know that your automobile was not built with a faulty gas tank that may explode and injure you."

In summary, Wurster said that with all the discussion, it should be noted that the panel topic was true. Holstein breeders really are supporters of animal welfare.

The convention continued through the banquet on Thursday night. The ladies program and the convention sale was held on Friday and the awards breakfast Saturday morning.

Other Holstein convention coverage can be found in this issue and is scheduled to continue next week with business meeting highlights, women's convention activities, and the sale results.

Holstein Breeders Highlight Year

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

READING (Berks Co.)— The highlight of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's year came this week at the annual convention held in the Sheraton Inn. Actually, the climax really came at the opening night banquet when two veteran Holstein breeders and a young farm couple were given the assocation's highest honors. Inducted into the Hall of Fame were Kenneth Boyer, Selinsgrove, and Robert Pegan, Cochranton.

Boyer has been involved in agriculture his entire life. He has farmed in Selinsgrove, Snyder County since 1942. He is a graduate of Selinsgrove High School and the Pennsylvania State University.

Boyer has served the Pennsylvania Holstein Association in many ways. He has served as Snyder County club director, vice president and president. He has served as a state director, executive committee and state treasurer. He has also served on a number of state committees including membership along with serving on convention planning committees.

Boyer and his wife Thelma work in partnership with their son-in-law Charles Benner and granddaughter Denise Wetzel and her husband Tim on the farm milking some 80 Registered Holsteins.

Boyer has been very active in many community and dairy related organizations. He helped organize the first Pennsylvania artificial breeding cooperative. He served on the PA Farmers Association board of directors, Union Production Credit board of directors and he has held all offices on

ABC Reports Best Year Ever

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER COUNTY — Financially and growth-wise, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative had its best year ever and continues to gain ground in striving to bring its members the best in dairy cattle genetics, according to speakers at recent annual meetings of the co-op held in various places in Lancaster County.

Members of ABC's District 4 and District 5 meet annually to review business, award production cerfiticates, elect officers and share comradery.

According to Cyde Martin director for District 4, who is stepping down after 24 years, ABC has never been in stronger shape and despite the low milk prices, should continue to provide its members top shelf services and genetics.

According to figures provided, the co-op showed a total savings and income of $643,079 for 1991 and managed to pay off a 1975 debt and still build its equity and retain earnings of $1.7 million, although cash reserves are beginning to feel the impact of increased accounty receivable.

The co-op must conduct at least 50 percent of its business with its members, but still managed to do a strong business with nonmembers.

The return of Leadman semen and top sellers such as Cletius provided strong sales.

The future goal of ABC, headquartered just east of the city of Lancaster along Rt. 283, is to continue is young sire program and culling bulls.

Members who are also on test with the state Dairy Herd Improvement Association are able to sample young bulls at no cost. The broader and more farms involved in sampling young bulls increases the probability of predicting transmitting abilities in the young bulls. It also quickens the time by which the bulls can be used with more confidence.

"The year has been the best to date," Martin said. "The budget for 1991 is a conservative one due to uncertainty of the economy.

"Among Atlantic's goals is to keep 50 percent member business. Because we must look to the future, we will continue on research and development.

Part of the 1990 profits have been put side to institute research on genetic markers for protein and milk production. We've always supported research, but this year the increase was substantial," he said.

He said a feasibility study is also continuing to determine the practicality of sharing more with Eastern, Federation, Louisana and Atlantic; looking at more updating of sire programs and seeking an increase in member control.

According to Martin, the future for ABC looks good.

"I hear a lot of negative talk, because of the milk price. But you will never go wrong with a strong bull program. You will never go wrong with a strong member ser-

Doebler's has your number

WE MATCH HYBRIDS TO YOUR NEEDS

by Bill Camerer

I'm Bill Camerer, Doebler's research director. Frost can hurt germination, reason we pick early. This field of 61X seed tested 35% moisture.

No doubt the 10 XP single crosses are Doebler's glamor corns. Top production. Healthy. Super standup.

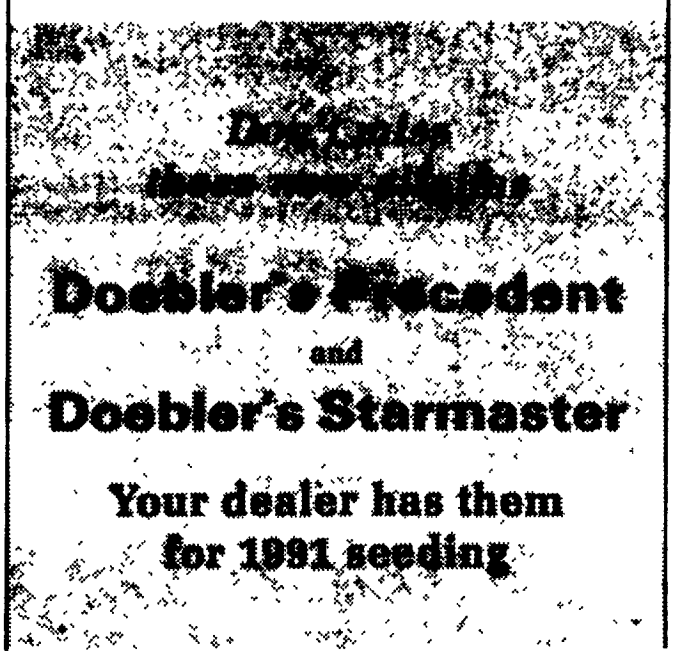
But as the guy who helped develop them, I want to make a case for our other 23 hybrids. They have earned their place on Eastern farms, too. And for good reason.

Like Doebler's 944-three way. A big, rank silage corn, it took the gold in our full season trials last year. And in all categories — tonnage, TDN and protein.

And don't overlook such old favorites as 78XA, 67X and 370A-3 way. They perform surprisingly well on thin soils. Or where fertility is on the low side.

Then there are hybrids like 75X that produce very respectable yields of grain or silage under almost any condition.

Taylor Doebler and I came up with five management scenarios the other day. Then rated our hybrids accordingly. Something to think about when buying corn.



Try these problem solvers

These are our best judgement calls based on Doebler research and farmer observations.

Corn silage — These hybrids deliver big tonnage of quality silage: 944-3 (125 days), 84XP (118 days), 75X Mod (113 days), 70X-C (112 days), 66XP (103 days), 650-3 (100 days), 59X (98 days), 45XP (92 days), 370A-3 (85 days), 29XA (81 days).

Low fertility, thin soils — Crop potential of these hybrids limited the least: 78X-A (114 days), 70X-C (112 days), 67X (108 days), 65X (101 days), 59X (98 days), 46X-A (92 days), 370A-3 (85 days).

Low population — When drought or light rainfall are factors: 84XP (118 days), 86X-A (119 days), 75X (113 days), 65X (101 days), 59X (98 days), 48X-E (87 days), 46X-A (92 days), 370A-3 (85 days).

Very high fertility — Where hybrids pushed to limit: 84XP (118 days), 86X-A (119 days), 75X (113 days), 69XP (105 days), 66XP (103 days), 59X-A (96 days), 505-3 (92 days), 45XP (92 days), 48X-E (87 days), 28XP (79 days).

vice program and you will never go wrong with a strong financial program," he said.

"It will probably go down as the best year Atlantic every had — even looking ahead — will be one of the best years.

"The co-op increase from 13- to 15-percent in technician service and the technicians have been of good quality across the board," he said.

According to Martin, of all the things that are important to a successful organization, the most important is probably the people.

"Those same people who made 1990 are going to be the same ones to pull us through 1991."

In other business, the cooperative presented production awards to its members who had herds with milk and protein averages a minimum of 10 percent above the state average. To qualify, the herds also had to have been at least 65 percent ABC sired.

Awards were presented to:

• Unit 12 — Log House Farm, Lancaster, Holsteins, 46.3 cows, 19,315 milk, 607 protein, 94 percent ABC; Rodney Denlinger, Gordonville, Holstein, 44.2 cows, 21,495 milk, 645 protein, 97.9 ABC.

• Unit 13 — Philip Horst, of Ephrata, 44.3 Holsteins, 19,330 milk, 608 protein, 85 percent ABC; Trout Spring Farm, Lancaster, Holstein, 42.9 cows, 19,153 milk, 597 protein, 66.7 ABC.

• Unit 14 — Leon Sensenig, Peach Bottom, Mixed, 68.9 cows, 18,643 milk, 608 protein, 68 percent ABC; Kreider's & Nickle, Quarryville, Holstein, 149.3 cows, 19.087 milk, 616 protein, 93.6 ABC.

• Unit 15 —.Harold and Anna Engel, Atglen, Mixed, 44.3, 15,890 milk, 517 protein, 64.6 ABC; Dale Hershey, Gap, Holstein, 40 cows, 19,261 milk, 616 protein, 72.1 ABC; Leonard Stoltzfus, Gap, Holstein, 65.6 cows, 20,079 milk, 647 protein, 100 ABC; Leroy Stoltzfus, Gap, Holstein, 39 cows, 20,869 milk, 639 protein, 100 ABC; Harry Troop, Cochranville, Holstein, 62.9 cows, 20,898 milk, 654 protein, 79.7 ABC.

• Unit 16 — Clair Good, East Earl, Holstein, 43.2 cows, 19,935 milk, 623 protein, 76.5 ABC; Harry Zimmerman Jr., East Earl, Holstein, 55.7 cows, 19,934 milk, 614 protein, 100 ABC; Delmar and Susan Weaver, New Holland, Holstein, 62.3 cows, 19,558 milk, 624 protein, 91.9 ABC; John Good, Narvon, Holstein, 53.8 cows, 19,562 milk, 624 protein, 71.2 ABC; John Zimmerman, East Earl, Holstein, 58.5 cows, 22,329 milk, 690 protein, 81 ABC.

• Unit 17 — Earl Landis, Manheim, Holstein, 56.4 cows, 19,041 milk, 602 protein, 80.7 ABC; Nevin Horning, Lititz, Hosltein, 52.2 cows, 19,443 milk, 592 protein, 100 percent ABC; Marvin Witmer, Lititz, Holstein, 63.9 cows, 19,562 milk, 613 protein, 98.5 ABC.

• Unit 18 — Meadow Vista Farm, Bainbridge, Holstein, 156.5 cows, 19,934 milk, 602 protein, 85.2 percent ABC; L. Clair Miller, Elizabethtown, Holstein, 57.7 cows, 20,017 milk, 635 protein, 79.7 ABC; Robert Brandt, Elizabethtown, Holstein, 50.7 cows, 22,837 milk, 696 protein, 87.7 ABC, Jeffrey Aungst, Elizabethtown, Holstein, 46.7 cows, 21,282 milk, 668 protein, 93.6 ABC.

Vegetable Meeting Set

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — An educational meeting for commercial vegetable growers and anyone interested will be held Wednesday, February 27 at Clara's Place/Hoss's Inn, Bedford.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. Preregistration is required by calling the Bedford County Extension Office of your local extension office. A nominal fee will be charged for lunch and registration.

The program will include: Alan MacNab, Penn State Extension plant pathology, vegetable disease identification and control; Don Daum, Penn State Extension agricultural engineering, sprayers for vegetable growers; Mike Orzolek, Penn State Extension horticulture, how to grow vegetables in wet years and integrated crop management; Pete Feretti, Penn State Extension horticulture, vegetable varieties and specialties; and Don Saber, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, pesticide update.

This regional meeting is available to vegetable growers in the area, including Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Fulton, Mifflin, Somerset, Huntingdon, and other counties.

Hoffer said that he was careful in taking soil tests and he believed that the soil pH and phosphorus and potassium levels "were pretty much in line." Again this fall, he soil tested, and was surprised that is was in line. The pH measured 6.9 and the phosphorus and potassium were "right there, up where you want it," he said.

The field used was a conventional tilled ground. "We have never done a no-till on this farm at all," he said. The farm was in continuous corn for 10 years. This was also the first year the ground was plowed in the same amount of time.

Should be plowed

"Every now and then we turn it over," he said. "I don't believe in plowing every year. It costs too much. But I think it should be plowed every now and then."

Hoffer limed the plot several years ago, and, two years ago, he applied chicken manure. The chicken manure allowed nitrogen to slowly release into the soil, and Hoffer believes that the manure itself may have helped to stabilize the pH.

"You get as much benefit out of (chicken manure) the second year as you do the first year," he said.

An important aspect to maintaining good soil fertility in Hoffer's case was knowing how to maintain the soil clay levels, also known as "red hills."

Red hills

Hoffer said, "You got to know how to work the red hills. You got to plow them in the fall or work your ground in the fall and stay off it in the spring until it's completely dried out. And you'll get along. But you work a red hill too wet, you can forget it — that's a big no-no."

Gerald Hoffer, Fontana, was awarded a first-place finish in a yield contest sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). Hoffer was presented the award in Manheim Wednesday and added it to his trophy case with several other awards for his farming operations.

Gerald Hoffer, left, operates a corn, soybean, wheat, and oat cash-cropping operation on 650 acres (585 rented and 630 tillable) in Lebanon Co. At right is his wife, Connie.

Hoffer said he has been farming the land long enough to know this is the way the land should be worked. Also, by plowing correctly, last year many of the weeds were removed easily. "It was the cleanest field I've ever seen," he said.

In addition, crop rotations helped to correct the problem with weeds. He chisel plowed the ground last fall.

Hoffer also applied anhydrous ammonia (a type of inexpensive fertilizer) before planting. At planting, he applied 100 pounds of starter fertilizer per acre.

Scouted field

During growing season, Hoffer scouted the field for pest and weed problems and used pesticides to control the problems. He allowed the corn to dry on the stalk before combining at 18½ percent moisture. "This corn stood good," he said.

Hoffer lives with his wife, Connie, and daughters Darreth, 13, and Brianne, 11, who also work on the farm. Hoffer also raises about 100 head of dairy heifers each year, except this year, because of the dropping milk prices.

"This is the first year I didn't feed heifers in the 16 years I've been farming," he said. "The main reason I did is because it didn't look like there was going to be any profit it it."

This fall, if milk prices begin to rise, Hoffer may begin raising the heifers. He buys the heifers about 400 pound up, breeds them from 6-8 months, and sells to dairy farms.

But Hoffer enjoys crop farming the most. "I wish it would pay a little better," he said. "I like working with the earth — planting the seed and watching it grow, and harvesting."

Chester Holstein Club To Meet

PARKESBURG (Chester Co.) — Chester County Holstein Club is holding a classification barn meeting on March 7 at 7:30 p.m. at Pinta Lane Farms.

The guest speaker for the evening is classifier Bob Murphy.

The meeting is at Tim Barlows' farm, located along Rt. 896, the first farm on the left, just south of the intersection with Rt. 10.

Barlows' herd has a RHA of 22,779 pounds of milk, 821 pounds of fat and a BAA of 103.2.

Of interest in the herd are some young Cleitus and Steady daughters.

In addition, there will be door prizes and refreshments.

Types of problems

In Nebraska and Iowa studies conducted by his department, they examined 50 different farm operations to see what types of problems in addition to hydrogen sulfide that hog farmers face. Many of the common problems include other gases such as carbon monoxide (CO), ammonia, carbon dioxide, and dusts which cause conditions ranging from simple eye and nose irritation to chronic organic dust toxic syndrome.

The following are some of the toxins that farmers working in hog confinement houses encounter:

• Methane. The gas is not very harmful by itself, said Donham. But at high enough levels, it can explode. High levels can seep to the tops of buildings and heaters can set it off.

• Carbon dioxide. This by itself is not a great threat, but signifies overall that other levels of toxins and gases could be high. But suffocation of humans and hogs can occur if the confinement building suffers a complete ventilation failure.

• Carbon monoxide. If a brooder heater goes bad, carbon monoxide, which is colorless and odorless, can poison. Dunham offered results of massive abortions on several farms and one case where 23 sows died when a vented heater plugged up with a birds nest. Farmers should check all ventilators regularly.

•Dust. Dust comes from two sources, animals and feed. The biggest cause of dust is from fecal material, either manure left to dry on slats or on the sides of the animal. Fecal bacteria travels in concentrations in the air and can be extremely harmful to humans. But dust from feed (particularly endotoxins from moldy material) can also produce problems in humans.

•Hydrogen sulfide. Humans can tolerate up to 5 parts per million, and hogs 10 parts per million. The dosage experienced by the north Iowa farmers was lethal.

The tolerance levels for humans and animals were described by Donham and are included on a chart (see later in this article).

Some of the conditions that are experienced by many hog farmers (up to 30 percent in confinement buildings and higher in nonconfinement areas around grain production) include:

• General irritation of mucus membranes. Almost like a chronic cold, with sinusitis.

• Other chest illnesses. These range from other colds and cold infections to pneumonia.

•Occupational asthma. (Not allergy.) It becomes difficult to breath and there may be chest pains.

• Organic dust toxic syndrome. This is a flu-like condition with a wide range of conditions, including headache, stuffiness, nausea, and aches and pains. It one case, farmers working on loading and unloading swine were struck with the condition the next day and it persisted, like a flu, for about four days.

• Chronic organic dust toxic syndrome. There is a marked increase, according to Donham, in the white blood cells in the lungs. People feel tired, out of breath, and are chronically fatigued.

Impending danger

In a Nebraska study, Donham said that signs of impending danger to a worker include a productive cough with spitting up of phlegm for more than three months out of the year; chest tightness; fatigue and dizziness; and chronic cold or sinusitis.

Also, pulmonary function decreases (the flow rates in smaller airways in the lung drop 10 percent in volume or 20 percent in flow) could signal the possibility of more serious damage in the future.

Smokers have double the risk.

To treat the problem, farmers must go to the source. Farmers should improve and maintain ventilation to suppress dust. In addition, farmers should clean the floors and keep them clean.

Daniel J. Meyer, Penn State Extension ag engineer, demonstrates the powered air helmet at a special mask display during the Keystone Pork Congress Wednesday.

Use respirator

In addition, farmers should use a respirator. But Donham cautions against relying on it solely to treat the problems.

"One of the things that I have always talked to our producers about is that respirators and dust masks are bandaids," he said. "They take care of the problem from a bandaid standpoint.

"We always try to preach that you don't use a bandaid to cure a problem. You use a respirator or a dust mask in conjunction with other things to reduce the levels in the environment," he said.

Also, not all masks are effective. A simple, one-band dust mask is useful for large dust particles. But smaller endotoxins will get through. A powered air helmet removes nearly 100 percent of all dust, but is ineffective against gases.

Damage reversible

Even if workers encounter the problems, some of the damage, especially from dust, is reversible. "If it's simple bronchitis, and if you take precautions, yes, it will reverse. But if it goes on for a long time to a condition we call chronic obstructive pulmonary disease . . . you may improve somehwat, but it will stay with you the rest of your life," he said.

"We can live and work productively in these intensive livestock houses and buildings. We just need to take the whole area of the air quality as an important part of our part of the picture," said Donham.

"Not only from the standpoint of our own health and our family's health, but also from the standpoint of animal welfare and animal productivity."

CRP Sign Up Set, Changes Made

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Sign up for the 10th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) will be held from March 4 through March 15 at county offices of the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, according to the Lebanon County ASCS director.

Deadline for receiving bids is close of business March 15.

According to Jenifer Minnich, director of the Lebanon County ASCS office, with the 1990 Farm Bill there have been some changes made to the CRP sign up.

Eligibility of land into the program has been expanded, although final eligibility must still be made by Soil Conservation Service (SCS) personnel, who also make the final recommendation as to what plants are to be grown on the land while in CRP.

In Lebanon County, efforts are being made to have SCS personnel inspect the land prior to actually making a contract and offering a bid.

Those considering CRP sign up should contact their ASCS office immediately. In Lebanon, call Minnich at 273-9321.

Under the new CRP program, there are changes in the bidding process.

In previous sign up programs, regions of the state were assigned maximum levels the government would pay to keep the land out of commercial production and into erosion control plantings.

Those bid acceptance levels were kept secret, until the sign up period was over. Bid levels during consecutive sign ups, though still unknown, were used by landowners as a guide in making new bids.

According to the USDA, no landowner should consider any previous level set for CRP payments. The process for determining bid acceptance has changed from a regional bid level to a national level.

The national level bid serves as a base for determining CRP bid-acceptance levels for each individual parcel of land. A formula now will be used to determine the amount of "environmental benefits obtained per dollar of cost to USDA's CCC."

The USDA has also cautioned owners and operators that there is increased competition for enrollment into the program.

Other new changes to the program include an expansion of the types of land that may be accepted for consideration.

According to Minnich, under the 10th CRP sign up, eligible cropland has been expanded beyond the highly erodible land classification.

She said that land established as filter strips which are 66-feet wide, capable of reducing sedimentation and run adjacent and parallel to streams may be considered. The strips, however, must have been cropped at least two years out of the last five (from 1986 through 1990).

Although SCS personnel make the final determination, the filter strips must be planted in trees, permanent shurbs, grass or forbs.

There is also a special consideration for erosion eligibility classified as scour erosion land — that which is eroded when a waterway overflows its banks and literally scours topsoil from the edges. The scour erosion must occur a minimum of once every 10 years to be eligible.

If accepted, the scour land must be planted in trees.

For counties and areas that fall within the Chesapeake watershed, an additional cropland erosion eligibility is offered to cover additonal cropland areas which affect water quality or are located in public wellhead areas, as identified by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Parcels of land that are specifically ineligible include wetlands, pasturelands, land established in trees (unless plantings were done within the past 12 months), and land that already is in such a state of vegetation so as to provide for erosion control, water quality enhancement or wildlife enhancement.

For more contact the local county ASCS office.

the Snyder County DHIA board. He is an active member of the Grange and the Salem Lutheran Church. He has held many office and committee chairs in both his church and the Grange.

Some of Boyer's other areas of service include the Red Cross, Selinsgrove School Board, Rotary and Boy Scouts. He also served as the executive director of the Pennsylvania ASCS Service from 1969-1973.

Pegan was born and raised on his Century Farm in Cochranton, Crawford County. The farm was started by his grandfather in 1846. He has devoted his entire life to the Holstein cow and the betterment of farming in Crawford County. Robert and his wife Jane have been married for 50 years. They have two children and three grandchildren. He now farms in partnership with his son Richard, milking approximately 35 head of Registered Holsteins.

Pegan is a graduate of Cochranton High School and Edinboro College. He farmed and taught school for 12 years before going into farming full time. He is a member of the State and National Holstein Associations. He has served as a director of the Crawford County Holstein Club, holding a number of leadership positions. He was also active on the County DHIA Board and a director of the Cochranton Co-op Association.

Pegan is a lifetime member of the United Methodist Church of Cochranton. He also has served on the local School Board.

Pegan was an organizer and original consignor to the Crawford County All-Breed Sale. His family is also regular consignors to a number of local and state sales as well as exporting animals to a number of countries. He and his family have shown cattle for 35 years at the Cochranton Fair and the Crawford County Fair. He was one of the first breeders in Crawford County to use artificial insemination.

The Young Holstein Breeder Award winner for 1990 is Vincent and Juliet Wagner from Myerstown in Lebanon County.

The Wagner's started farming on their own in 1976 milking 39 head of registered Holsteins with a herd average of 16,984m 621f. Today they are milking 58 head with an average of 22,539m 847f 707p. They received their first Progressive Breeder Registry Award in 1990.

They are very active members of the Lebanon County Holstein Club. Vince is serving his second year as president of the club. He has also held a number of other offices within the club. They are also active on the DHIA Board, in Northern Lebanon Young Farmers and as 4-H club leaders.

They list as some of their Holstein accomplishments receiving their first PBR Award, developed 11 excellent cows, developed four Gold Medal dams, and receiving a Dairy of Distinction Award in 1990.

Vincent and Juliet credit their children Stephanie and Christopher with helping them achieve many of their goals and allowing them to be an active progressive dairy farm family.

The Wagners, as Pennsylvania's winners, will have their applications submitted to the National Holstein Association for consideration in National Distinguished Young Holstein Breeder Contest.

The membership solicitors were scheduled to be recognized this morning. Special recognition went to Curtis Day from Cumberland County who signed up 10 new members in Cumberland County.

The following persons solicited from five to nine new members. They include: George Cashell, Franklin; John Coleman, Lancaster; Russel Wyles, Bedford; Duane Wilcox, Bradford; Paul Hartle, Centre; and Ray McMillen, Perry.

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association also recognized three clubs which have reached their membership goal for 1990-1991. Listed are the clubs and their membership chairman: Lehigh- Bruce Deitrich; Perry- Ray McMillen; Sullivan- Robert Coombs.

Twenty-four Pennsylvania Holstein members were honored with the prestigious Progressive Breeder Registry Award.

Keystone Farms, Easton, received the award for the 33rd time this year while six breeders received the award for the first time. They include: Allen & Lorraine Andrews, Gillett; Charles J. Bean, Franklin; Christ L. Stoltzfus, Honey Brook; Vincent & Juliet Wagner, Myerstown; Richard D. Wheeler, Gillett; Duane H. Wilcox, Canton.

Other PBR winners in Pennsylvania for 1990 are: 24 Years- Richard & Marilyn Packard, Troy. 19 Years- Jay & Mary Houser, Spring Mills. 11 Years- Junge Farms Inc., Robert Junge, New Tripoli. 8 Years- North View Farm, Calvin Will Family, Berlin. 5 Years- Thomas A. Boyer, York; Dale E. Hostetter, Annville.

Also, 4 Years- Dale & Dorothe Hostetter, Atglen; Smysers Richlawn Farms, Robert & Rodney Smyser, York; Alvin S. Stoltzfus, Oxford; Kenneth M. Umble, Atglen. 3 Years- Thomas W. Kelly, Tyrone; Charles & Doris Porter, Canton. 2 Years- Philip Beachy, Salisbury; Wayne A. Hall, Shippensburg; Richard R. Higley, Forksville; John & Susan A. Howard, Willow Street; Terry & Shirley A. Womer, Middleburg.

Ten Holstein Milk Promotion groups were recognized for their work during the 1990 year in milk promotion efforts. Each club received a monetary award.

Each promotion group submitted a scrapbook detailing their promotion efforts. Each scrapbook contained news articles, photographs, letters, etc. highlighting their promotional activities.

The top three scrapbooks were: Huntington County- Max & Eleanor Isenberg, chairpersons; Beaver/Lawrence- Marlene Mitcheltree, chairperson; Lebanon- Sue Werner, chairperson.

The seven other clubs and their promotion chairmen recognized at the convention were: Adams County- Scott Deputy; Centre County- Mary Ann Zimmerman; Perry County- Patti McLaughlin; Clinton County- Dee Courter; Dauphin- Doris Schaffer; Blair County- Margaret Smith; Butler County- Aileen Cudoc & Ellen Linamen.

Cambria Co. Sets Crops Meeting

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — Tuesday, February 26, 1991 is the date for the Cambria County Extension crops educational meeting. The session will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the United Methodist Church Hall, Ebensburg and continue to about 3:30 p.m.

Two agronomists from Penn State will be featured at the meeting. Greg Roth will give a talk on the environmental consequences of corn management practices (weed control, etc.) as well as producing quality corn silage. Lynn Hoffman, also from Penn State, will discuss new tillage tools and no-till grain production.

The day meeting will qualify for update pesticide credits.

The Department of Agriculture will also have a calibrating moisture meter available to measure the accuracy of farmers' moisture meters. Each person must bring their own moisture meter to be checked.

Youth Dairy Management Workshop Set

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy and Animal Science Department is sponsoring their annual Dairy Youth Management Workshop on March 22, 1991. Any high school student with strong interest in the dairy and animal sciences and who is considering a college education is invited to attend.

This year's conference focuses on several key issues of dairy farm management. Subjects included are animal rights and welfare issues, reproduction, nutrition, and genetics. Additionally, Penn State Dairy Science Club students will be available to answer questions about college and campus activities. Many "hands-on" experiences will be offered in nutrition, reproduction, and genetics lab sessions.

Deadline for registration is March 7, 1991. There is a maximum registration of sixty people. The cost for the conference is $20.00 per person. This includes lunch and dinner on Friday. Penn State has reserved a small block of rooms for Thursday and Friday nights at Hall's Motel, 1101 East College Avenue, State College (814-238-6783). To reserve one of these rooms, please call Hall's and mention that you are with the Dairy Youth Management Workshop. Since this is a particularly busy weekend in State College, make your reservations as soon as possible. For those students staying over for the Spring Judging Contest on March 23, housing with Penn State students can be arranged if Dale Olver is notified ahead of time.

This workshop offers opportunities not found in traditional classrooms and should be exciting for the participants. Please call Dale Olver at 814-863-3914 if you have any questions or need further information.

1991 DAIRY YOUTH MANAGEMENT WORKSHOP SCHEDULE

What makes Fertrell's Soil Management System superior to other programs? Just ask.

Just ask Randy Botteicher, Fertrell products distributor. According to Randy, "Tending the land naturally is safe, productive, and profitable." And that's where Fertrell's "FSMS" system comes in.

Just ask a Fertrell representative to develop a personalized "FSMS" for you. He'll analyze your soil's key elements, your crops and your growing conditions, and show you how to balance and maintain all three.

With Fertrell's all-organic fertilizers and your personalized "FSMS", you'll make yourself, your land, and Randy happy.

Reducing Losses in Hay Making

In my last column I took a hard look at the losses that can and do occur in hay and silage making. In fact, results of a recent study by Penn State Ag Engineer, Dennis Buckmaster, suggest that for a 100 cow dairy, losses that occur in making alfalfa hay can result in a decrease in farm net return of nearly $12,000 per year. "This could be interpreted to mean," Buckmaster says, "that a 10% reduction in alfalfa losses increases net return by $1,200 per year. A 10% reduction in losses is not unreasonable and a 25 to 50% reduction could be possible with modified machinery and improved storage conditions."

Hay Additives

The use of hay additives is certainly one approach to reducing losses and preserving hay quality. Hay additives include drying agents which speed the drying process in the field, and organic acids which inhibit aerobic activity in hay and permit safe storage at moisture contents greater than 20 percent. Both have been shown, when used properly, to be profitable. Yet their use has been limited.

Drying agents for hay are water based solutions that are sprayed on the legume crop at mowing to hasten the drying rate. They usually consist of potassium carbonate and/or sodium carbonate and a surfactant to help spreading. They are not corrosive and are relatively safe to handle. They act by disturbing or dissolving the waxy cuticle on the outside of the stem, allowing stems to dry at about the same rate as leaves. The process works best during second and third cutting harvests, but can improve drying rate during the first and fourth cuttings. And they are not effective on most grasses.

As with any management tool, drying agents must be used according to recommendations and with good judgment. And while the reduction in curing time depends upon drying conditions, you can expect to see reductions about as follows:

Alfalfa Cutting	Drying Time Reduction
1	0 - ½ day
2	½ - 1 day
3	½ - 2 days
4	0 - 1 day

Buckmaster's studies suggest that the consistent use of additives does improve farm net return. This, he says, is a result of increased hay quality and yield which can reduce feed costs by about $6 for each ton of hay fed.

Organic acids such as propionic acid or propionic-acetic acid blends have also paid off for the producer who uses them properly. Their effectiveness is largely dependent on the uniform application rate of active ingredient and the moisture content of the hay. Recently available buffered acid products appear to be more effective. These acids are dangerous to skin and eyes, and must be handled and stored carefully.

Today aerobic bacterial inoculants, not to be confused with anaerobic bacterial cultures, are receiving more attention and do show promise. Limited research has suggested that when applied to alfalfa hay at moisture levels of 20-25%, the aerobic bacteria allow for greater leaf retention, palatability and improved visual hay quality. But more studies are needed before their true value will be known.

But, hay making aids such as those listed above are not a substitute for other good management practices. And to sum up, here are a number of other management practices that are considered essential for good hay making under our climatic conditions:

1) Maintain your hay making machinery in good adjustment.

2) Mow forage early in the day to allow for a full day's drying.

3) Lay the crop in as wide and uniform a swath as possible to increase drying at a uniform rate.

4) Rake or ted at 40-50% moisture to increase drying rate and minimize leaf losses.

5) Bale hay at 18-20% moisture.

6) Store hay, regardless of bale type, under cover and off the ground.

In my next column I'll look at some of the recent findings to reduce losses in silage making.

Wayne County Dairy Day Set

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The 1991 Wayne County Dairy Day is to be held March 5 at the Wayne County Veterans Memorial Armory.

Jointly sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and area farm businesses and organizations, it is held each year to provide educational programs and idea sharing in order to help area dairymen become more efficient and productive.

Scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., the program features Dr. William McSweeny, agricultural economist and Dr. Richard Adams, dairy nutrition specialist, both with PSU.

In the morning, McSweeny is to discuss the advantages and disadvantages to leasing equipment. In the afternoon Adam is talk about totally mixed rations (TMR).

Other presentations include an overview of the outlook for the dairy industry, alternative management, and an overview of a grassland resources and sustainable systems project currently being undertaken within the county.

DOES THIS MAKE $$ and SENSE?
(Your profit is your income minus your expense. A $ saved is a $ earned) No argument acceptable, period.

THE $8.00 or $10.00 THAT YOU WOULD USE TO SPRAY INSECTICIDE ON ALFALFA- USE IT TO PREVENT THE SCAVENGERS.

A sign on a bumper says "Only sick people use drugs." Likewise only sick soil or crops need sprays. The Creator sends scavengers to get rid of sick crops so that livestock, your family and you don't eat them and get sick. He wants to do you a favor. But farmers put poison on the crops and expect cows and precious souls to eat both that and the unhealthy vegetation.

THERE MUST BE A BETTER WAY, AND THERE IS.

An $8.25 per acre soil bacteria spray would take the place of much fertilizer because you are helping nature make fertilizer and also release what is already in the soil. It would make the soil so healthy that in a year or two (probably first season) the crops would be so healthy that the creator would not need to send the scavengers any more to devour the crops. He rewards obedience to his natural law, as well as the moral law — Obey and live - disobey and die!

Our Nutri-Carb fertilizer is the best we know to detoxify your soil to make the crops fit to eat.

THEN YOUR WHITE SOYBEANS WOULD SELL TO NUMEROUS SOYFOOD FACTORIES FOR $12.00 PER BUSHEL.

One in Florida, one in Mass., one in W. Va. and the Japs are building one in Indiana. Grow a crop that is coming in big demand at $12.00 per bu. instead of $5.50 last year. Big difference!

Our customer's yellow beans are 46% protein and sell for $8.00 per bu. Why? because the buyer proved that Nutri-Carb grown beans are worth the difference for his cows. Would be for you too. We have that good seed to sell.

And our Nutri-Carb grown corn sells for $3.00 per bu., for the same reason. Therefore grow it this way for your livestock, or to sell at $3.00 per bushel. Or would you rather work cheap and take the embarrassment that the Creator does not bless you.

national levels.

In his second paragraph he again says the EC market is stealing US export markets in that they now export 20 million metric tons of product where before they were importing 28 million meter tons. Mr. Eckle also states wheat sells in the EC market for $6.82 per bushel compared to $2.06 for US wheat.

Doesn't it seem strange that our $2.06 wheat can't compete on the world market at this difference in price. Doesn't the US also subsidize wheat on the world market, also subsidize the wheat farmers.

In paragraph 3 Mr. Eckle states I suggested we export to the EC market. This statement is not right. What I said was, we should be able to compete on the world market at these prices. As for the EC putting farmers out of business in the US, this is a bunch of bull, what is putting farmers out of business in the US is farm policy that is out of touch with reality. And it is being backed by some of our major farm organizations who are endorsing a cheap food policy along with USDA.

As for dairymen the milk price today is deplorable and getting worse every day. Dairymen have been telling their farm organization and COOPS this for the past seven years. In late 1989 or early 1990 every farm publication you picked up to read, you had college economists, Coop. economists along with some other industry people saying dairymen had record high milk prices. Yet in fact these prices were very little higher than prices received in 1982-1983. And this is by comparing prices in farm record books from those years. And if you compare production costs for those years they have increased dramatically. James Fraher our economist for Atlantic Dairy Coop said at one of their meetings that all food prices had increased 34% since 1984 while Dairy Products increased by 28%. Yet dairymen are receiving way lower prices.

Mr. Eckle states PFA is doing everything within the system to increase dairy prices. Yet prices are going down. Perhaps it's time to change the system. Some questions for Mr. Eckle: 1. What new program would PFA and Farm Bureau support to help dairymen?; 2. Would PFA and Farm Bureau support some kind of a program to control surpluses and raise the basic milk price above the cost of production, and if not, why?

Mr. Eckle states in his letter that PFA members want the market to dictate prices not the government. Yet USDA sets prices under the Wisconsin Minnesota prices. I personally think the time has come for our farm organizations to try and improve the livelihood of the American farmers and dairymen instead of trying to lower all commodity prices to world market prices.

Leroy Rowles

Editor:

Help Food for Peace, fellow dairy farmers. Help demand our organizations work to make good use of our surplus milk products in the United States. Sell it or give it away, but get it to the hungry and poor all over the world. Ask for help from political leaders.

Help peace to prevail. Farmers will benefit and buy more machinery and help put industry back to work.

PMMB May Get Some Reprieve From Casey Cuts

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state Milk Marketing Board will get money to continue to operate, according to state Rep. Kenneth Cole, chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs.

John Pierce, of the PMMB, was not available for comment by presstime.

The announcement by Cole comes on the heels of a letter sent to Casey by PMMB Chairman J. Robert Derry and board members Leon Wilkinson and Don Lanius. The letter states reasons for why the governor should rethink his recommended cuts of state funding, including that the cuts would shut the agency down this month.

As part of a multi-million dollar hit list put out early this month by the Casey administration to attempt to prevent a billion-dollar state deficit, the PMMB was to receive a $600,000 cut which would leave it financially drained several months before the June 30 end of the state's fiscal year.

For many associated with the PMMB, the recommended cuts came as yet another in a series of attacks on the agency's state support.

As backround, in 1989, the dairy industry sought to have the PMMB's $900,000 funding from the state increased by $300,000.

The PMMB is financed from milk industry license fees and fines, and augmented by General Fund monies.

When Casey said it was impossible to increase state support, the industry offered to increase its own fees payable in order to raise additional operation funds. The understanding by most in the dairy industry was that Casey was maintain the $900,000 already committed by the state.

The increase in fees raised a little more than $300,000, but when Casey signed his 1990 balanced budget, he cut $300,000 from the state funding to the PMMB, leaving the agency where it had been, in need of funds.

Now that Casey's balanced budget is running in deficit, possibly as much as a billion dollars, he had announced total cuts of state support to the PMMB.

Also, in his recent budget proposal for 1991-92, Casey has also eliminated any state support for the PMMB.

However, in light of the agency not being able to complete is job, Casey has apparently rethought some of the elimination of state support to the PMMB, according to Rep. Cole.

The amount of state funding which is to be allowed has not been specified, but in a news release made Thursday, Rep. Cole said, "Gov. Casey's office has assured me that the governor will make sufficient funds available to prevent the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board from going out of business."

Earlier in the month, the PMMB board members fowarded a letter to Casey and the leaders of the state's legislature which outlined their problem and predicted a shutdown in February, unless the board received an executive authorization to continue.

The letter offered several reasons for the urgent need for attention:

- "The PMMB is the agency that ensures that Pennsylvania dairy farmers are paid promptly for their milk, and that dealers (providers) who purchase the milk are financially sound.
- "The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board presently administers a total of over $100,000,000 in bonds and security fund monies to guarantee that Pennsylvania dairy farmers are paid for their milk. Despite the amount of security we presently hold, the $100 million figure represents only 30 days' purchase of milk.
- "... the board must audit 81 licensed dealers in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland on a monthly basis. The PMMB audits and the board's security program are the only financial protection that ... farmers have.
- "The board has already complied with requests ... to reduce operating budget and motor fleet expenses.
- "At the present time, the funding levels of the board for operating are at a level equivalent to the 1983-84 fiscal year. This agency has not had an increase in a transfer from the General Fund for General Operations since the 1982-83 fiscal year. As a matter of fact, we are at the lowest level of funding of General Funds ever.

"The PMMB is operating at a 1983-84 ... funding level and has had a 23 percent decrease in personnel in just the last seven years. The workload in the same period of time has increased 75 percent. ... the agency cannot tighten its belt any further.

- "... further budget cuts and failure to receive the $600,000 General Fund appropriation for the current fiscal year can only mean that bonded dealers will not be audited on a regular basis and that ... dairy farmers will lose financial protection."

With the recent announcement, Cole said, "It is critical that the governor's officer, the Milk Marketing Board and the legislature work together to address ongoing problems of common concern to this vital agency. This agency is too important to the dairy industry and consumers for it to go out of business."

FFA Officers To Tour Agricultural Businesses

ALEXANDRIA, VA — The national FFA officers will travel through eight states as part of the annual FFA business and industry tour.

The six officers, accompanied by representatives of the National FFA Foundation, will meet agribusiness leaders in Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and New Jersey from Feb. 24 through Mar. 7.

"There really is no substitute for experience," said Larry Case, national FFA advisor and senior program specialist for Agriculture, Agribusiness and Natural Resources Occupations, U.S. Department of Education. "Today's agribusiness leaders are confronting a host of challenges — from the increasing competition for global markets to the harnessing of biotechnology. We are fortunate that America's top corporate leaders are eager to share their insights with FFA members."

The group will begin its tour in St. Louis by meeting with Bob Reynolds, vice president, Crop Protection Products Division, Monsanto Agricultural Company. Reynolds serves as the 1991 chairman of the National FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board.

After meeting with Reynolds, the FFA representatives will divide into three teams to visit a variety of businesses and learn more about the industry of agriculture and the economic factors affecting it.

Mark Timm, national FFA president from Fillmore, Ind., said, "The National FFA Foundation sponsors play an important role in the education of FFA members. The programs and activities they support greatly increase the 'learning by doing' spirit of agricultural education and the FFA."

"Opportunities to learn from the leaders of the business community inspire us to set higher goals and to work toward greater achievements," Timm said.

Along with Timm, the tour will include Danny Grellner, national FFA secretary from Kingfisher, Okla.; Matt Lohr, eastern region vice president from Broadway, Va.; Julie Classen, central region vice president from Ayr, Neb.; Ben Nessmith, southern region vice president from Statesboro, Ga.; and Lesa Ann King, western region vice president from Howe, Texas.

The U.S. tour follows the national officer team's return from a 10-day visit to Japan sponsored by Mitsui Grain Corporation and Mitsui & Co. Ltd. Tokyo as a special project of the National FFA Foundation. The Japanese tour provides the officers with a better understanding of international trade and its importance to American agriculture.

Regional Conference Slated On Sustainable Agriculture

COLLEGE PARK, MD. — One of the newer concepts on the U.S. farm scene is sustainable agriculture, a practice that seeks to manage fertilizer and pesticide applications in a way that permits farmers to earn a decent living while keeping the environment healthy for future generations.

To help explore this concept, the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service and Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics at the University of Maryland College Park have joined forces with a trio of environmental organizations to sponsor an all-day meeting next month on Sustainable Agriculture in the Chesapeake Bay Region.

Billed as the first-ever Mid-Atlantic area conference of its kind, the event is scheduled Feb. 28 in the Holiday Inn at Timonium, north of Baltimore off Interstate Highway 83.

Morning speakers will include Dick and Sharon Thompson of Boone, Iowa, widely publicized sustainable agriculture farmers, and William Liebhardt of Davis, Calif., a nationally recognized University of California researcher in the field of sustainable agriculture.

A mid-morning panel will explore possibilities for research and Extension programs on sustainable agriculture in the Mid-Atlantic region. Panel participants will include representatives of Penn State and the University of Maryland College Park, Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, Rodale Institute, Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service at Beltsville.

Most of the afternoon program will be devoted to breakout sessions on applying sustainable agriculture to various aspects of farming, such as fruits and vegetables, livestock, cover crops and pest control.

The day's program will conclude with a town hall meeting on the topic, "Where Are We Going From Here?" Moderator will be I. Garth Youngberg, executive director of the Institute for Alternative Agriculture, based in Greenbelt.

Program sessions will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Advance registration should be made by Feb. 22. A $20 registration fee includes printed materials, coffee breaks and lunch. Registration blanks and program brochures are available from offices of the Cooperative Extension Service throughout Maryland and the Mid-Atlantic area.

Dairy Day Includes Array Of Presentations

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The committee for the 1991 Susquehanna County Dairy Day to be held on Friday, March 15, 9:30 a.m.-3:00 p.m. at the Elk Lake High School has been announced by the Susquehanna County Cooperative Extension.

This committee has been involved with obtaining speakers and exhibitors. They will also be involved in several ways at the event, including lunch, seating, exhibitor set up, door prizes, dairy product handouts, and other items. Sincere appreciation is extended to these people.

The program at Dairy Day will include educational presentations; commercial exhibits; milk, ice cream and cheese bar; door prizes; dinner; and a report from Jody Williams Susquehanna County Dairy Princess and Misty Baker, Susquehanna County Alternate Dairy Princess.

Dairy farm people interested in attending are urged to make dinner reservations by calling the extension office at (717) 278-1158.

In 1950, a combination service and parts truck (shown on left) was a vital part of Keller Bros. operation. The truck had a workbench on one side and parts and oil on the other side. In the photo are: Lewis Leach, Leon Keller, Norman Keller, a Ford Company representative, Clarence Royer, a farmer who said he would quit if he could not buy an 8N, and Ammon Keller. The tractor to be delivered would have cost about $1100 new at the time.

Keller Open House Features Antique Tractors And Trucks

BUFFALO SPRINGS (Lebanon Co.)—When you have a birthday, you think back to the time it started. For Keller Bros. Kubota, their yearly open house yesterday and today, reminds them that Uncle Mark Keller started the business 70 years ago. In 1921 the Model T Ford truck and the Fordson tractor were just rolling into farm lanes to replace the horses.

"Those first tractors were very simple and easy for anyone to work with," said Dave Keller, salesman. "With an adjustable wrench and a screw driver you could do most anything. They were hard to start and the old timers often talk about a dad or brother who broke his arm cranking the Fordson. But they got along with them."

Then came the 8N Ford tractor commonly known as the "red belly" and usually equipped with a three point hitch and a Deerborn plow.

Since 1972 Kubota tractors fill Keller Bros.' showrooms. The compact diesel with four wheel drive finds many jobs to do around the farms, nurseries and lawns of their customers.

Keller Bros. employs about 100 people in four locations. At the open house, 600 persons are expected to visit the dealership, view 24 restored antique tractors and several old trucks and see a video about antique tractors. Keller said that over the years the business philosophy has been based on Christian principles and the desire to fill the needs of the customer.

At Home, At Work, Kelly Has Cows On Her Mind

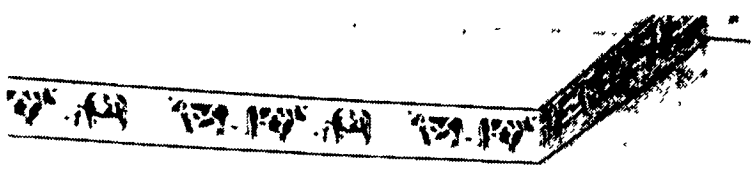
Maryland Correspondent

SHARPSBURG, Md. — Kelly Shaw Fisher has been creating counted cross stitch projects since she was a junior in high school. She was introduced to the art by a friend, who spent evenings keeping her hands busy, while Kelly felt bored. At the suggestion of her friend, she went to a local craft store and bought a small beginners kit. After completing that project, she was hooked on the craft.

Most of her counted cross stitch projects, which now number nearly one hundred, have a country or farm theme. To keep a record of her completed projects, she keeps a scrapbook of pictures of each project. Her family and friends have been the recipients of many of her creations. Now many of her evenings are filled with completing orders and consignments. The past several weeks and for the next month, Kelly will be busy getting counted cross stitch pillows ready for her first showing at the National DHIA Convention to be held at the Omni Hotel in Baltimore, on March 26.

Kelly made this cross stitch project for her husband. The Hereford cows standing in falling snow remind the Fishers of their goal to someday own an Hereford herd.



Most of Kelly's cross stitch projects, almost 100, have a country or farm theme.

Her favorite project was the one she did of the little country church where her great great-grandfather preached. She sent photos of the church to a lady in South Carolina who made it into a counted cross stitch graph and color chart pattern. After a month of hard work, she presented it to her parents for their anniversary.

The past three years Kelly won grand champion ribbions at the Washington County Ag Expo in the counted cross stitch division of crafts. This past year she was awarded Overall Needle Arts Champion with her beautiful design of animals and numbers. Kelly spends several evenings a week working on her projects. Many of them are displayed on the walls of their home. One depicting Hereford cows in falling snow hangs on the foyer wall. It was given to her husband Danny as a reminder of the promise they made to each other to some day have their own Hereford herd.

When they were married, they had Hereford cattle on a farm with another herd. When the farmer became sick and sold his herd, the Fishers found it necessary to also sell. They look forward to the day when they again can have their own herd.

Kelly and her husband Danny purchased land from Kelly's parents to build a "home in the country" on the corner of her parents farm. Her collection of Holstein cows can be found everywhere, blending in with the country decor. The dining room and kitchen have a border of Holstein Cows. Cow placemats decorate her kitchen table. A Holstein cow doll sits on a stool in the corner of the room. Even the sponge dish at her kitchen sink is a Holstein cow ceramic.

Kelly was very active in 4-H, winning championships at the state level for her public speaking. She feels the public speaking project has helped her in many areas of her life. She also carried dairy projects, winning the honor of Reserve All Maryland Junior Calf in 1979. She earned a position on the Maryland Dairy Judging Team in 1983, that placed second in the national contest in Madison. She is currently reporter for the Washington County Holstein Association to the Southeastern News.

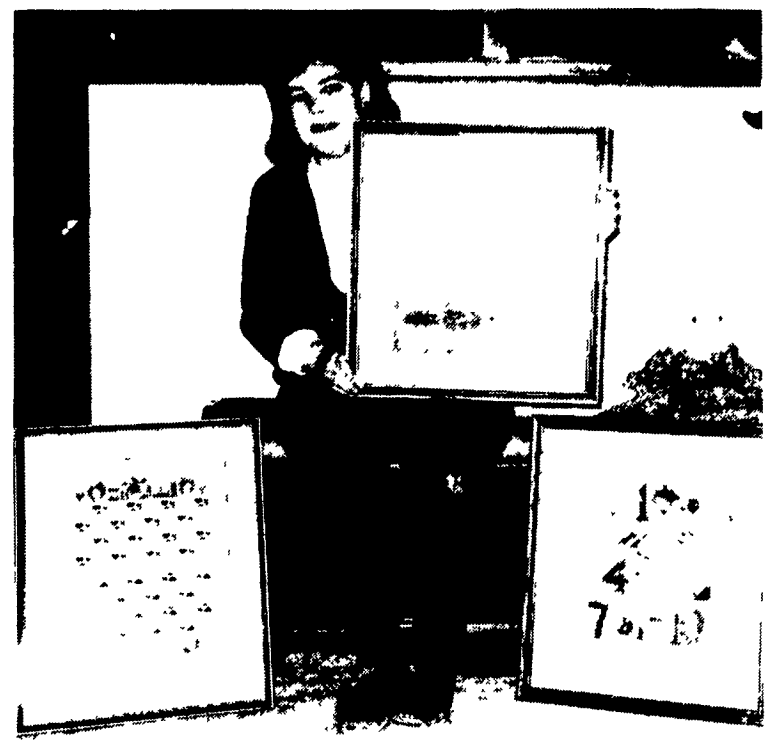
Maryland Brookside Farm, owned and operated by her parents, Tom and Judy Shaw, and her brothers Robbie and Brian, still pulls at her heart strings. She doesn't miss the milking, which was her chore every evening from the time she was thirteen, but misses the animals. When one of the family is on vacation, on the show circuit, or sick, Kelly fills in, mainly taking care of the calves.

The day Kelly graduated from high school, she was hired as a lab technician at the Mid East Milk Lab in Hagerstown, which serves as the milk lab for Maryland and West Virginia. After testing milk samples for two and one-half years, she was offered a job as secretary in the lab. She says her mother-in-law who works in another research facility helped her learn to operate the computer.

She really enjoys meeting farmers and helping them with their record keeping and lab problems. She says, "it is very satisfying and you have a great sense of achievement when you can help a farmer figure out a problem in his herd." She also has the responsibility of taking care of the DHIA production certificates for twenty counties. Kelly is grateful that she can work in an ag related facility.

Kelly welcomes your inquiries by mail at 7319 Tommytown Road, Sharpsburg, Md. 21782 or by phone at 301-432-5063.

Since she was a junior in high school, Kelly Shaw Fisher has enjoyed cross stitching. Her cross stitch pillows will be shown at the National DHIA Convention in Baltimore on March 26.



This is a picture of the little country church where Kelly's great great-grandfather had preached. Kelly had a graph and color chart made from a photo of the church.

Homestead Notes

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"How do you make cole slaw?"

Across the telephone line, my Mom patiently explained to this newlywed the combination of ingredients for the traditional family dressing for chopped, raw cabbage. After a couple of experimental makings, the concocting of cole slaw became so familiar that it was no longer necessary to think about what went into it.

The recipe for cole slaw was only one of the numerous cooking cries for help Mom got from me in those early years of our marriage. Though my cookery experience as a teenager was perhaps more extensive than some of my friends, there was still a considerable lot to learn.

Thank goodness for the telephone - and the fact that the family lived a mere five-mile, no-toll-charge call away. Between calls, visits and family recipes written off, Mom coached me through any number of both everyday basics and special-occasion, cooking ventures. And consoled a few disasters.

Her patient explanations got me through my first sticky experience with homemade noodles and potpie dough. (Today, we say "pasta."). Potato and macaroni salads. My first roasted turkey and baked ham. Candied sweet potatoes. Mom's famous homemade baked beans from dry limas. Canning tomatoes. Pie dough.

Pie dough took the longest. I just couldn't get it right at first. (Too much shortening, maybe, looking back.) Finally resorting to commercial pie dough mix, I got the handling technique down, then went on to start from scratch. Acceptability has apparently been met, because pies live a very short life span in this kitchen.

Our own daughter spent her teenage years preferring barn and field work to that of cooking or household chores. But after a couple of semesters of exploratory college-class basics, an enthusiasm for cooking and nutrition suddenly sprouted. Her degree in home economics education is now within sight.

"How do you make turkey noodle soup," came a voice on the phone recently, calling from the university town 2,500 miles away.

"Well, I don't really have a recipe," I hedged.

"That's what you always say!" she reminded me.

It's true. Just like my own Mom - and most long-time cooks - I cook most of the family's favorites without an ingredient list. A little of this, a little of that and a pinch of something else, seasonings, spices and special touches which have evolved into favorites over the years. But no more explicit instructions for someone starting out.

And while she had tried noodle soups, they "just didn't taste like yours." Few compliments can more warm a mother's heart. And I remember feeling the same frustration with some of my cooking compared to Mom's. Fact is, I STILL can't make bread stuffing "as good as Grandma's."

Fact is, I've given up trying. Grandmas are usually pretty formidable competition when it comes to family cookery traditions.

But after her repeated pleas to "write it down," I've begun this labor of love of passing to the next generation the tried, true and familiar recipes of home. Many mothers and mothers-in-law have done this far better than I, giving their daughters and daughters-in-law files or booklets of recipes of family favorites when they wed. I'm already eighteen months tardy.

So, on a recent evening, I sat with pen and lined pad to put into a little more detail this kitchen's flavorings of broths and the makings of noodle and vegetable and chicken corn soups. I've outlined the basics of making homemade potpie dough, while confessing to using commercially-prepared pot pie squares. And, no one seems to care.

Onto index cards go directions for potato and macaroni salads, the homemade baked beans, a couple favorite casseroles and "don't forget the recipe for cole slaw."

We seem to have come full circle.

Helping Children Cope With War

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — As American adults struggle to come to terms with the reality of war, they need to remember that children, too, are affected by the images and sounds conveyed by the news media — especially television — and by adult discussions overheard at home or in school.

"During this difficult time, parents should be especially sensitive to their children's questions, concerns and fears," says Dr. Billie H. Frazier, a human development specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland System.

Parents need to realize, says Frazier, that many of the emotions, anxieties and fears experienced by children are a reflection of the emotions expressed by parents, care-givers and teachers.

"Reflect on what you are communicating to your children through your adult conversations and comments," she advises. "Your tone of voice and body language can have as much impact on them as your words, which they may not understand."

To help reduce children's fears about the war, Frazier recommends that parents:

* Remain calm, speak softly and positively. Tell your children that, hopefully, the war will be short and the casualties few. Explain that you, too, are sad about the war.

* Avoid extreme positions. An attitude of doom and gloom is unhealthy, as is one that glorifies the war.

* Talk with and listen to your children. Let them express any fear, anger or confusion. Listen to their feelings, and watch their body language; younger children often express fear and confusion more readily through body language than words. Answer all questions as honestly as possible, using terms children will understand.

* Use radio, television and newspapers as educational materials to help explain what's happening. Read, watch or listen to the information together, so you can respond to any questions or concerns raised.

* Manage your own stress by trying to eliminate other stressors in your life. Too much stress at any given time is harmful to your health and is communicated to your children. One of the best things for children during these difficult times is a parent who remains calm and clear-headed.

* Maintain family rules and routines. A sense of stability is necessary for children to feel safe.

* Help your children do something constructive. Check out community and school opportunities for children to help support our troops; they can write letters and help prepare care packages. Encourage your children to tie yellow ribbons on their bicycles, scooters or wagons as a way of indicating their hope that American military personnel will return home safely.

Many children are concerned about the youngsters who are directly affected by the war — American friends whose parents are serving in the Persian Gulf and the children living there.

"In the first instance," says Frazier, "you can let them know that many school counselors are working with children of military personnel as individuals and in groups to help them cope with the situation."

Reassurances regarding children in the war zone are more difficult. Each parent will have to decide the best way to discuss this subject.

"The most important thing," says Frazier, "is to reassure your children that you are there for them and will take care of them. This will help them feel safer and more secure."

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Lent is the traditional season for meatless meals, so I always like to share some fish recipes and a few pointers on microwaving fish.

Since many of us buy fish frozen, let's start with hints for microwave defrosting. Fish thaws quickly in your microwave so be careful not to thaw it too long. I often thaw it partially in my microwave and let it stand at room temperature for about 15 minutes to finish thawing completely.

In general, thaw fish on Medium-Low (30 percent power, about 200 watts). Allow about three to five minutes per pound. Rotate and turn fish over several times during defrosting. Separate pieces as soon as possible. Remove thawed pieces when they are pliable but still feel icy cold. Let stand for a few minutes before cooking.

The National Fisheries Institute suggests an "on-off method" for thawing, which I find also works well. Microwave on Medium-Low (30 percent power, about 200 watts) for 15 to 30 seconds, then let fish rest for 15 to 30 seconds. Continue to alternate microwaving and resting times until fish is nearly thawed, but still quite cold to the touch. Allow fish to rest for about two minutes before cooking.

Now, on to cooking fish. A pound of thin fish fillets microcooks in as little as three to four minutes on High. Thicker fillets take four to five minutes. Thick fish steaks cook best on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) for eight to 12 minutes per pound.

Use a shallow dish to allow fish maximum exposure to the microwaves. Arrange fish with the thickest parts toward outside edge of cooking dish. The National Fisheries Institute suggests that the thinner parts can overlap in the dish center, separated by small pieces of plastic wrap.

Tuck skinny tail parts under or roll up thin fillets. Rolled fillets microwave more evenly and are less likely to overcook than flat fillets, which may have thin edges.

Cover fish fillets with waxed paper for a "baked effect." Waxed paper promotes even cooking but allows some steam to escape. Cover steaks with vented plastic wrap to steam.

Rotate the dish during cooking to prevent fish from overcooking in spots. Turning pieces over isn't usually necessary. But you may want to rearrange thick steaks or high-fat fish halfway through cooking or turn over any large pieces.

Slightly undercook fish. When done, fish should be barely changing from translucent to opaque or solid white. Let fish stand, still covered, for two to three minutes before testing for final doneness. When done, fish should flake when tested with a fork. It should be firm and still moist.

Microwaved fish doesn't need lots of fancy seasoning, so it can be popped right into your microwave with little preparation. On the other hand, fish goes well with many different foods and seasonings, so the variety of delicious combinations is endless.

The first recipe is a basic one that you can easily vary to suit your taste. Italian-Style Fish Steaks, adapted from a National Fisheries Institute recipe, is also a basic recipe that you can vary to suit your taste. Fish With Mexicali Rice, served with a vegetable, makes a complete meal for two.

Herbed Fish Fillets

1 pound lean boneless fish fillets*
1 tablespoon butter
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon dill weed
Paprika

If frozen, thaw fish and pat dry with paper towels. Melt butter with lemon juice and dill weed in a shallow microwavable casserole or 9-inch baking dish by microwaving (High) 20 to 30 seconds. Add fish, turning to coat pieces with butter mixture. Arrange fish with thickest, meatiest parts to outside edge of dish. Tuck thin tail parts underneath. Sprinkle fish lightly with paprika. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 3 to 5 minutes or until fish starts to look opaque (solid white). Check after 3 minutes; rearrange fish if necessary for even cooking. Let stand, covered, about 2 minutes. Fish is done when it is completely opaque and flakes easily when tested with fork. If desired, spoon juices over fish before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving: 196 calories, 26g protein, 9g fat, 0 carbohydrate, 150mg sodium, 11mg cholesterol.

Variations: Omit butter and use 1 tablespoon lemon juice or white wine. To vary flavor, omit dill weed and substitute lemon pepper (or grated fresh lemon peel) or ¼ teaspoon of crumbled dried herb leaves — such as rosemary, marjoram, oregano, savory, thyme or basil. Or sprinkle with chopped fresh parsley or chives after cooking.

Italian-Style Fish Steaks

1 pound fish steaks, ¾-1 inch thick, thawed if necessary
⅓ cup low-calorie Italian dressing
2-3 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon black or white pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika

Place fish steaks in a microwavable shallow dish. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over fish. Cover dish with plastic wrap and refrigerate 30 minutes, turning pieces over once. Turn back one corner of plastic wrap for venting. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 5 minutes. Rotate dish. Continue microwaving (Medium) 3 to 7 minutes until fish looks opaque and flakes when tested with a fork. Let stand 2 to 3 minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving — varies depending on kind of fish used: 128 calories, 22g protein, 6g fat, 2g carbohydrate, 216mg sodium, 34mg cholesterol.

Fish With Mexicali Rice For Two

8 ounces thin fish fillets*
¾ cup uncooked instant rice
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ cup chunky picante sauce or salsa
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons reduced-fat Cheddar cheese

Thaw fish, if necessary, and cut into about 4 pieces; set aside.

Stir together rice, green pepper, onion, salsa and water in a microwavable 8-inch pie plate or other shallow dish. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until rice is hot, but not quite done. Stir rice. Arrange fish in a circle atop rice, with thickest parts toward outside edge of dish. Tuck skinny tail parts under or roll up thin fillets. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 1½ minutes. Rotate dish ¼ turn. Continue microwaving (High) 1 to 2 minutes longer or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Sprinkle with cheese and let stand to melt before serving. Makes 2 servings.

Each serving: 318 calories, 32g protein, 7g fat, 29g carbohydrate, 477mg sodium, 5mg cholesterol.

* Any lean fish may be substituted in the recipes calling for fillets. Torsk (cod), haddock, halibut, pollack, ocean perch, red snapper, flounder, sole, orange roughy, walleye and Northern are some choices.

August 1990

Dear Golden Pride/Rawleigh
Since the last time I wrote you, another amazing thing has happened to me! I had both legs stripped of varicose veins in 1978 and 1979. The Doctor told me to continue wearing support hose - which I did! Anytime I tried to get along without them my legs would ache terribly! I was limited in what I would wear with those ugly things on my legs, so I stayed mostly in slacks and tie shoes. For the past couple of days, I have gone bare-legged in sandals, and my legs don't ache a bit! Another credit to Golden Pride/Rawleigh products. I am taking Formulas #1 (1 or 2 teaspoons a day), #3 (750 mgs a day), #4 (3 or 4 a day), and #8 (2 a day). I don't know which one did it, but I feel GREAT!
With this schedule my arthritis hasn't been acting up a bit either! Praise the Lord! Golden Pride/Rawleigh and I get along fine!

Esther R Brown

February 1990

Dear Golden Pride/Rawleigh.
Just this note to say how thankful I am to have been introduced to Golden Pride I use the Gold Pack, an extra supply of Formula #6, #7 and #8 and I have never felt better I praise God for these products I just signed up a friend and in less than one week they could feel the difference.
Again, thank you for everything.

Roy M. Ginder

"I am writing this, which is something I was sure I would never do, because I always said they sound too good to be true, but I have changed my mind because it happened to me.
This winter I had a lot of pain in my hips and joints and a very sore and swollen knee. I did not want to go to the doctor and get some drugs, so I was trying to take care of it myself, but it didn't work too well.
When Jesse told me about Combination 23 I tried it. Well, talk about being surprised, I couldn't believe it! I took 12 the first three days and my knee felt much better. I cut down to 10 a day for a week and then 8 a day for another week. Next week I will go to 6 a day. Guess what? It really works. My knee is just fine, my legs don't hurt at night and I sleep good and I don't wake up hurting all over.
Thanks, Jesse and Golden Pride/Rawleigh.

Fresh Citrus Stars In Diabetic Menus

To assist the diabetic in the selection and preparation of a nutritious diet, Sunkist Growers has produced a new booklet, "Fresh Squeezed Tips for the Diabetic." The booklet was written for Sunkist by Mary Abbott Hess, M.S., R.D., author of "The Art of Cooking for the Diabetic" and current president of the American Dietetic Association.

It is estimated millions of Americans have diabetes and with its complications the disease is now recognized as one of the leading causes of death in the U.S. Diabetes has an impact on virtually all systems of the human body, and if left untreated can cause blindness, stroke, heart disease, and even death. The important factor is to have the disease diagnosed, so it can be properly treated.

Diabetes is particularly high in minority groups such as Latinos, blacks, American Indians and Asian-Americans. Others at special risk are pregnant women, people over 50, and those with a family history of diabetes. The economic toll of diabetes, excluding its complications, is estimated to be in the billions of dollars annually.

Fortunately, once diagnosed, there are treatments for diabetes and dietary management is one of those treatments. The doctor will prescribe a medical program, but it depends on the individual to monitor and select a recommended diet on a daily basis.

Today, meal plans for those with diabetes can be tailored to individual likes and lifestyles, with a variety of tasty foods available throughout the year. Now, a sound diabetic diet is very similar to what is recommended for the general population.

Maintaining balance is key to the dietary management of diabetes. It is wise to remember to:

* Eat only enough calories to maintain appropriate weight.
* Choose suitable carbohydrate, protein and fats to regulate blood glucose and fat levels.
* Be aware of the pattern and timing of meals.

Practicing good nutrition is extremely important, and that includes eating a variety of foods. Colorful, flavorful fresh citrus can be a very important part of a balanced diet. It is especially good for the diabetic, with lower calories and sodium content, and high amounts of vitamin C. Citrus also contains no fat or cholesterol and is a good source of fiber.

The attractive 20-page booklet, "Fresh Squeezed Tips for Diabetics," provides some basic diet information for the diabetic, along with a selection of tempting fresh citrus recipes from "The Art of Cooking for the Diabetic." Complimentary copies are available to individuals on request, when accompanied by a self addressed stamped envelope. Send requests to: Sunkist Growers, Inc., Consumer Affairs Department, P.O. Box 7888, Van Nuys, CA 91409-7888. Please allow 4 to 6 weeks for delivery.

Conservation Leadership School

The Conservation Leadership School is a two-week outdoor workshop for students 15-18 years old, who are interested in natural resource management and conservation issues. Heart-Smart Eating

Nutrition experts agree that the percentage of calories that come from fat in the average American's diet — more than 40 percent — is much too high and linked to both heart disease and some types of cancer.

One way to cut fat and calories in the diet is to make some simple changes in recipes. The key is to lower or eliminate sources of fat such as butter or margarine, oil, lard, meat fat and salad dressing.

Try the following: Experiment with your favorite recipes by cutting out one-third to one-half the fat.

Instead of sauteing vegetables or meat in oil or butter, cut the amount of fat in half or use a nonstick spray coating. Or cut the fat out completely, and add several tablespoons of liquid (water, broth, or juice). Then steam the food in a covered pan.

Use processed cheeses such as Swiss and Monterey Jack, which are generally lower in fat and have about half the calories of regular cheese.

In place of sour cream, blend together low-fat cottage cheese with several tablespoons yogurt, skim milk or buttermilk until smooth.

GRILLED OR BROILED MARINATED VEGETABLES

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon minced fresh oregano leaves
3 cloves garlic, bruised with side of knife
Select at least 3 of the following vegetables:
2 baby eggplant, small zucchini and or yellow squash, trimmed, halved lengthwise
1 each large red and yellow bell peppers, stems and seeds removed, cut in thick wedges
4 thick slices sweet red onion
4 large shiitake mushrooms, stems dicarded
4 scallions, trimmed
1 large russet potato, scrubbed, cut into ¼ -inch thick lengthwise slices
Sprigs of fresh oregano
Lemon wedges

Combine the olive oil, oregano, and garlic. Place the selected vegetables on a platter and drizzle with the marinade; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover and marinate at least 30 minutes. Preheat broiler or grill. Cook vegetables, turning until evenly browned and tender. Transfer to a large platter as they are cooked. Garnish with sprigs of fresh oregano and lemon wedges. Serve warm or at room temperature.

CHICKEN IN TOMATO MARSALA SAUCE

2 large boneless, skinless chicken breast pieces
½ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
Vegetable cooking spray
4 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
¼ cup Marsala wine

In a small bowl, mix together oregano, garlic powder, onion powder and pepper; sprinkle generously over all sides of chicken using all of mixture. Heat nonstick frypan over medium temperature about 1 minute; spray with vegetable cooking spray. Add chicken and cook about 5 minutes more. Push chicken to side and add tomato suace and wine, stirring with mushrooms to mix well. Arrange chicken in sauce and simmer about 12 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Serve with linguine. Serves 2.

Chicken In Tomato Marsala Sauce is a smart way to keep your heart healthy.

GINGER CHICKEN WITH CARROTS AND FRUIT

2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut in 1½ -inch strips
1 teaspoon ginger, divided
3 tablespoons low sodium soy sauce
1½ cups sliced carrots, cooked
½ cup pineapple tidbits, drained
½ cup frozen red tart cherries, unsweetened
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon pepper

In small bowl, place chicken strips and sprinkle with ½ teaspoon ginger. Stir in soy sauce and let sit about 10 minutes. In medium bowl, mix together carrots, pineapple, cherries, lemon juice, remaining ½ teaspoon ginger and pepper. Add chicken strips with sauce, mixing well. Place in shallow 1-quart baking dish and cook in 400 degree oven about 30 minutes. Serve on bed of rice. Serves 2.

National Broiler Council
Washington, D.C.

BRAN MUFFINS

3 cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten
2 teaspoons salt
5 teaspoons baking soda
1 15-ounce box Raisin Bran
1 quart buttermilk
1 cup oil
5 cups flour

Mix bran, cereal, sugar, flour, salt and soda. Add to liquid ingredients. Mix well but do not beat. Cover bowl and store in refrigerator. Use batter as needed. Bake in muffin tins at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Batter will keep 3 to 6 weeks in refrigerator. Muffins will also freeze well when baked.

BEEF STROGANOFF

1 pound beef top round steak
1 tablespoon flour
Nonstick spray coating
1½ cups sliced fresh mushrooms
½ onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon margarine
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1¼ cups water
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 teaspoon instant beef bouillon granules
8 ounces plain, low-fat yogurt
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 ounces fettuccine, cooked and drained

Partially freeze meat. Remove all visible fat and cut on bias into thin bite-sized strips. Coat meat with 1 tablespoon flour.

Spray a large skillet with nonstick coating. Brown meat in skillet.

Stir in mushrooms, onion, and garlic. Cook 3 to 4 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring occasionally. Remove meat-mushroom mixture.

Add margarine to pan drippings. Stir in 1 tablespoon flour. Stir in water, tomato paste and bouillon. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly.

Stir together yogurt and 2 tablespoons flour. Add to skillet. Return meat-mushroom mixture to skillet. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Then cook and stir 1 minute more. Stir in lemon juice. Serve over fettuccine.

BOSTON LAMB CHOPS

12 loin or rib lamb chops
2 tablespoons fresh chopped oregano
Salt and pepper to taste
4 tablespoons olive oil
3 small zucchini, sliced
2 medium red onions, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
3 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
1 tablespoon fresh chopped basil
Linquini pasta, cooked and drained

Sprinkle lamb chops with oregano, salt, and pepper. Brown chops in 3 tablespoons olive oil for 4 to 5 minutes on each side. Do not overcook. Remove and keep hot. Saute zucchini, onion, and garlic until tender. Add tomatoes and basil. Cook 2 minutes more. Toss together with pasta. Arrange on platter with lamb chops. Serves 6.

Mary Conrad

WHIPPED TOPPING

½ cup nonfat dry milk
½ cup very cold water
2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup sugar

Combine dry milk and ice water. Beat rapidly until soft peaks form. Add lemon juice. Beat until stiff. Fold in sugar.

Variations: For whipped fruit topping, substitute ½ cup ice-cold, tart fruit juice (cherry, apricot, orange or pineapple) for cold water, and decrease lemon juice to 1 tablespoon.

QUESTION — Catherine Shearer of Greencastle would like a recipe for strawberry preserves that are cooked, not the freezer variety.

QUESTION — Susan Breckbill, Lincoln University, would like recipes using sour cherries, but not pie or cobbler recipes.

QUESTION — Ruth Apgar, Lebanon, N.J., asked where she can buy pasteurized processed eggs. Editor's note: Call Lancaster Co. Farms, (717) 3939-9294; Wilmington (302) 575-1810; or Reading, (215) 373-2144. Look for a feature article on pasteurized eggs in B-section of this paper.

QUESTION — Rose Ann Martin, Ephrata, would like a recipe to make a mix similar to Bisquick that can be used in recipes that call for a buttermilk baking mix. She would also like a recipe for frozen yogurt.

ANSWER — Cynthia from New York requested a recipe for pumpkin whoopie pies. Thanks to Rita Bradley, Chambersburg; Betty Light, Harrisburg; Bertha Sharp, Mifflintown; and Susan Breckbill, Lincoln University, for recipes.

Pumpkin Whoopie Pies

2 egg yolks
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups pumpkin
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat together eggs, sugar, and vegetable oil. Mix with remaining ingredients. Drop by teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool. Place filling in between two cookies.

Filling:
8 ounces cream cheese
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup margarine
1 pound confectioners sugar

Beat together ingredients until smooth. Fill the cookies with this recipe or the following one.

Filling:
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup confectioners sugar
1 egg white
1 cup confectioners sugar
¾ cup shortening
Marshmallow creme

Cream flour, milk, vanilla, powdered sugar, and egg whites together. Add 1 cup powdered sugar, shortening and marshmallow creme. Beat until fluffy. Use as filling between two whoopie cookies.

ANSWER — Jack Hohmeier of Lincroft, N.J., requested a recipe for Nell's Coffee Cake. Thanks to Anne Holst, an 80-plus-year-old cook from E. Greenwich, R.I., who writes that the discription of the cake is somewhat puzzling, but that she has a recipe from 1886 that may be what he is looking for. She also sent a recipe for Pork Cake that sounds similar to what Jack requested. She said that she has baked hundreds of them, which are kept in a crock in a cold pantry where it will remain moist and flavorful for months.

Coffee Cake

1 cup raisins, seeded, chopped
1 cup sugar
½ cup butter
½ cup strong coffee, cold
½ cup molasses
2½ cups flour, sifted
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Directions were not sent with this recipe, but I believe it is baked similar to her Pork Cake recipe.

Pork Cake
(makes 5 loaves)

2 cups brown sugar
1 pound salt pork, ground
1 pint boiling strong coffee

Pour coffee over salt pork (salt pork was used in place of shortening) in large bowl. Stir in brown sugar and 1 cup molasses.

Measure and sift:
5 cups flour
1 teaspoon mace
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1½ teaspoons baking soda

Combine and toss together:
1 pound currants
1 pound raisins
½ cup flour

Sift flour mixture into liquid mixture in the large bowl, adding dredged fruit after half the flour has been sifted. Add, if desired, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift in remaining flour. Mixture should be very stiff. Add 2 more cups flour if necessary.

Spoon into well-greased and floured loaf pans until two-thirds full. Bake 2 hours in 325 degree oven. Cover the top of pans with greased brown paper the last ¾ hour.

ANSWER — Irene Bandi, Easton, requested a recipe for soft pretzels.

Sturgis Soft Pretzels

1 package dry yeast
⅛ cup warm water
1⅓ cups warm water
⅓ cup brown sugar
5 cups flour
Coarse salt

Dissolve yeast in ⅛ cup water. Stir in 1⅓ cups warm water, brown sugar, and flour. Beat until smooth; knead until the dough is smooth and elastic.

In a saucepan, measure 2 tablespoons baking soda to each cup of water until the pan is filled. Bring to a boil. Break off pieces of dough the size of a lemon. Roll dough into pencil shapes and twist into pretzels. Place twists into boiling water for 15 seconds or until dough is golden yellow.

Remove and place on a salted cookie sheet. Salt top of pretzels. Bake in a preheated 475 degree oven for about 8 or 10 minutes. Serve.

DUTCH DISH

1 medium head cabbage
1 10¾ -ounce can tomato soup
1 medium onion, chopped
1½ pounds ground beef

Shred cabbage with a sharp knife. Place cabbage in a large buttered casserole dish. Brown ground beef and onion. Drain fat. Place ground beef evenly over the cabbage. Spread tomato soup over the ground beef. Cover with a lid.

Bake at 375 degrees until the cabbage is tender and bubbly, about 1 hour and 15 minutes.

OATMEAL COOKIES

1 cup margarine
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup flour
½ cup whole wheat flour
½ cup egg substitute or 4 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda
3 cups rolled oats
¾ cup chopped walnuts or raisins

In a large bowl, cream together margarine and sugars until well blended. Add egg substitute and vanilla and beat well. Mix together flours and soda; then gradually blend into creamed mixture. Stir in oats and walnuts until blended. Cover bowl and chill about 4 hours. To shape cookies, roll a slightly rounded tablespoon of dough between the palms of the hands into a round ball. Place 4-inches apart on a baking sheet. Wet a fork and press cookie to about ¼ -inch thickness. Bake at 350 degrees for about 14 minutes. Place cookies on wire rack to cool. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

HEART-HEALTHY MEAT LOAF

1 pound ground turkey, chicken or veal
½ cup nonfat milk
2 egg whites or ¼ cup egg substitute
1 slice whole wheat bread in small cubes
1 tablespoon dried parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix all ingredients together and place in a loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

ROASTED RED SNAPPER, CRISP POTATO SLICES & GREEN BEANS

4 red snapper fillets
5 tablespoons olive oil
1 tabelspoon fresh lemon juice
1 clove garlic, thinly sliced
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
4 cups thinly sliced peeled potatoes
Salt and pepper to taste
2 cups slender fresh green beans, trimmed, cut into 2-inch lengths

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Place fillets on a plate; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon oil, lemon juice, half the garlic and half the thyme. Cover and refrigerate until ready to bake. Spread the potatoes in a 13x9-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with the remaining oil, garlic, and thyme; toss to coat. Bake potatoes, turning once or twice, until edges are golden, about 30 minutes. Sprinkle green beans on potatoes, carefully combine. Bake 5 minutes. Place the fish fillets directly on top of the potatoes and beans. Bake until fillets just turn opague in the center, about 5 to 8 minutes.

A simple Tex Mex Dip for assorted fresh vegetables and crackers combines Blue cheese and avocadoes. Puree two medium-sized ripe, peeled, seeded advocadoes, 2 tablespoons chopped onion and 1½ teaspoons of fresh lemon juice until smooth in a blender or food processor. Blend in 1½ cups dairy sour cream, ¼ cup crumbled Blue cheese and a little salt and pepper. Chill this dip an hour or two to allow the flavors to blend.

When a cheese is used as a topping for casseroles, the heat from the casserole is often enough to melt the cheese and give the food an appetizing appearance.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Laurie Woodrick, Belle Mead, N.J., requested a recipe for apple fritter pastry that is made from a raised dough and then fried, similar to those sold at Green Dragon Farmer's Market. Thanks to Janice Lehman, Myerstown, who said that she does not know if these taste the same as Green Dragon's, but these are delicious.

Apple Fritters

4 cups chopped apples, diced
1 cup raisins
3 cups warm water
3 tablespoons yeast
6 eggs, beaten
1¼ cups butter, melted
2½ cups dry instant mashed potatoes
1¼ cups sugar
2½ teaspoons salt
4-4½ cups flour
3 teaspoons cinnamon

Cook raisins until soft; add apples and cook until slightly soft. Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add ¼ cup of sugar with the yeast.

Add the remaining ingredients (raisins and apples should be added before flour).

Let rise overnight

Roll out dough. Cut into strips 1½ x3½ -inches. Let rise again until double. Fry in deep oil in electric skillet.

Glaze:

6 cups confectioners sugar
6 teaspoons vanilla
12-16 tablespoons hot water
8 tablespoons butter, melted
3 teaspoons cinnamon

Heat glaze and dip apple fritters into the glaze.

ANSWER — R. Stoltzfus of Narvon requested a recipe for fruit dip. Thanks to Carol Caldwell, Daretown, N.J.; and Kathy Seeder, Meyersdale; and Susan Breckbill, Lincoln University; Janice Lehman, Myerstown; who sent recipes.

Fruit Dip

1 small box coconut creme instant pudding and pie filling
¾ cup milk
½ cup sour cream
8-ounce can crushed pineapples

Combine all ingredients in the blender and blend until smooth. Refrigerate.

Kathy writes that this is especially good in the summer months when plenty of fresh fruit is available.

Fruit Dip

Mix together: 1 8-ounce package softened cream cheese
1 7-ounce jar marshmallow cream
1 cup powdered sugar, sifted

Add:

Nutmeg and cinnamon to taste

Fruit Dip

1 7-ounce jar marshmallow creme
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons pineapple juice
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat with mixer until smooth.

Cool Whip Dip

¾ cup strawberry jam or jelly
8 ounces whipped topping
8 ounces cream cheese

Mix together and serve with slices of apples.

ASGROW

Marty Greenleaf - Kirkwood, Lancaster County, PA

"I put out about 400 acres of no-till soybeans every year. Over the last three years my beans have averaged 56 BU/AC, including full season and doublecrop. Last year I had 275 acres of Asgrow A3935 which averaged 65.8 BU/AC. In addition to their high yield and consistency, they stand good and combine easy. A3935 has topped Penn State Lancaster County Trials with a three year average yield of 67.5 BU/AC, 3 BU more than the second place bean and 8 BU above the average. My on-farm trials have shown this too. With today's high input costs and low commodity prices, I can't afford to plant anything but Asgrow."

Ryan Garber Would Rather Work Than Play

"I like helping my dad with custom combining," Ryan said.

Ryan's goal is to drive tractor and truck full time. His brother Rodney prefers to draw them.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — When school isn't in session, most kids like to sleep in, but not Ryan Garber. He's up at the break of dawn and off to work in the barn.

The nine-year-old is the eldest son of Phil and Cyndi Garber of Mount Joy.

"He just loves working," Cyndi said of her son. "And he is very capable."

Ryan seems to have a natural ability for handling machinery and equipment.

"He's as good as a 16-year-old," his dad claims. "He just watches how to do something and he knows how."

When Ryan was only three years old, he could ride bike. He now has a bike with 18-speeds, but Ryan thinks bikes are rather tame. He dreams of driving one of his dad's trucks used in the family custom combine business.

He does operate a combine with his dad and he drives tractor on the family's 1,000 acres.

"I've got to watch out for rocks and ground hog holes," he said. "I've got to wear sunglasses when I haul corn to keep the dust out of my eyes."

When the combine gets dirty, it is Ryan's job to clean it.

He helps pack eggs at the family's 250,000-bird poultry complex.

"It gets boring," Ryan said.

He'd rather be hauling manure or broken eggs. He helps with the 150 steers and 600 hogs on the farm.

One thing that Ryan doesn't like to do is empty the trash. Using the golf cart to carry the loads makes it a lot more fun, he said.

When Ryan isn't working on the farm, he likes to talk business with his friends. He especially likes to debate the pros and cons of machinery.

"John Deere tractors are my favorite," Ryan said. "They run pretty good and smooth and shift gears easily."

Ryan insists that he would much rather work on the farm than go to school. He is proud that he punches a time clock just like the farm's four full-time and six part-time employees.

Actually the third grader doesn't find school all that bad. He likes math, reading, and recess," he said.

His third grade class is jumping rope for a contest to raise money for the American Heart Association.

"I like doing it, but I got to practice a little more," Ryan said.

Ryan has two brothers, Rodney,7, and Scott, 17 months old.

Rodney prefers to draw and to ride the golf cart around the farm. He's glad that his brother lets him ride the 18-speed bike.

Both boys like baseball and soccer. This past year, Ryan won $150 for selling the most barbecue tickets for his softball team, the Cardinals.

Both boys enjoy playing with their 17-month-old brother. "He likes to ride on the golf cart too," Ryan said.

Even the dog likes to go for a ride when Ryan, Rodney, and Scott take off on the golf cart.

Rodney Garber spends many hours drawing. He is seven years old and recently began taking art lessons.

George Washington's horse was named Lexington.

Dear Kid's Korner,

Hi! My name is Mary Jane Reiff. I'm in sixth grade at Conestoga View School. My teachers' names are Ida Nolt and Lucy Weaver. My parents are Paul and Anna Reiff. I have one brother and three sisters: Me, 11; Leon, 9; Ruth Ann, 6; Dorcas, 4; and Janet, almost 8 months.

On February 14, the whole school was at our place for dinner. We played cornerball in the afternoon. Some others were playing different games. We went back to school about 2:15 to do our chores. On February 21, we are going to have a craft contest. I made a wall hanging and quilted it. I also made an ostrich puppet.

We live down beside the creek. In summers we go swimming. In the winter, we go skating.

Yes, well, it is time to go.

I would like to have a pen pal who was born in 1979 or 1978. Someone who enjoys outdoor activities and riding. My birthday is August 21, 1979. If interested, send your letter to Mary Jane Reiff, R.D. 2, Box 22, Ephrata, PA 17522.

Goodbye,
Mary Jane Reiff

Safety Tips For Seniors

Three or four times each year I tape educational programs for our local PBS station. In January, I prepared materials on the financial strains of retirement. Did you know that retirees can expect their medical and health insurance costs to increase thirty percent from pre-retirement levels during their later years?

By taking some basic precautions, you may be able to save yourself or one of your parents some medical costs. You may also avoid undue pain and injury.

Many seniors spend much of their day in the home. "Safety begins at home" because accidents also begin at home. Arthritis and vision changes, two common physical conditions in aging, affect the way adults function. Some simple additions and alterations may help you to compensate for this natural part of aging.

Except for a sudden injury, people generally adapt to these changes gradually. Because the changes come slowly, over time, we may overlook some simple safety precautions. But we need to follow safety tips and encourage older family members to do the same. Each year home accidents injure about 25 million people. Taking time now to make your home safer really is important.

Consider how these items may improve the safety in your kitchen:

- A sturdy step stool. Sit whenever possible to work, using a lapboard across an open drawer.
- A plastic half-gallon milk container (or a handle that slips over a paper carton) that makes it easier to carry and pour a beverage.
- Tongs to extend your reach and a long oven mitt to protect your hands and lower arms from burns.
- Land-handled dust pan and brush, a nonslip rubber gripper, and a one-handed food chopper (with a knob at the top) simplify daily tasks.
- Shadow-free lighting which improves ability to see clearly.
- Light-weight dishes on lower shelves which can be selected and moved with ease.
- Kitchen racks, mounted on pantry doors or placed on cupboard shelves, that help organize space and may improve a person's access to needed items.
- A fire extinguisher that you know how to use.

Remove throw rugs or other clutter that may cause a person to stumble or slip. You may have placed small rugs in your bathroom or bedroom. Make sure to remove these or fasten them securely to the floor. It's very easy to catch a shoe on the edge and tumble into a piece of furniture. Remember, too, your furnishings are aging with you. Have you checked the electrical cords on lamps and appliances? Any wires that seemed frayed pose a grave fire hazard. Replace them. Ask a family member or friend to help you.

We'd like to believe that our roads and farms are safe. This, unfortunately is not always true. To increase your safety, make sure you have adequate lighting near your home's entrance and over any walkways. Also, consider having a phone in the bedroom. This gives you quick access to police in case of emergency. It also keeps you from hurrying into the hallway or down a flight of steps in the middle of the night to answer a call.

During the winter months, it is okay to enjoy some outdoor exercise, but remember to always layer clothing. Loose, layered clothing traps more air and keeps your body at a safe temperature.

These are just a few ideas that may improve your safety. Ignoring the unsafe areas in and around your home puts you at financial and physical risk. Take some time this week to make a few changes — for yourself or for those people you care about who may benefit. This is a gift of time that will pay for itself!

Cooking Experiment Reveals 'Eggciting' News About Pasteurized Eggs

Quaker State Farms of Klingerstown, an egg products producer and member of Papetti Egg Products Group, is one of the few companies that make pasteurized eggs for food services. John Brommer, who is in sales for Quaker State Farms, said that the company is working on packaging the pasteurized eggs for consumer sales at supermarkets. The concept is new.

The process is similar to milk pasteurization. According to a food economist, eggs can not be pasteurized at home since special equipment is required. The eggs are heated to 140 degrees and held at that temperature for three minutes, cooled, and packaged.

Many consumers ask, "Do pasteurized eggs have a different taste than fresh eggs, and do they give a different texture to the food?

To find out, I asked Grace Arnold, an expert baker from Manheim, to experiment with the pasteurized eggs from Quaker State.

First, she compared a scrambled egg prepared with the Table Ready eggs and one straight from the shell. She reports that there was no noticeable difference, except the shell egg had a slightly more eggy flavor.

Both the egg whites and the whole eggs that have been pasteurized are packaged in cartons similar to a milk carton. The eggs pour out easily and are not distinguishable from fresh yolks or whites. One egg is equal to ¼ cup of the mixture.

The whites easily whipped into soft peaks. Grace used the whipped egg whites in a mousse, as the meringue for a lemon pie, and in whoopie pie filling.

Those who sampled the food said it was delicious. They could not detect any difference between those prepared with fresh or pasteurized eggs.

At this point, the egg whites are frozen. When thawed, the contents must be kept refrigerated and used within three days.

The Table Ready eggs are a liquid, whole egg product that will keep for 10 weeks in the refrigerator as long as the carton is not opened. After the seal is broken, the liquid eggs should be used in three to five days.

Pasteurized egg whites whip into soft peaks for meringues and other recipes using uncooked, whipped egg whites.

Quaker State offers a large variety of eggs. They have frozen quik-whip whites for use in meringues, separated yolks, scramble mixes, and whole eggs for use in ice cream and other no cook desserts.

Quaker State hopes to have the pasteurized product in supermarkets by Easter. Until then, consumers may purchase the pasteurized eggs if they order the products by the case.

Lancaster County Farms, which also sells poultry products, cheese and salads by case lots, is one of Quaker State's distributors. Orders are taken at 202 Seymour St., Lancaster, PA 17603, phone (717) 393-9294 or call Quaker State Farms, Klingerstown, P.O. Box 76, at (717) 425-2910, to see if there is a food service center near your home.

Although the chance of contacting salmonella poisoning from raw eggs in a home setting is small, those who prepare food for community dinners, fundraisers and bake sales should definitely use pasteurized eggs in place of raw eggs.

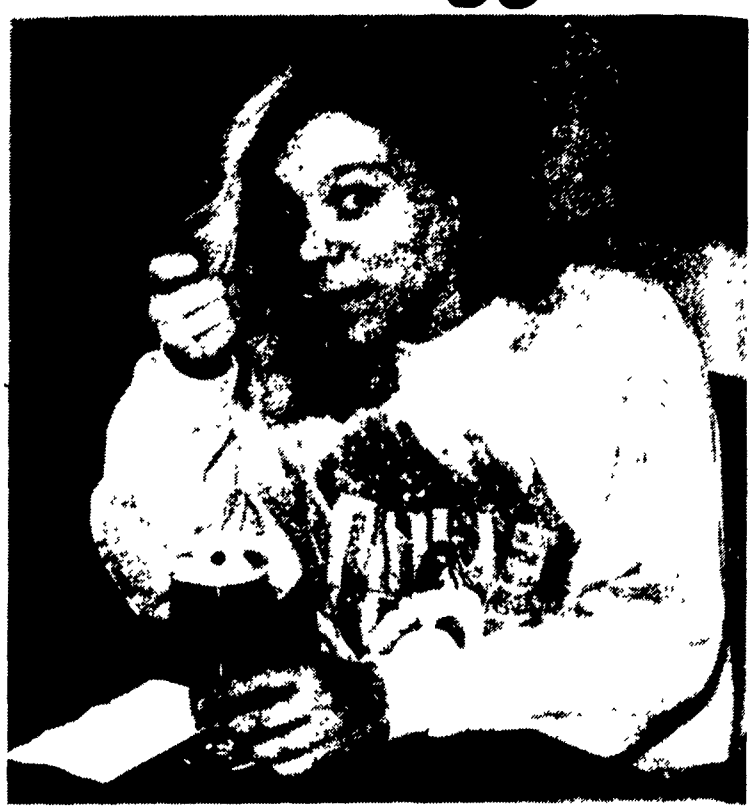
Pour ¼ cup of Table Ready eggs into small microwaveable dish. Do not cover. Place in microwave for 10 seconds on high speed; stir; return to microwave and again cook on high speed for 10 seconds, repeat again. In 30 seconds, the egg should be slightly puffy like a scrambled egg and ready to eat. Season to taste.

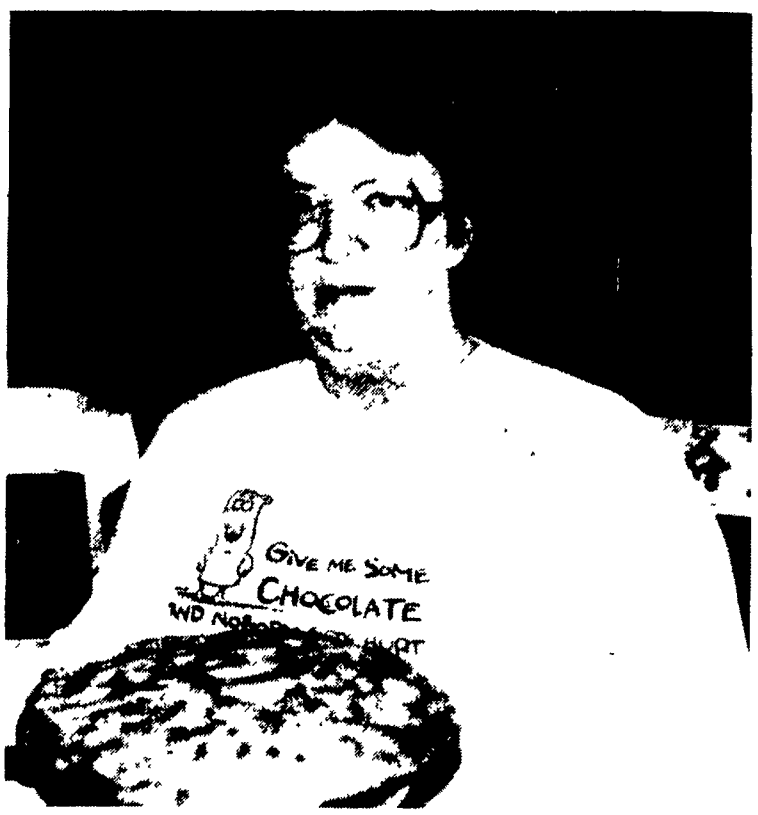
MOCHA MOUSSE

2 6-ounce packages semi-sweet chocolate pieces
8 egg yolks
1 tablespoon instant coffee powder
8 egg whites
Dash salt
1 cup sugar
Frozen whipped dessert topping, thawed

Reserve a few chocolate pieces for garnish. In a heavy saucepan, melt remaining chocolate pieces over low heat. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating after each addition. Remove from heat. Blend in coffee powder. Beat egg whites and salt until frothy; gradually add sugar, beating to stiff peaks. Stir a small amount of beaten egg whites into chocolate mixture, fold into remaining egg whites. Spoon into 16 sherbets or dessert dishes. Chill. Garnish with whipped topping and reserve chocolate pieces. Serves 16.



Katrina Kreider, one of the taste-testers, enjoyed the mousse prepared with pasteurized eggs.



No one needs to worry about salmonella poisoning when they eat this lemon meringue pie that was prepared with pasteurized eggs.

LEMON MERINGUE PIE

1¼ cups sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 cups water
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon lemon rind
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon lemon extract
2 teaspoons vinegar

Mix sugar and cornstarch in top of double boiler. Add water. Combine egg yolks with juice and beat. Add to remaining mixture. Cook until thick over boiling water for 25 minutes. Add extract, butter and vinegar. Stir. Pour in baked shell and cool slightly. Cover with meringue and brown in oven.

WHOOPIE PIES

4 cups granulated sugar
2 cups shortening
4 eggs
2 cups buttermilk or sour milk
4 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups baking cocoa
8 cups flour
4 teaspoons salt
4 teaspoons baking soda dissolved in
2 cups hot water

Beat together all ingredients. Drop by tablespoonfuls on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 325 degrees for 10 minutes. When cool, fill with the following mixture.

Icing:

4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
4 cups confectioners sugar
4 tablespoons vanilla
8 tablespoons flour
8 tablespoons milk
4 cups confectioners sugar
3 cups shortening

Add each ingredient separately and beat well. When cookies are cooled, sandwich the icing between two cookies.

Never-Fail Meringue:

Blend in saucepan:

1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 teaspoons cold water

Add:

½ cup boiling water

Stir until thick and completely cold. Add:

3 stiffly beaten egg whites with 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, dash of salt

(Turn to Page B13)

Pasteurized eggs and egg whites will soon be available at your local grocery store. Pasteurized eggs should be used in recipes that call for uncooked eggs.

Grace Arnold, a baker from Manheim, experimented with the pasteurized eggs and found no difference between them and fresh shell eggs. The filling recipe for whoopie pies uses uncooked egg whites. The Fresh 'N' Ready pasteurized egg whites made by Quaker State Farms will soon be marketed in grocery stores.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 14

The Society of Farm Women 14 met February 13 at the home of Miriam Groff. Hostesses Edna Groff, Elma Barge, and Esther Landis followed the theme of the month with decorations and the traditional cherry dessert.

Edna Groff led in a meditation that drew attention to President's Day and Valentine's Day with poems and the love chapter from I Corinthians 13.

President Ellen Newswanger conducted the business meeting and called for the treasurer's and secretary's reports. Members answered roll call by stating their favorite U.S. president.

The program committee business centered around arrangements for the two day bus trip in April. The sewing committee showed a lovely quilt that they had finished.

"Stress Buster" was the subject of speaker Dorothy Russo. She gave a 10-point test for members to analyze their range of stress.

Lancaster Society 34

On Saturday, February 16, members enjoyed a delicious dinner with their sweethearts at the home of Dottie Bard.

After the meal, we enjoyed games with our husbands. To top off the evening, four husbands gave a fashion show in which they depicted different stages of our married life.

The next meeting will be March 18, at the home of Joan Wimer.

Lancaster Society 18

The Lancaster Society of Farm Women 18 met at the home of Martha Stoner in Lancaster.

Virginia Ruckert spoke on "I love to tell the story," that uses a Biblical portrayal of a story on a large quilt.

Lancaster Society 19

Farm Women Society 19 held its February meeting at the Hempfield Church of the Brethren. Members responded to roll call by saying an interesting tidbit about the President who was in office during their birth — a great history class.

Betty Saylor passed a sign-up sheet for those able to go on the Millersburg Ferry trip on May 11. Several ladies will sew at the Lancaster General Hospital on March 7.

Corinne Nissley introduced the guest speaker, Deidre Simmons, executive director of the Fulton Opera House. She gave the interesting history of this 1852 building and showed slides of its present deteriorating condition.

The March 9 meeting will be hosted by Millie Eshleman, Landisville.

Berks Society 4

The Berks Society of Farm Women Group 4 held their February meeting at the Boyertown home of Mrs. Evelyn Becker. Vice president Mary Fiss presided over the business meeting. A report on the State Convention and County Board meeting was given.

Members are to bring canned goods to the next meeting. The items are for the Food Pantry, a project of Ag Day on March 20. Bingo will be held April 4 at Berks Heim and Spring Rally on May 23 at the Berkshire Sheraton. Three door prizes and three centerpieces are needed.

Seed boxes for the Spring Rally were decorated. A quiz on presidents and a Valentine gift exchange rounded out the social hour.

The March 5 meeting will be held at the home of Marguerite Rush where favors for Meals on Wheels will be made.

Lancaster Society 25

Fifteen members of Lancaster Society of Farm Women 25 wore red to the February 9 meeting held at Beatrice Newswanger's home.

Dorothy Elmer gave a book review of "Detour" written by Grace Kaiser, former doctor to the Amish.

A food sale will be held at John Herr's Grocery Store, Millersville, on April 20.

Society 22 members invited Society 25 to a March 13 luncheon at the United Church of Christ.

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon Farm Women Group #20 met for a Sweetheart Banquet at the Country Apple Restaurant.

The game committee entertained us with several games and awarded prizes.

The Spring Rally will be held May 23, at the Berkshire Sheraton. The theme will be Our Heritage, The PA Dutch. Members should know by the April meeting if they would like tickets.

A mystery trip has been planned by the trip committee for March 12.

The next meeting will be at Carol Heagy's in March. Members shall bring a glue gun if they have one.

Lancaster Society 20

Farm Women #20 met February 7 at the home of Vivian Hess with Jean Ressel as co-hostess. They sewed 284 bed pads throughout the day. Following the covered dish dinner, Vivian had a reading and the scripture was read by Jean Ressel. In answer to the roll call, the 20 members present responded with a snow storm experience. The president, Vera Herr, conducted the business meeting. Valaria Ferguson reported they will have the food stand March 23 at the horse races or, if inclement weather, the 24th. Freda Wimer reported about 250 bed pads had been pinned ready for sewing. Pauline Reinhart reported sunshine was spread by sending three get well, one congratulation and eight sympathy cards. The Spring Rally will be in Reading on May 23, with Lester Breininger as speaker.

Since the delegates from #20 could not attend the convention in January, Aleta Wilbar gave a very interesting report. The County presidents may now have a vote at the board meetings. There will just be a one-day convention next year. There is a membership of 784 in Lancaster Co. with 30 societies. State wide, there are 17 90-year-old members. Due to the bad weather only 285 attended the banquet.

The three charities #20 chose to send to the board meeting were The House of His Creation, Salvation Army, and "Make-A-Wish". The meeting closed by singing "Brighten the Corner." Members will meet in March with Arlene Witman.

"The secret to being popular and appreciated is to make others feel valued," said Barbara Emery, who teaches seminars on social development and self image. "Appreciation is the greatest human need next to food, shelter, and clothing."

Barbara Emery Teaches Others

How To Be Well-Liked, Popular

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — So, you want to be well-liked, popular, and appreciated?

Barbara Emery knows how to become all these things and more. She holds seminars to teach others good manners that will enhance their career and social development.

The secret to becoming popular is really making others feel valued.

"Appreciation is the greatest human need next to food, shelter, and clothing needs," she said.

Make the other person feel valued by using their name, maintaing eye contact, and leaning slightly forward while listening.

To be well-liked, you must make a good impression. Studies show that 90 percent of the opinions formed about a person happens in the first 30 seconds of introduction.

To make a good first impression, Emery teaches what she calls the Rule of 12.

"The most important 12-inches is from your neck up — make sure you have a smile on your face; the first 12 words spoken when you first meet a friend should reflect appreciation; and the first 12 steps taken reflect a positive self-image.

When you first greet a person, words should express appreciation such as "I'm so glad you invited me" or "I'm so glad to meet you."

To reflect a positive self-image, one should walk into the room with chin parallel with the floor and shoulders back. Look your hostess in the eye and offer a firm handshake.

The key to making others feel valued includes the following:

• Learn to listen with sincere interest. This is hard work and cannot be faked.

• Ask questions that encourage others to talk about themselves and their interests. Start with how, what, where, and when.

• Don't criticize or embarrass others with your comments. Apologize if you do.

• Smile. Keep a pleasant expression on your face and animation in your voice.

• Allow others to express opinions, even when they are different from yours. Allow others to be right.

• Never gossip. Be an encourager, not a discourager.

Manners matter

You can say all the right things and ruin it by what you do.

"Manners matter," Emery stresses. "People who project poise, correct manners, and social skills have more impact than those who do not."

Recently during a dinner held by a large corporation, Emery dined at the head banquet table. The woman next to her used her fork to slice butter after she had had it in her mouth.

"Because the diners were polite, they pretended they did not notice, but no one took butter after that," Emery said. "I'm sure she lost a lot of credibility with that action."

Unfortunately, most people grow up ignoring many of the manners their mothers taught them. Teenagers in the 1960s especially paid little attention to manners. Now, many of those who are now adults, seek Emery for advice.

Etiquette includes:

• Place your napkin on your lap after the blessing and the hostess places her napkin on her lap, not before.

• Dinner napkins should be folded in half when placed on your lap.

• If you need to leave the table temporarily, during the meal, place your napkin on your chair.

• Don't place your napkin on the table until you are ready to leave it. Then fold it; don't leave it in a crumbled heap.

• Always break your bread or roll in half.

• Do not cut more than two pieces of meat at a time.

• Remove unedible seeds and gristle the same way that you put the food in your mouth. If you put an olive in with your fingers, remove the pit with your fingers and put it under a lettuce leaf. If you used a fork for your meat, remove the gristle with your fork.

People make value judgements on what they see. And what they see isn't always pleasant although they may be too polite to tell you.

Style, not fashion

In 10 years of teaching seminars, Emery said that she has observed that the majority of women have a poor self image.

"Although raising a family is a wonderful opportunity, it is no ego trip. Mothers often deprive themselves for the children's sakes. They don't want to spend money on self-improvement courses."

Emery is an image consultant, but she said that she does not teach fashion, but principles for dressing in style. "Principles on dressing to look taller and thinner will never change, but fashions will," she said.

"Those on a limited income really need to know how to build their wardrobe with two to three colors." When they learn how to acquire different looks by adding a scarf, or jewelry or a jacket, they can save a lot of money on their wardrobe and simplify life.

When shopping for herself, Emery said that she doesn't buy anthing unless she can get at least three different looks from the same outfit. She encourages her clients to do the same.

"Leadership, self confidence and control are learned skills that can, and should, be consistent with inside values and worth," Emery said. "I enjoy helping people help themselves."

Starting A Greenhouse? Consider These Suggestions

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The trick is going wide.

"My suggestion on a freestanding greenhouse will be to go as wide as possible," said Tim Weaver, greenhouse specialist for D&L Growers, on Monday at New Holland Vegetable Day at Summit Valley Elementary School.

"Once you pick your width, you're stuck with it," he said. "You can't go any wider. You can always go longer, but you can't go wider."

Weaver spoke to about 45 farmers who wanted information on building and maintaining greenhouses.

Plan for expansion

The greenhouse specialist said that farmers should plan their greenhouse for expansion. He said farmers should have an area set aside where greenhouses can be placed and perhaps lengthened.

Farmers should consider two types of greenhouse — gutter-connect and freestanding. Gutter-connect houses use an arch and crossbraces along with bar widths from 18-, 20-, 21-, 24-, and 27-foot 6-inch lengths (across the bottom) and in sizes 48 feet, 96 feet, and 144 feet. Freestanding greenhouses are quanset-type that require gables at the end, made of polycarbonate or figerglass.

A popular freestanding size is 30-foot width, on 48, 96, or 144-foot length. (The length is measured in 48-foot increments because of the standard 100-foot length of plastic layering, which will be doubled back for extra insulation).

In either case, the types will require either polyethylene (a clear pastic that costs about 7 cents a square foot, the most popular and least expensive type), polycarbonate that offers double-layer insulation, and a corrugated fiberglass (single-layer insulation).

Poly covering

Weaver recommends the polyethylene covering because it is inexpensive and durable.

"If possible, always position your freestanding greenhouses from east to west," he said, because of the direction of the sun. Especially in gutter-connect greenhouses, the gutter itself will cause shadowing. If the gutter is oriented in the correct north-south direction, according to Weaver, the shadow will "move across your crop to give you an even type of flow," he said.

"You should space your freestanding greenhouse in such a way that there's ample room between them for snow removal," said Weaver. The snow will deposit in the center of two greenhouses, and must be removed. The farther apart the greenhouses are, the better. If the snow isn't removed, the structure could collapse.

The next important consideration is the type of benching to hold the crops.

Any material

"You can take benches and make them out of any material you want to," he said. "I've seen cinderblock, 2 x 4s, and snow fence. I've seen all the way up to expanded metal benching, which is probably the most expensive you can buy."

Weaver said farmers should consider the "bottom line" when choosing a bench. "Don't skip on the benches," he said. "Remember, the benches are very important because they allow the maximum amount of square footage you need to grow your crop."

Moving benches are best, according to Weaver, because they provide more space to grow more crop, provide more return for investment, and put "more money in your pocket," he said, than fixed benches.

Weaver offered an example of savings using fixed benches on a 30-foot wide by 96-foot long greenhouse. In the fixed bench example, farmers would be able to grow 2,028 square feet of crops, out of a total of 2,880 square feet of available space. But for moving benches, the total square footage for growing crops is larger — 2,568 square feet.

More growing area

"So what you've resulted in is about 21 percent more growing area and more bench space in the same greenhouse simply by using rolling benches," said Weaver. "You're going to get a quicker return and you're going to break even and get ahead much quicker if you can increase production."

Farmers can make their own rolling benches simply by putting uprights on and rollers on a table and running the table back and forth. The entire table area must be level. The legs can be placed every 6 feet and anchored into footers of either gravel or concrete.

Weaver also said that heat requirements depend on the structure. Each individual structure must be taken into consideration, but the structure should be double covered with polyethylene.

"The advantage of the double covering over the single covering is that it saves about 30 percent of the heat right off the bat," he said.

Heating requirements

There are more gas-fired heating units available than liquid propane or oil heaters. The heating requirements depend on the BTU size of the greenhouse.

Ventilation can be either mechanical, with outside fans per structure mounted on different sides of each end to provide maximum air flow in the structure. Horizontal in-house fans can be mounted to continue the clockwise or counterclockwise direction of air inside the greenhouse. Never face the fans off against each other, he said.

Weaver recommends the fan over the natural venting because of the increased strength of the air flow. But if farmers choose natural ventilation (with a vent in the roof of the freestanding greenhouse and a vent on the side), then they should "keep in mind the prevailing winds," he said.

Fertilizing vegetables

Frank Donohue, Agway representative, spoke about fertilizing vegetables at the Vegetable Day.

Sweet corn farmers can achieve a better harvest simply be placing additional pounds of zinc per acre where the soil test may require it.

Farmers should keep in mind that, unlike corn crops, where "you fertilize once and then harvest," Donohue said, vegetables require fertilizer at different times and rates.

By getting a soil test done and checking lime requirements, farmers can see improvement in their crops.

Liming

"Liming is the lowest cost, best investment that a grower can make on his ground," he said.

Donohue recommends sidedressing for vegetable crops. Farmers should know what type of nitrogen requirements are necessary for certain crops.

Other micronutrients should also be considered, including calcium requirements (a shortage causes blossom end rot on tomatoes); sulfur (a shortage can cause yellowing of lower leaves); and boron (a shortage can cause "hollowing" in cauliflower).

Tissue testing can also be important to "high-value" crops and farmers should consider using this to test for nutrient take-up in their crops.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The winter is going by too fast to please me. There are still things that I'd like to do before spring garden planting time.

The other day I hunted through some garment bags for skirts and dresses to rip for braided rugs. I thought I'd found some until I tried on the black, long, wool skirt with a lining and found that it fit just fine. Now I hate to tear it into strips. So, I started on some bright plaid skirts and fear that I'll have to buy some with solid colors at a Goodwill store.

It isn't often that I write about clothes as they are not a big interest of mine. It is seldom that I go shopping for a dress as there are several very nice ones in my closet from weddings. And, my daughter in Atlanta gave me some of her beautiful clothes that she outgrew.

However, in my house are a collection of clothes from years past. Some of my grandmother's shawls and some of my mother's dusters. These dusters are made of a lightweight material and were worn as an overgarment to protect clothing from dust in the early open automobiles.

In my kitchen, hanging on an old wooden rake beside the walk-in fireplace, is an enormous sunbonnet that belonged to a great grandmother. You surely would not get any sun if you wore it as there is a wide brim and a very large ruffle to cover the neck. Long ago women wanted white skin and not a tan that would have shown that they worked in the fields.

Times change. I remember that one of my sisters had a tan that was more black than brown. But now people have realized the dangers of being exposed to the sun for too long a time and use sunscreen to protect themselves. If I keep clothes long enough, they come back in style again. For example, I have a long, light blue coat that I had not worn for many years, but when I saw the lengths of coats in New York City in December, I started to wear it again.

Perry County To Crown Princess

On March 7, a new Perry County Dairy Princess will be crowned at the annual Perry County Holstein Banquet. Mary Jane Innerst, the 1990-91 Dairy Princess will end her reign after a very busy year. Mary has logged over 2,000 miles and made many appearances both in local promotions and state funded promotions.

Jennifer Kay Hummel will be crowned by Mary as the new Perry County Dairy Princess for 1991-92. Jennifer, along with Sarah Dum, have helped Mary over the past year as Dairy Ambassadors.

Jennifer is the daughter of Frank and Bernice Hummel, and they reside at 160 Cove Road, Duncannon. They farm 103 acres and milk 70 cows. Jennifer is a senior at Susquenita High School, where she is involved in Horizons and is a member of the Mock United Nations Club.

Jennifer is very active in 4-H. She is a member of the Perry County 4-H Dairy Club, vice president of the County Council Club, and serves on the Development Committee. She also is on the Dairy Bowl and Dairy Judging teams for Perry County. Her hobbies include showing dairy cattle at local, regional, and state shows.

Anyone interested in attending the coronation should contact Patti McLaughlin 582-4847, by February 26.

A House — On Wheels?

Did you ever see a house on wheels?

This picture was taken on Monday south on Brimmer Avenue in New Holland. The house was moved from Rt. 23 in New Holland to this location three miles away early in February. But the house got stuck in the soft ground.

The movers — Flory and Associates — will have to wait until the ground freezes again to move the house to its final location.

PDPP To Hire Summer Intern

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program will hire a summer intern to work on ice cream promotions and related activities.

"We want to give a college student some experience in dairy promotion activities," said Brian Ross, PDPP program manager. "The PDPP conducts many summer promotions across the state and this intern will be able to experience a wide variety of situations."

Ross said that the PDPP will give this individual the primary responsibility of coordinating a statewide summer ice cream campaign during the middle of July. "The individual will be able to be involved in the planning, execution, and evaluation of the entire event."

Students with a fifth semester standing, pursuing majors in communications, marketing, agricultural business and economics, and dairy and food science, are encouraged to apply. Students should send a cover letter and resume to Ross at PDPP, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110, by February 28.

The assignment will begin in mid-May and end in late July, 1991. For further information contact Ross at (717) 787-6903.

FPPF Polar Power

Keeps Your Diesel Running In The Worst Winter Cold!

Fuel filters, separators do nothing to keep diesel fuel from the waxing or gelling that blocks up and clogs fuel lines and filters.

FPPF Polar Power contains FPPF's Fuel Power and FPPF's Polarized Diesel Fuel Flow Improver, the industry's leaders. It will keep your diesel running in the worst winter cold: lowering the pour-point, totally dispersing water, eliminating gum/varnish...outperforming all other additives and at lower cost.

Flowers In February

RUTGERS (Hunterdon Co.)—You can have flowers in February... outdoors... if you grow witch hazel.

Think about planting some this spring.

Cultivars of Chinese witch-hazel (Hammamelis mollis), vernal witch-hazel (H. vernalis), Japanese witch-hazel (H. japonica) and H. x intermedia bloom in winter and early spring. The unusual, delicate flowers, often fragrant, whose colors range from yellows through reds, might be called "inconspicuous" if they appeared during spring or summer. But they are very appealing in the leafless landscape of January, February, and March. Some cultivars, developed for heavy flowering, could rival forsythia. The twisted, ribbon-like petals curl up tightly during very cold weather, so the blooms often lasts for several weeks.

The witch-hazels are large plants (mature heights ranging up to 20 feet, depending on species and cultivar) and should be placed in the landscape accordingly. They should be grown in full sun or light shade and do best in moist (but not wet) soil though they tolerate most conditions except very dry ones.

The plants are also valuable for fall foliage color, the medium to dark green of summer giving way to potentially spectacular autumn yellows, oranges, reds and purples, depending on species and cultivar. Witch-hazels are essentially free from serious problems. A leaf gall and a bud gall may occasionally be disfiguring.

Michael A. Dirr, discussing H.x intermedia in his Manual of Woody Landscape Plants, says "Why these plants are not in greater use is beyond me. They are lovely maintenance-free plants." He recommends all the witch-hazels.

Two interrelated factors have probably limited the use of these plants: lack of familiarity (lack of demand) and limited availability (due to limited market). A third factor may be that witch-hazels, probably most known by the native species H. virginiana (a valuable, fall-blooming plant) might be considered "too common" for use in the landscape. Some witch-hazels are available in mail order catalogs.

York Co. 4-H Beef Holds Banquet

YORK (York Co.) — The York Co. 4-H Beef Club recently held their annual banquet at the Seven Valleys Fire Hall.

The guests of honor that evening were Mr. & Mrs. William Rankin of Abbottstown. They were honored for their contributions, hard work, and support to the 4-H Beef Club over the years.

The York County 4-H Beef members also recognized and honored the buyers that supported them at their annual roundup and the 1991 PA State Farm Show.

Also honored that evening was Brenda Walter of Airville for her contribution to the 4-H Livestock Program by coaching the Junior and Senior Livestock Team.

Adams Co. Honors 4-H'ers

International 4-H Youth Exchange: Darlene Resh, left, Adams County 4-H program assistant, presents a certificate to Janet Ludwig, York Springs; Shelley Brodbeck, Earl Linebaugh, and Rita Brodbeck, East Berlin; and Jim and Joann Boyer, East Berlin. A certificate of appreciation was presented to each family in recognition of their hosting an IFYE this past summer. Festivities were conducted at the 75th anniversary of the Adams County Extension Association's annual meeting.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Outstanding first year 4-H Beef Club member. Charles Sherman, Abbottstown, 4-H Beef Club organizational leader congratulates Levi Bream, Gardners, as the 1990 Adams County 4-H Beef Club first year outstanding member. Levi was honored by the club leaders for his involvement in the club this past year. The honor was presented at the club's annual buyer's appreciation banquet.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Lebanon Co. Sheep 4-H Club

The Lebanon County Sheep 4-H Club held a meeting on Monday, February 4, 1991 at the extension building.

Alice Smith, president, welcomed families and encouraged the new members to be sure to fill out their registration forms for this year at the well-attended meeting.

The meeting was highlighted by several talks and demonstrations, beginning with Amy Smith's demonstration on "The Basic Equipment Needed to Groom a Market Lamb for the Fair." Becky Klienfelter followed by a talk on "Rate of Gain."

Mrs. Polly Biagotti gave a special presentation leaning toward first-time 4-H members of the Sheep Club on the "Easiest Method of Choosing a Market Lamb for the Fair." She also discussed types of feed and necessary health precautions.

The livestock banquet will be held on March 12 at the Prescott Fire Company banquet hall.

OPPORTUNITY DAIRY SYSTEMS DEALERSHIP

Topline Dairy Systems, a progressive milking equipment company with a national sales base has created innovative, profitable equipment for dairymen. Out of dedication to this goal, Topline has developed a complete line of dairy farm equipment and products with proven performance and reliability.

Topline is interested in interviewing dealership candidates with the following qualifications:

- Leadership qualities
- Desire to operate and manage their own business
- Honest and reliable with high integrity.
- Sincere interest in the business of dairy farming and genuine desire to assist dairymen.
- Electrical and mechanical skills.
- Financial capability for modest start-up investment.
- Business management and people skills.
- Strong desire to succeed.

Candidates selected will receive training in business management, marketing, sales, installation and service.

If you meet these qualifications, send a letter (all communications will be confidential) explaining your qualifications and experience to: Tony Fink, National Sales Manager.

ALUMINUM FOIL INSULATION GUARANTEED FOR LIFE

Direct factory to you sale on 1 million square feet of lifetime Radiant Barrier aluminum foil reflective insulation. Designed for poultry & livestock buildings, metal buildings, hog farms, horse barns, cold storage houses, etc... Update & insulate your buildings. Makes a cleaner & healthier environment, lower mortality rate.You will never have to reinsulate again. Buy any amount for 23¢ a square foot while it lasts. Farmers, growers, contractors & dealers inquiries welcome.

10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER RADIANT BARRIER REFLECTIVE INSULATION

1) Our reflective insulation has an insulating value equivalent to conventional types of insulation 8 times as thick.
2) Completely eliminates condensation, even in metal buildings
3) Controls Heat - Keeps environment considerably cooler in Summer months and warmer in the Winter months. This will result in lower utility costs and healthier livestock.
4) Specially coated outer surfaces can take power washing.
5) Resistant to stains, mildew, chemicals, abrasions and animal waste.
6) Light reflective, provides a brighter work place with less lighting requirements.
7) Tough and durable, structurally very strong while still remaining flexible. Not affected by vermin, birds or any rodents.
8) Ease of installation and maintenance, there are no special clothing requirements needed like gloves, masks or eye protection. all you need is a staple gun and razor knife.
9) Our reflective insulation surpasses all building code requirements. Fire resistant NFPA class A. UBC class 1. Flame spread 25. Smoke density 15.
10) Our reflective insulation is not affected by moisture, so you will never have to reinsulate again. Radiant Barrier has been designed to last forever. A smart investment that will pay you forever.

PERFECT BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY DEALERS NEEDED

ENERGY WORLD, INC. is offering a rare opportunity for you to take part in the major expansion of our Radiant Barrier aluminum foil insulation dealer network program. We are currently expanding our national network of dealers and require serious representation in your area for the latest breakthrough in insulation that lowers the cost of heating and cooling any building unlike all other types of standard insulation.

If you have a strong desire for success we will put you on the road to financial freedom. There has never been a better time in history than NOW to get in on the ground floor of this explosive energy conservation business. The cost of heating and cooling is at an all time high, and is slated to rise even higher, which puts these easy to sell products at the forefront of all dynamic growth industries. The products are widely used, well known, and answer the needs of the residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural markets.

WE OFFER:

Wet brewers grain is more than a good feed. It's a good business ingredient.

Each day, up to 100,000 U.S. dairy cows feed on rations containing wet brewers grain. That's because their owners know it minimizes feed costs while it maximizes production.

Wet brewers grain is a high-protein feed ingredient. It's always fresh, because it's delivered directly to your dairy. It fits into most programs, is easy to handle, and easy to store.

Call us today. One of our professional feed consultants will help you work wet brewers grain into your ration, so you can make it a profitable ingredient for your business.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

The Chester County Conservation District is requesting bids for the construction of an Agricultural Waste Storage System to be funded in part by the Chesapeake Bay Program. Construction of this project is expected to begin during April, 1991. The site is located in West Sadsbury Township, Chester County.

Site showing is scheduled for 10:00 AM February 27, 1991. Prospective contractors will receive a bid package consisting of instructions to bidders, a sample contract form, the plans and specifications for the project and a bid sheet. Small and minority businesses and women's business enterprises are encouraged to respond to this invitation for bids.

Sealed bids will be accepted until the public bid opening at 10:00 AM on March 22, 1991, in the Chester County Conservation District office.

To obtain a bid package or more information contact the Chester County Conservation District at:

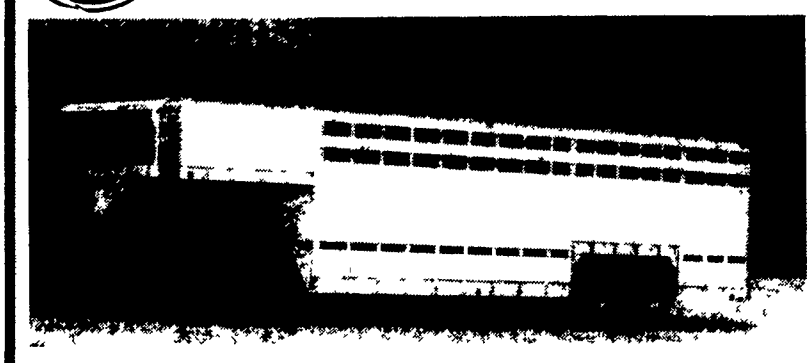
RUFF NECK



QUALITY TRAILERS FOR THE SERIOUS HAULER

- LIGHTWEIGHT- Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY- Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Foreign Biocontrol Agents Help Combat Weeds

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Special crews of helpful weed-fighting bugs and microorganisms are being imported into the United States in increasingly larger numbers. They are being recruited, tested, and shipped by U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists based in Rome, Italy.

The scientists shipped to the United States 33 times more weed enemies in 1990 than 1980, according to a new report by USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Insects, mites, and pathogens are tested overseas and in this country, and then released as natural or biological controls to devour or otherwise control alien weeds that infest U.S. range, pasture, and field crops.

"The growth in weed biocontrol shipments has been explosive," said Lloyd Knutson, a co-author of the report and director of ARS' Biological Control of Weeds Laboratory in Rome.

In 1980, he said, the Rome lab shipped 2,377 individuals of seven weed-attacking species. By 1990, the annual total jumped to 80,175 of 28 species. About 95 percent of the shipments went to the United States, said Knutson.

ARS scientists based in Rome "go back to the source," he said, to find biocontrols. Many weeds escaped these natural foes when they invaded the U.S. from origins in Europe, western and central Asia, Africa or the Middle East.

"We've stepped up the hunt for natural enemies as alternatives to chemical herbicides," Knutson said. "Herbicides account for about 80 percnt of U.S. pesticide use, and some of them potentially can injure subsequent crops or move into ground water." In some areas, weeds are showing resistance to the chemicals, he said.

Weeds on the Rome lab's "most wanted" list include several range and pasture pests — leafy spurge, yellow starthistle, knapweeds, and musk thistle — and field bindweed, which infests cropland and grain fields. Thirteen insect and mite species have been shipped to the United States to combat these weeds, Knutson said. Rome scientists also test rusts and other microorganisms that are natural enemies of weeds.

Since the Rome lab opened in 1959, the scientists have worked on 26 species of U.S. weeds and more than 60 candidate biological control agents, resulting in the establishment of 17 species attacking 15 weeds. Substantial control of musk thistle, puncture vine, Jamaica feverplant, tansy ragwort and skeleton weed has been achieved, and several other target weeds are under increasing stress by natural enemies introduced by the laboratory scientists.

"Today," said Knutson, "the idea of using natural enemies is more familiar, but most people don't realize that biocontrol candidates come down the gangplank only after years of research in the United States and overseas. You have to be a combination of Sherlock Holmes and Mary Poppins to find a biocontrol insect and determine how to get the best results from it."

When explorers find a natural enemy, its identity is pinned down by scientists at the ARS Systematic Entomology Laboratory in Beltsville, Md., or by other taxonomists.

"We have to be sure that we know exactly which species we're studying. We can't have crop or endangered plants put at risk by a different biocontrol species that might prefer them to a target weed," Knutson said.

Rome scientists run several kinds of tests to make sure the potential biocontrol agent won't assault valuable plants. Also, the control can't harbor diseases or parasites that could harm beneficial insects such as honey bees.

The scientists also determine what parts of a weed a biocontrol attacks — seed, flowers, leaves, roots or other parts — and examine the biocontrol's life cycle and preferred habitat. "These biocontrols are our babies! We know what they like to eat and where they like to be," said ARS entomologist Rouhollah Sobhian. Sobhian is employed by the Rome lab and works most of the year in a substation in Thessaloniki, Greece.

In 1981, Sobhian discovered Eustenopus villosus weevils eating the developing seeds of yellow starthistle weeds in Greece. Yellow starthistle, the report said, "entered North America from Eurasia and is particularly noxious in the western states, infesting mainly rangelands, but also fields of wheat, oats, barley" and other crops.

Knutson said that new weed biocontrols like E. villosus require an import permit for studies or releases in this country. This "passport," from USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, is obtained only after a special review board rigorously evaluates the research results and release plans.

Biocontrols traveling to the U.S. on commercial airline flights are shipped inside a comfortable, secure container. Sometimes, a scientist will hand-carry boxes of biocontrols.

Nine years of research by Sobhian and Luca Fornasari of the Rome lab were required before the E. villosus weevils were given a permit and shipped for further studies to ARS entomologist Charles E. Turner in Albany, Calif. Turner and cooperating scientists released the weevils last summer in California, Oregon, Washington, and Idaho. E. villosus is the fourth natural enemy of starthistle discovered by Sobhian and released in the United States. Later this year, a fifth one — a weevil — may be released by Albany scientists.

Newly imported biocontrols are tested further as needed by U.S. scientists and then multiplied and released to go to work on weeds. Weed biocontrol is a joint venture of scientists in ARS and many cooperating institutions in the U.S. and abroad, according to the report. Much of the work involves ARS scientists in Albany; Bozeman, Mont.; Temple, Texas; Frederick, Md.; an APHIS facility in Mission, Texas, that mass-rears insects by the millions; and many universities and state agencies.

Meridian Lowers Commercial, Ag Lending Rates

READING (Berks Co.)— Meridian Bancorp, Inc., parent company of Meridian Bank, Delaware Trust Company and the First National Bank of Pike County, announced that it has lowered its national commercial rate (NCR) to 9 percent.

Meridian's NCR had been set at 9.5 percent since Jan. 2, 1991.

In addition, Meridian lowered its ag lending rate, a lending rate the company has provided for farmers for 10 years, from 9.5 percent to 9 percent.

Workshops Benefit Grain Producers

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Grain producers will learn about the marketing skills they need to prosper in the 1990s at upcoming workshops in southeastern Pennsylvania.

A grain marketing workshop is being offered on Wednesday, March 6 at the Days Inn Conference Center near Allentown and repeated on Thursday, March 7 at the Cochranville Fire Hall in Chester County

Both sessions begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude by 4:00 p.m Cost for the first attendee from each farm or family is $15.

The purpose of these meetings is to help farmers who sell and buy grain make better deals in the marketplace with selling tools such as you put and call options, the futures market, and forward contracts. These tools help reduce the farmers' risks in buying and selling grains and increase overall profits.

The workshop presenters are specialists with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension who have conducted similar sessions throughout their state. They also developed a grain marketing handbook in 1989, which will be given to each farm operator attending the workshops.

What is unique about the Maryland approach is the concept of voluntary grain marketing clubs through which farmers trade on their own and learn more about the complexity of grain pricing and trading. There are eight such clubs in Maryland.

"Farmers will get better returns in grain when they make use of all the choices available to them in the marketplace," said Jeff Patton, extension marketeing agent in Allentown, and workshop coorganizer. "Those farmers just south of us frequently get an extra hundred dollars per load of corn, soybeans, or wheat sold due to smart marketing. These workshops give area farmers a chance to see how Maryland counterparts come out ahead."

Another feature of the workshop will be the demonstration of commodity price reports, including an up-to-the minute service using a small satellite dish.

The seminars, a joint effort between Cooperative Extension of Penn State and the University of Maryland, are also supported by Keystone Farm Credit, F.M. Brown's Sons, and Data Transmission Network.

For a registration flyer or more information, contact Jeff Patton at the Lehigh County Extension Office (215) 391-9840 or Alan Strock at the Chester County Extension Office (215) 696-3500.

Catalog Shows How To Improve Tractor Safety

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.)— Tractor rollover accidents kill 300 to 400 farmers every year, ranking as the single most common cause of fatal farm injuries. A new catalog produced in Marshfield, WI, now offers farmers a tool to help reduce the risk of rollover accidents.

"Rollover Protection Directory: A Guide to Tractor Roll Bars and Other Rollover Protective Structures," published and distributed through the Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center and the National Farm Medicine Center, can point farmers to resources to help them equip their tractors to reduce the chance of rollover fatalities.

The catalog, which lists suppliers of rollover protective structures and roll-protected cabs, was compiled by the Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center with the financial assistance of the Office of Rural Health Policy, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

When used with a seat belt, a properly manufacturered and installed rollover protective structure (ROPS) can protect a farmer from serious injury or death in case of an overturn. Without ROPS, fatalities occurs in 40 percent of overturn accidents. Since 1969, there has not been a single fatality resulting from an overturn in which the operator remained in a rollover protective structure.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers has recommended since 1985 that all new tractors be equipped with rollover protection. However, many farmers own tractors built before 1985 that are not equipped with rollover protection.

A complimentary copy of the directory has been sent to local extension offices and to agricultural cooperatives throughout the U.S. Those interested in obtaining information about the availability of ROPS for their tractors should contact their local county extension agent or cooperative manager.

The Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center and the National Farm Medicine Center are programs of the Marshfield Medical Research Foundation, a research arm of Marshfield Clinic, Marshfield, WI.

Farmers Urge President To Continue Soviet Credit

ST. LOUIS, Mo.— Asserting potential immediate and long-term damage to commodity markets, the American Soybean Association joined 17 other farm and commodity organizations in urging President Bush not to rescind agricultural credits recently provided to the Soviet Union.

"Such a step would be devastating to all of U.S. agriculture, and again call into question this nation's reliability as a trading partner," said ASA President Merle N. "Buck" McCann.

Of the $1 billion in U.S. credit guarantees recently made available to the Soviets, $900 million was allocated for the purchase of specific U.S. agricultural commodities. The remaining $100 million is to be allocated in the near future. Of the $900 million allocated, $639 million in sales already have been consumated by private exporters and registered with the Department of Agriculture as of January 14.

"Certainly U.S. farmers strongly oppose the conduct of the Soviet Union in dealing with its satellite nations," said McCann. "However, we believe it is of paramount importance that existing commercial contracts be respected and that the credit guarantees which underlie the contracts not be rescinded retroactively."

McCann said farmers' concern is not limited only to sales that have taken place thus far.

In a jointly prepared letter to President Bush, the cooperating organizations said, "We believe the United States should unequivocally stand behind its commitment to provide the full $1 billion in credit as announced on January 8.

Land-Use Myths May Hamper Resolutions

NEWARK, Del. — Clarifying our values and beliefs about land use, as well as examining myths, may reveal a better way to deal with land-use issues as they arise, according to Dr. Gerald Cole.

The University of Delaware Department of Food and Resource Economics chair addressed the Friends of Agriculture Breakfast on January 24 in Dover, Del.

"We all ask questions about the future of Delaware agriculture," he said. "How can it become more viable, yet at the same time more resource-protective? What about encroaching urban development? Where are we headed?"

Cole challenged the audience to think in terms of land-use values and beliefs, and myths about control measures. The beliefs and values of a society underlie its land-use control measures, he said. Cole used the Native American concept of stewardship to illustrate how the underlying beliefs and values of that society shaped its land use. Stewardship helps prevent abuse and irreversible damage to natural resources, and implies public trust.

The belief and values of property rights and ownership shape ethics of modern land use, Cole said. He added that rights to land must be balanced by the responsibility to the land and to society.

"Delaware has several groups who want to decide the use of the land," Cole said. "Each has its own private interests."

Cole says these groups are as follows: the group interested in maintaining status quo; the group that supports economic growth for profit; an environmentalist group that sees any growth as a threat; and the "social justice" group that perceives land-use policies are designed only for the benefit of middle- and upper-income groups.

When examining the objectives of any of the groups, Cole says Delawareans must consider where adoption of the underlying values will eventually lead. Then they must decide how to resolve conflicting interests.

Cole noted that the most prevalent myth about land-use control is that legislative and judicial processes are the best way to reduce or resolve conflicts. In fact, conflicts may be decided through legislation, the free market or direct negotiation.

He noted that issues are resolved in the legislature by lobbying and in the free market by price bidding. Cole added that laws and courts can result in adversity between different interest groups and are costly in terms of dollars and numbers of people involved. In addition, society can't be certain of he permanency of decisions.

"Many rural and urban conflicts can be resolved through negotiation," Cole said.

As a final note, he cautioned against relying on computer models for land use that don't include the nonquantifiable variables of values, beliefs, and intangible costs.

"Remember that computer modeling is only a tool," he said. "Modeling often focuses attention on a solution before the problem is defined."

In working toward acceptable resolutions of land-use conflicts, Cole said we must define what the problem is, then work together in a collaborative manner to find the solution.

"We need to set aside our myths to build a better land-use policy," he said.

Single copies of the Extension Circular #153, "Managing Rural-Urban Conflicts Through Negotiation," written by Cole and Gerald Vaughn, Cooperative Extension resource economics and policy specialist, are available on request. To request copies, call the department of food and resource economics at (302) 451-2511.

As part of the Grower Educational Seminar sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Cole will be discussing urban encroachment and its impact on the poultry industry on Tuesday, February 26, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. The seminar is free of charge, and will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Cole will speak from 10:45 a.m. to 11:15 a.m.

Meents Is APHA Service Director

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — John Meents of Jenera, Ohio, has been named Polled Hereford Association (APHA) member service director for the Northeast U.S.

Meents will work with Polled Hereford breeders in Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia, and West Virginia.

A native of Indiana, Meents is a 1978 graduate of Purdue University. He recently spent 10 years as a field representative for "Drovers Journal" and was earlier in field service for the American Yorkshire Club. He's had extensive experience in working with breeders of purebred cattle in developing the potential in their herds.

"We're fortunate to have John join our staff of professionals working with APHA members in their managing and marketing efforts," said APHA President Larry Heidebrecht. "His expertise in all areas will be a major factor in their continued Polled Hereford success."

John, his wife Peggy, and their three children live in Ohio.

Alternative Crops Help Farmers Look To Future

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Alternative agricultural crops — those which can be grown in addition to or in place of more conventional commodities — offer American farmers a number of ways to diversify their output, bolster their competitive advantage, and increase their income.

A recent article in the Agriculture Department's "Farmline" magazine explores the opportunities some U.S. farmers might find in floriculture, the greenhouse and nursery trade, and specialty commodities.

The floriculture and greenhouse and nursery sectors present farmers with several such possibilities. "Strong consumer demand has transformed the greenhouse and nursery industry into one of the fastest growing sectors in U.S. agriculture," said economist Doyle Johnson of USDA's Economic Research Service. Increasing population, higher disposable incomes, and changing lifestyles are fueling this growth.

"Individuals are buying more flowers, plants, trees, and shrubs to beautify their surroundings," Johnson said, "and so are businesses and governments working to enhance parks, highways, office buildings, hotels, and restaurants." Grower cash receipts for the nursery sector totaled more than $7 billion in 1989, excluding Christmas trees, seeds, and food crops grown under cover.

But Johnson explains that despite the stiff competition, domestic growers have an excellent chance to produce unusual flowers to satisfy customers' appetite for variety. Also, their nearness to regional markets gives these growers a distinct advantage over their foreign competitors, because it allows them to stay in tune with local market trends and deliver high-quality products swiftly and consistently. In 1989, U.S. growers sold 61 percent of the cut flowers and 87 percent of the cut cultivated greens.

Nursery products constitute the largest subsector in the greenhouse and nursery industry, accounting for roughly $4 billion (more than half) of its grower cash receipts in 1989. "Although many nurseries produce items typical of floriculture — cut flowers and potted and bedding plants — their mainstays are landscaping products," Johnson said.

Landscaping products include ornamental and shade trees, evergreens, shrubs, hedges, and groundcovers; fruit and nut trees and berry plants, for commercial and home use; plants of all sorts used for windbreaks and other conservation purposes; and seedlings for Christmas tree production and reforestation of commercial, public, or private woodlands and forests.

Of the 20 States having significant commercial bulb production, Washington, Oregon, California, New Jersey, Michigan, and Florida are the most prolific — each reported at least $1.5 million in farm sales in the 1987 Census of Agriculture. Production takes place in greenhouses and other facilities where air temperatures and humidity favor plant grotwh.

The flower, vegetable, and nursery seed subsector is dominated by several large seed corporations. Because seed production — especially flower seed production — is very labor-intensive, U.S. companies have moved many of their operations to Central and South America, the Far East, and Africa to trim labor costs and alleviate other production problems. Flower, vegetable garden, and nursery seed imports have almost tripled since 1983, reaching $126 million in 1989.

Total U.S. exports of greenhouse and nursery products rose from $81.4 million in 1986 to an estimated $143.7 million in 1989. And while Johnson expects to see moderate growth in all product categories, he anticipates that proposed reductions in European tariffs and tariff barriers will hasten demand for U.S. cut flowers, cut greens, and live plants.

Demand for Exotic Produce

Specialty commodities include fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, essential oils, and herbs. Cash receipts from farm marketings of fruits, vegetables, and tree nuts increased at an average annual rate of 5.6 percent from 1973 to reach $17.1 billion in 1987.

Although domestic fruit and vegetable production is expanding, much of the growth is occurring in exotic produce, such as the carambola (star fruit), jicama, chayote, guava, cherimoya, and tomatillo.

In addition to Florida and California, production of new kinds of fruits and vegetables is moving to such unlikely places as Arizona, New York, New Jersey, and Maryland. Buckley explains that growers are beginning to relocate to these States because their large ethnic populations are proximity to major markets help to ensure demand for these unusual items.

However, Buckley cautions that the geographic and climatic constraints inherent in fruit and vegetable production will limit U.S. expansion. Moreover, well-established supply channels for many traditional fruits and vegetables complicate new growers' entry into the system, because the current participants have built up credit histories and set up long-term contract arrangements.

Farm Bill Offers Incentives

The economists explain that the success of any alternative agricultural enterprise depends on a long-range commitment to its research, development, and commercialization. Agricultural programs and policies can be modified to encourage innovation, and certain provisions of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 may prompt producers to explore some alternatives.

"The bill's increased funding for competitive research grants offers greenhouse and nursery producers their best hope of generating new crops," said Johnson, "and the America the Beautiful Foundation, established to promote tree planting, will directly benefit nurseries."

In addition, the Acreage Reduction Program for major crops such as wheat, corn, and cotton has been altered to allow producers flexibility to grow most crops except fruits or vegetables on 15 percent of their crop acreage bases — the triple base option. The bill also authorizes a new oilseed marketing loan that establishes a loan rate of $5.02 per bushel for soybeans and 8.9 cents per pound for sunflowerseed, rapeseed, canola, flax, mustard seed, and safflower.

Spreaders Feature Hydraulic Conveyor Drives

MOLINE, Ill. — The new 370 manure spreader from John Deere brings John Deere conveyor spreader reliability and productivity features to a 245-bushel spreader.

John Deere conveyor spreaders all feature hydraulic conveyor drives and V-belt beater drives that increase reliability through simplicity.

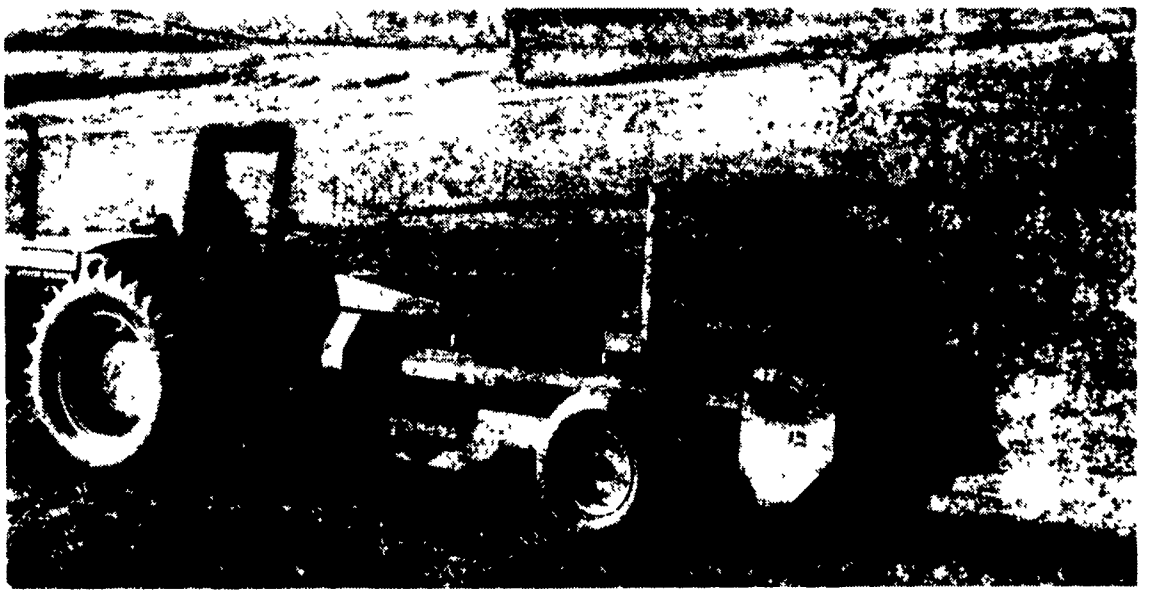
Hydraulic conveyor drives have fewer moving parts than mechanical drives. To further enhance conveyor reliability, the 370 uses T-rod conveyor chain that has greater tensile strength, reduces wear on sprockets, and will not separate under slack chain conditions.

By providing built-in overload protection, the V-belt beater drive on the 370 eliminates the need for clutch disks, ratchets and shear pins that can cause downtime on other spreaders.

Productivity is built into the 370 beater design with a 30.5-inch diameter main beater that is 25 percent larger than the beaters on many other spreaders. The large diameter helps produce high tip speeds — up to 2,977 feet per minute. High tip speeds increase material breakup and provide a fine-spread pattern. Six conveyor speeds, which the operator can select from the tractor seat, handle various unloading requirements.

Features that contribute to the 370's durability include a fiberglass reinforced plastic floor, resin impregnated side panels, and heat-treated bolt-on beater combs.

Options include a hydraulic endgate, upper beater, endpan, hydraulic diverter valve, and tire choices.



The 245-bu. John Deere 370 manure spreader features a hydraulic conveyor drive and V-belt beater drive that provide increased reliability through simplicity of design. The large-diameter main beater with a tip speed up to 2,977 fpm breaks material into a fine-spread pattern.

Need For Modification Of Poultry Housing Increases

Dennis E. Buffington
Professor and Head
Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department
Penn State University

The ever-increasing competitiveness of the poultry business has increase the need for environmental modification systems for poultry houses to more economically produce meat and eggs.

The need for environmental modifications of structures has also increased as more poultry producers are using high-density confinement houses. Today, environmental modifications play a major factor in determining whether a poultryman realizes a profit or loss.

The three influential factors in poultry production are nutrition, disease, and environment. These three factors are not isolated factors but rather interacting factors. It is the combined effects of these three factors that influence how closely an animal produces to its genetic potential.

The environmental factor is the combined effect of climatic environment, structural environment, and social environment.

The climatic environment refers to the microenvironment surrounding the animal that includes the temperature, humidity, pressure, gaseous environment, ventilation, light, and noise.

The structural environment refers to the materials with which the birds have contact, including wall construction materials, floor, litter, feeding equipment, watering equipment, and cage materials.

Factors such as bird density, number of birds per cage, size variation of birds in a given group, etc. all contribute to the social environment.

Again, please note that the climatic, structural, and social factors all interact to create the environmental complex.

For modern control technology to be applied to modifying the environment in any animal housing unit, the structure and its environmental control systems must be properly designed, constructed, operated, and maintained.

The engineering design considerations that must be evaluated for a poultry structure include:

- Type of structure (gable-roofed, flat-roofed, high-rise, etc.).
- Length/width/height relationships.
- Building orientation.
- Construction materials.
- Environmental control systems used within the structure.
- Materials handling systems.
- Waste management system.

All of the structural design considerations will dictate the efficiency of an environmental housing system. In addition, after the structure itself has been designed, it is imperative to design the environmental system within the structure.

The pertinent design considerations for environmental systems include 1) bird density; 2) bird weight; 3) management style; 4) air distribution; 5) ventilation system characteristics; and 6) heating and/or cooling system operating characteristics.

Economic analysts will dictate what type of environmental housing systems are feasible. In making such economic analysis, it must be stressed that environmental housing systems as they exist today will be improved as more engineering inputs are devoted to poultry housing.

COMPACT DIESELS

The new Ford compact diesels give you more power than you'd expect from a compact diesel. They offer a bigger average cubic-inch displacement (CID) than leading competitors so the engine doesn't have to work as hard to generate its horsepower. And that means lower rated engine speeds, less wear and noise and better fuel efficiency.

Stop in and see the new Ford compact diesels. There's one just right for you.

National Pork Board Supports Checkoff Increase

DES MOINES, Iowa— The National Pork Board has endorsed a proposed increase in the pork industry checkoff to .35 of one percent of the market value of each animal.

The present checkoff rate, in effect since inception of the national legislative pork checkoff in 1986, is .25 of one percent of the market value of each animal.

The checkoff generated approximately $30 million in 1990. It is estimateed an increase to .35% would increase checkoff revenues by $10 to $12 million annually.

Pork producers selling breeding stock, feeder pigs or market hogs are required by law to participate in the checkoff. Importers of hogs, pork and pork producers are also required by law to participate.

The Pork Board, at a regularly scheduled meeting Jan. 28 in Des Moines, IA, agreed that the proposed increase in the checkoff rate to .35% is needed "to expand programs deemed critical in reaching the industry's states goals through the year 2000."

The National Pork Board took this position after analyzing past performance of programs and future needs to address industry issues.

The National Pork Producers (Pork Act) Delegate Body, comprised of approximately 160 pork producers nominated from each state, and importers selected by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, will meet March 7-9 in Denver, CO, and has the sole authority to increase the checkoff rate. The rate of checkoff is currently being discussed at the state and local level so that producers can be informed and provide input into the decision process.

In making its recommendation, the National Pork Board said it is a strong supporter of the principles and goals adopted as the pork industry's long-range strategic plan in 1989.

"We are confident that the producer funds generated through the legislative checkoff since 1986 have been utilized in the most efficient and effective manner possible," said Hilman Schroeder, a Wisconsin pork producer and president of the National Pork Board.

"The objective of the Pork Board since its inception has been to make the most effectiv efficient use of available ch funds," Schroeder said. "That objective will remain in place with whatever checkoff rate the National Pork Producers (Pork Act) Delegate Body may adopt."

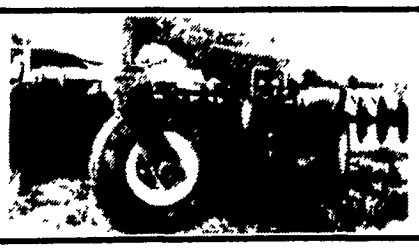
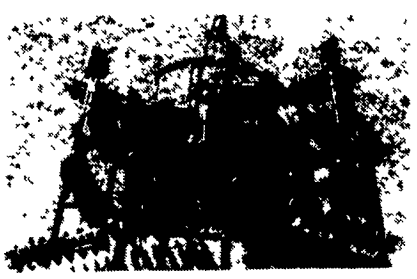
BINKLEY & HURST BROS., INC. HAS ALL YOUR HEAVY DUTY TILLAGE NEEDS!

SUNFLOWER SUPERIORITY — PROVIDES THE QUALITY YOU DEMAND

TAKE A LOOK!



Gauge Wheels A trademark on all flexible Sunflower discs is front mounted gauge wheels. This important feature prevents the front gangs of the wing frame from gouging, buckling or cutting deeper than the other gangs, promoting a level, ridge or furrow-free field The heavy-duty gauge wheel features a 5-bolt hub and 8.00x10 ply tire and tube.



DOUBLE OFFSET DESIGN

Eliminates center ridging while cutting the entire width at an even depth Self-leveling hitch provides fore & aft leveling at any working depth

GANG CONSTRUCTION

¼ "x24" or 22" Blades are available on 1¼ " stress proof standard gang shafts Gangs are hydraulically torgued to 1200+ lbs and are spring loaded to insure maximum trouble free acres Heavy duty scrapers complete the gang assembly making it truly SUNFLOWER SUPERIOR

We Also Have All Wheel Drive Units In Stock

EXCLUSIVE INTELLIGENCE CENTER KEEPS YOU FULLY INFORMED

The exclusive Case IH Intelligence Center (optional) provides readouts in English or metric of engine, PTO or ground speeds.

Separate warning systems monitor pressure and filter conditions as well as critical operator functions. Bar graphs display fuel level, coolant temperature, voltage and exhaust temperature. Visual and audible signals alert you when attention is needed, while a green light signals "systems normal".

The Intelligence Center's electronics can determine acres covered per hour, cumulative acreage count and elapsed time.

Unverferth Snap-Ons: more of what you're looking for from front wheel drive.

Research proves that surrounding your Mechanical Front Wheel Drive (MFWD) tractor with duals lets you farm up to 46.6% more acres on 1/3 less fuel.* And with Unverferth Snap-On duals front and rear, you make the most of MFWD versatility and economy because installation is a fast, easy, one-man job.

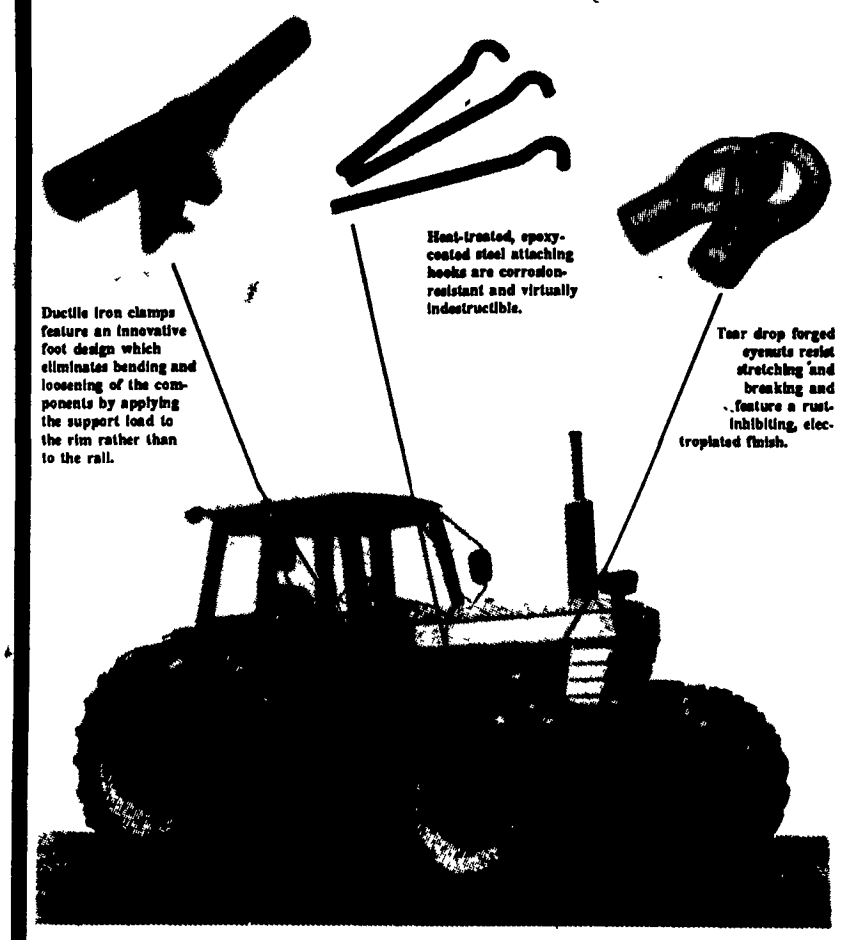
With their patented foot design, Snap-On clamps slide onto a ring which is continuously welded to the dual rim. Specially designed eyenuts are threaded onto the original tractor wheel and joined to the clamps with attaching hooks. Engaging the clamps locks the dual to the original wheel for a system that's secure, yet easy to remove.

* Actual percentage may vary with field conditions.

Operating Guidelines

As in all dual wheel applications, Snap-On duals should be maintained at lower air pressure than the original tractor tires.

To remove Snap-On duals, simply position one clamp at top center and remove all other clamps. Then, using the furnished handle for additional leverage, disengage the remaining clamp to loosen the dual.



Ductile iron clamps feature an innovative foot design which eliminates bending and loosening of the components by applying the support load to the rim rather than to the rail.
Heat-treated, epoxy-coated steel attaching hooks are corrosion-resistant and virtually indestructible.
Tear drop forged eyenuts resist stretching and breaking and feature a rust-inhibiting, electroplated finish.

We Stock Circatoc Duals

ALSO Available Axle Duals

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

- ★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
- ★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
- ★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.
* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

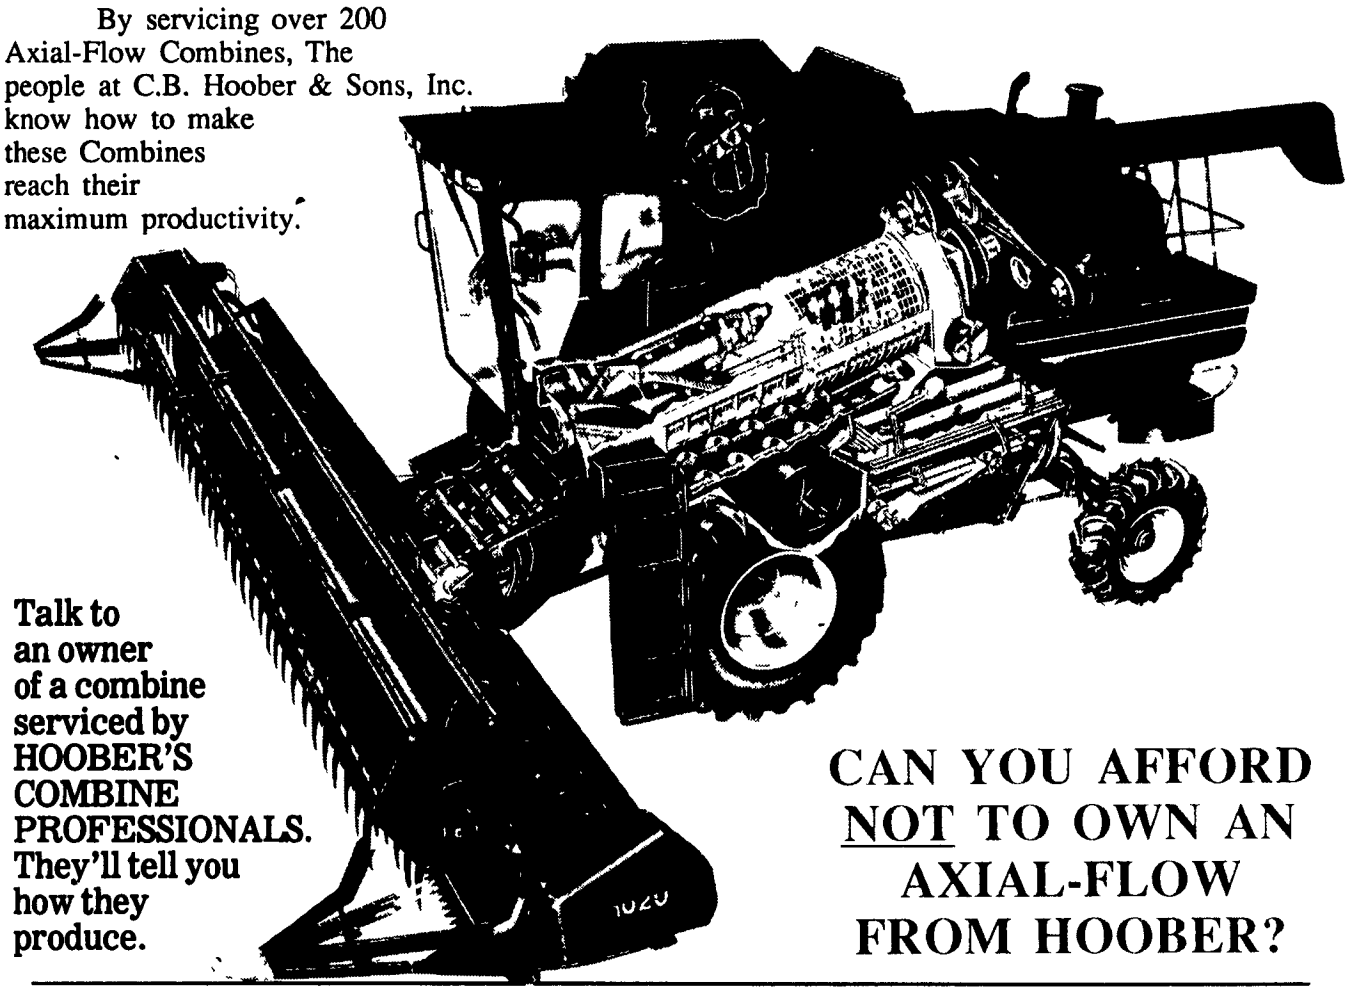
HOOBER PEOPLE MAKE AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES PRODUCE FOR YOU!

By servicing over 200 Axial-Flow Combines, The people at C.B. Hoober & Sons, Inc. know how to make these Combines reach their maximum productivity.



Talk to an owner of a combine serviced by HOOBER'S COMBINE PROFESSIONALS. They'll tell you how they produce.

CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO OWN AN AXIAL-FLOW FROM HOOBER?

The Reason Axial-Flow Combines Are More Productive - THE ROTOR!

The Single Rotor design is SIMPLE!

Only a single rotor to thresh and separate. Eliminates the straw-walker assemblies common to conventional combines. Less moving parts means less maintenance, less downtime.

The Single Rotor Design is HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN

Multiple threshing action of axial-flow reduces kernal damage and holds elevator dockage to a minimum.

The Single Rotor Design is MORE PRODUCTIVITY!

When your crops are ripe and ready to harvest, Axial-Flow allows you to move faster than with a conventional combine. The rotor's large throat means no bottle-necks up front. You'll be able to harvest at top speed for maximum productivity, even on side-hills.

It's A Dirty Sale But Somebody's Got To Have It.

Save Up To $200.

If you're a serious gardener or in love with fine machinery, here's a real clod buster A BCS tiller It's the fastest selling tiller in America And no matter which of our models you choose, you'll find features that set it apart from all others

Like electronic ignition And rear mounted tines that turn almost 300 times a minute And all-gear transmissions, not belts and chains And with attachments our tiller can become a chipper/shredder, a cutter bar mower for weeds and brush, a snow blower, and much more

Right now you can save up to $200, depending on which model tiller you choose Plus a free hiller/furrower with the purchase of a BCS tractor and tiller But the sale ends June 30th So hurry Because once people get the dirt on this sale, they're going to clean us out

With this concentrate feeding system LESS MEANS MORE

Dairymen report a 7-8% increase in milk yield with 5% less concentrate input with the new VA 500.

Each cow's ration is fed automatically according to her individual lactation curve. Feeding for production means high producing cows get more. Every cow pays her way. The whole herd can be housed together and you don't need complicated computer support systems for operation.

- Our new share is one-half inch wider, and features a thicker point and more suck to dig deeper, faster.
- New profile straight-cut shin contains more steel, protects frog better.

These new metric plow shares and shins meet rigid John Deere standards for quality, strength and durability — yet cost 25 to 30 percent less than previous designs! And, both wear far longer than competitive makes.

New John Deere share as low as $8.95

New John Deere shins start at $10.35

Breakthrough in spraying accuracy

CUSTOMER REBATES UP TO $1,100!
Call Triple H Equip. For Details...

Wasting chemical and yield on hills and headlands is a thing of the past with Vicon's new flow proportioning and boom compensation system. Application rate remains constant even when ground speed varies or individual boom sections are shut off. That means better coverage with lower input costs.

It is available on all Vicon trailer sprayers with tank capacities up to 785 U.S. gal. (3000 litres) and automatic stabilizing booms from 28' to 62'. There's also a choice of hydraulic or manual folding booms and a range of accessories that make crop spraying less of a chore.

When planning your forage programs this year, remember that your main objective is to "store the plant and remove it from storage in as good condition as possible." THE UPRIGHT SILO HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED IN ITS ABILITY TO DO THIS!!

As herds become larger and labor is becoming more costly and scarce, there is more need to cut time requirements for all parts of the operation. The silo, or a combination of silos can be a key in reducing time spent harvesting, storing, and feeding your herd. "A properly managed upright silo is one of the best investments that a dairy farmer can make." Your best choice is a POURED CONCRETE SOLLENBERGER SILO...

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check Your Silo Now For Rotten Staves. If You Have Been Using Your Silo For 10 To 15 Years For Either Corn Silage Or Haylage, It Is Time To SHOTCRETE.

WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

Check your silo for deteriorated concrete! If you have a 15 year old silo...get it fixed or insure it better! But don't wait until the last minute to have it repaired - Call in now for this seasons work list, our schedule is getting full. REMEMBER - your silo will not fall over when its empty - it will fall over when it is full. It cannot stand on deteriorated concrete.

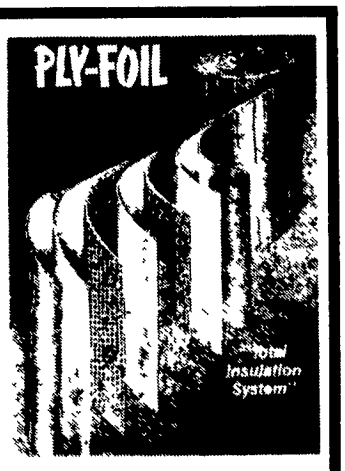
PLY-FOIL is a very efficient form of insulation. In application after application it has proven to be extremely effective at controlling heat gain/loss, thus significantly reducing heating and cooling costs. PLY-FOIL Insulation uses an aluminum foil to reflect up to 97% of the radiant heat.



PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

National Co-Op Chairman Says Industry Did Well In 1990

NASHVILLE, Tenn.— The chairman of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC), speaking to nearly 1,000 cooperative executives and farmer-directors, said while 1990 represented another highly successful year for the organization, major challenges still lay ahead.

"In particular," said Russell L. Hanlin, chief executive officer, Sunkist Growers, Inc., Van Nuys, CA, who is completing a two-year term as chairman of NCFC at its 62nd annual meeting here, "how to compete in a changing and increasingly competitive global economy is one of the greatest challenges we as a nation and an industry face."

To meet that challenge, Hanlin outlined, the council was successful in its efforts this past year in support of provisions contained in the 1990 farm bill aimed at protecting farm income, while allowing U.S. agriculture to compete more effectively in both the domestic and international marketplace.

At the same time, he added, the council continued to be very much involved in efforts to reach a new trade agreement under the Uruguay Round of the GATT. Such an agreement, it was stressed, must result in a "level playing field" for U.S. agriculture on a commodity-by-commodity basis.

"No agreement is better than a bad agreement," said the chairman.

NCFC President Wayne Boutwell said U.S. trade negotiators deserved high praise for not giving in to pressure to reach an agreement in late December in Brussels that "would have been espoecially damaging to U.S. agricultural interests." Negotiations are expected to continue this year.

In addition to increasing global competition, the council president also highlighted two other major trends affecting U.S. agriculture, including farmer cooperatives. These included continued pressures to reduce federal spending for farm programs because of the budget deficit and rising costs because of legislation and regulations relating to environmental concerns.

"Meeting all three challenges," Boutwell said, "will require all of us in agriculture and within this industry to work together as never before."

William A. Hiller, president and chief executive officer of Agway, Inc., Syracuse, N.Y., was elected chairman of the NCFC board to succeed Hanlin. Philip F. French, president and chief executive officer of Indiana Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Ic., Indianapolis, IN, was named one of three vice chairmen, succeeding Hiller.

Re-elected vice chairmen were C.T. (Terry) Fredrickson, chief executive officer of the Farm Credit Bank of St. Louis, and Gary Hanman, chief executive officer of Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., Springfield, MO.

Woodlot Management Workshop Set

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — The second annual Woodlot Management Workshop for forest landowners will be held Saturday, March 23, 1991 in Allen Hall at Mansfield University, Mansfield, Pa. from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The workshop is co-sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, Mansfield University, the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, the Society of American Foresters Northern Hardwood Chapter, Pennsylvania Hardwood Development Council, Northern Tier Hardwood Association, and Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry. Topics and speakers include:

• "Basics of Forestry," Mike Palko, service forester, Bureau of Forestry.

• "Erosion and Sedimentation Considerations," Howard Rutledge, conservationist, USDA Soil Conservation Service.

• "White Tail Deer, Pennsylvania's Most Controversial Animal" video, Dr. Robert Hansen, area extension forester, Penn State Cooperative Extension.

• "Gypsy Moth in Tioga County," Gary Laudermilch, entomologist, Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry.

Lunch will be served at Marks Brothers following the workshop. This is a good time to talk with the individual speakers and ask them questions. One category point toward recertification of a pesticide license may be available.

Registration cost for this meeting is $9, which includes lunch and is due March 11. Checks should be made payable to Bradford County Cooperative Extension and mailed to Woodlot Management Workshop, Penn State Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 69, Towanda, PA 18848.

Registration brochures can be obtained from the Bradford County Extenion Office, (717) 265-2896, Tioga County Extension Office (717) 724-1906, or the Bureau of Forestry office in Wellsboro (717) 724-2868.

Legislation Will Help Research Programs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Citing the extraordinary success of Pennsylvania agriculture commodity research and marketing programs, Rep. Kenneth J. Cole, D-Adams, has introduced legislation to further streamline the process for creating and continuing such programs.

"The legislation was introduced at the request of the six marketing boards operating in Pennsylvania, in particular the Apple Marketing Board, with whom I recently met to discuss the proposal," said Cole. "The marketing boards spend several million dollars a year of their own money for agriculture promotion and research."

"It is important to have this program for agricultural products grown in the Commonwealth," said Cole. "The programs administered by producers represent some of the most successful promotion programs we have."

In 1987, Rep. John Broujos and Cole sponsored legislation that put the decision-making authority for producer-financed programs back into the hands of producers. It gave farmers and growers more power to control marketing of their own commodities. Since that legislation became law, the number of commodity marketing boards in Pennsylvania has doubled.

Currently, to reauthorize a marketing program, each board must receive a 2/3 majority vote of the membership. Under Cole's proposed legislation, the number of votes required to reauthorize a marketing program would change from two-thirds to a simple majority.

N.Y. Beef Cattlemen Hold Meeting

CORNING, N.Y. — A highlight of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association (NYBCA) annual meeting held at the Corning Hilton Inn on February 8 and 9 was the presentation of the Cattleman of the Year Award to Peter Comerford, livestock grading specialist with the Department of Ag and Markets.

Comerford is a 33-year veteran of the department and has worked very closely over the years to help beef producers develop their herds and market their calves.

The Sale Committee, chaired by Jim Lee of southwestern division, met Friday morning and set the sale dates for the year. This was followed by the IRM program, coordinated by Dr. Danny Fox of Cornell University. The educational program also had Dr. Donald Lein speaking on animal health update, as well as Lee Kraszewski; Caroline Rasmussen of Cornell; Darrell Emmick, grasslands specialist; and Tom Gallagher of Albany's Cooperative Extension; and Fox participating in the various segments of IRM.

Friday's banquet featured Senator John R. Kuhl, Jr. of Hammondsport who spoke on the proposed state budget and its effect.

The New York Cattlewomen met Friday for their business meeting and again Saturday for the election of officers. Eldora Benson of Potsdam was re-elected president; Elaine Swiler of Cameron, vice president; Winnie Clark of Clinton, secretary; Jaren Miner of Honeoye Falls, treasurer; and Fay Briggs of Deposit, membership chairperson.

Breed associations also had their annual meetings Friday. The N.Y. Charolais Association selected Eric Scott of Hannibal, president; Jim Brown of Seneca, vice president; and Michele Scott of Hannibal, secretary-treasurer.

The N.Y. Simmental Association kept Ken White of Groton as president, Ron Moulton of Tarrytown vice president and Jeanne White of Groton, secretary-treasurer. Directors of the group are Nick DiCerbo of Olean, Harold Maynard of Campbell and John Palmer of Stanfordville.

The N.Y. Angus Association elected Dewey Hauman of Penn Yan, president; Mallory Mort of Ghent, vice president; Claire Lipsey of Earlville, secretary; and Carl Hinkle of Truxton, treasurer. Jim Wait of Auburn, Kathy Smith of Vernon Center, Dr. Wayne Gillis of Morrisville, and Dallas Woltemath of Craryville were elected directors. Carl McCullough of Germantown is adviser to the board.

The annual meeting of the NYBCA was held Saturday morning. Officers elected were Fred Zeiner of Morris, president; Donald Gray, springwater, vice president; Charles Boone of Westerlo, treasurer; and Shirley Brown of Addison, secretary.

The two-day event concluded with the awards luncheon for the presentation of the year-end awards. Raymond Strahan, Chairman, and Jerry Reed, executive director of the N.Y. Beef Industry Council, presented promotion plaques to members who had developed exceptional programs for beef promotions. Honored were Eldora Benson, Potsdam; Elaine Swiler, Cameron; Clyde Hotchkiss, Falconer; Henry Bono, Richmondville; Dawn Dennis, Penn Yan; Diane Martin, Carthage; Dwight Coso, Mohawk; and Larry Zuefle, of Sloansville.

Jake Martin, chairman of the membership drive, presented awards to Harold Maynard of Campbell, Ed Heath of Cortland, and Jim Brown of Seneca top winners. Also receiving awards were five county directors: Henry Bennett (Steuben), Ed Heath, Jim Brown, Fred Zeiner (Otsego), and Clyde Hotchkiss (Chautauqua).

Bill Greene, bull test director, announced high-indexing bull awards went to Bill Shoemaker of Buffalo Mills, Pa. for the Continental breed and to Jack Abrams of Livingston Manor for the British breed.

The state Youth Award went to Dan Hauman of Penn Yan. Dan also won a special award from the southern tier division, and the state award was presented by Henry Bennett of Hammondsport, who nominated Dan for his exceptional work.

Cooperative Extension Agent of the Year was Mike Baker of Cortland. His 2½ years in the area have been a succession of innovative programs. Helen Patton, chairperson of the central division, presented the award.

The President's Award, presented by Harold Maynard, outgoing president, went to Peggy Rockefeller of Tarrytown, owner of Hudson Pines Farm.

Equipment Operator Workshop Set

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The 36th annual Equipment Operator's Workshop has been scheduled for Thursday, February 28, 1991, in the auditorium of the Berks County Agricultural Center in Bern Township. The USDA Soil Conservation Service and the Berks County Conservation District jointly sponsor this event.

Presenters this year include DER Bureau of Dams & Waterways, UGI, Texas Eastern, Pennsylvania Land Improvement Contractors (PLICA), Morrissey Insurance, Pennsylvania Fish Commission, Pennsylvania One Call System, Bureau of Forestry, DER Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation, County Environmentalist, USDA Soil Conservation Service, and the Conservation District. This year the lunch will be sponsored by Plasterer Equipment Company of Lebanon, Pa.

Topics included in the program will be safety, computers, insurance, pollution liability, stream and streambank work, conservation practice installations, new rules and regulations including the issuance of general permits, the cost shares available in the Chesapekae Bay watersheds, wetland concerns, solid waste management, and erosion and sediment pollution controls.

Any contractor is welcome to attend and can make a reservation by calling the conservation district at (215) 372-4655.

W. Va. Leads Nation In No-Till Corn

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — In 1990, West Virginia farmers went from fourth in the country to first in the percentage of full-season corn grown without tillage, according to the 1990 "National Survey of Conservation Tillage Practices."

West Virginia also led or was second in two other categories and was fourth overall in no-till farming, reported the Conservation Technology Information Center of West Lafayette, Ind., which compiled the survey.

In no-till, a form of "conservation tillage," crops are seeded and grown in soil that is not plowed. The soil is protected from erosion by crop residue or sod. The technology center describes no-till as "the ultimate in residue protection" and reported that this conservation practice "gained significant acreage in all crop types except double cropped grain sorghum."

In 1989, 32.9 percent of West Virginia's full-season corn was grown without tillage, the fourth highest percentage in the United States. In 1990, the percentage increased to 38.26, the nation's highest. Full-season corn, West Virginia's principal annual crop, was grown on 81,012 acres.

In second and third place, with no-till, full-season corn were Virginia at 35.67 percent and Maryland at 30.28. Nationally, more corn is in no-till than any other crop, 6.4 million acres.

West Virginia's 7,319 acres of full-season soybeans were 45.02 percent no-till, by far the highest proportion in the nation. Delaware was second with 20.92 percent.

The state's soybean growers are leading a national trend. The acreage of full-season soybeans in no-till has doubled nationally since 1987, the technology center reported.

The state's double-crop corn, grown on 1,660 acres, was 81.93 percent no-till, second in the country behind Maryland's 83.09 percent.

Forage crops — grasses and legumes grown as part of a crop rotation — were planted on 15,284 acres in West Virginia in 1990. Of that total, 3,621 acres were no-till, 23.69 percent, sixth highest among the states. Virginia was first with 52.28 percent.

For all annual crops, West Virginia had 30.02 percent of 149,159 acres in no-till, fourth best percentage in the country. Three nearby states, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia, had slightly higher percentages.

No-till and two other cropping methods used infrequently in West Virginia, ridge-till and mulch-till, constitute "conservation tillage."

Nationwide, "conservation tillage" was used on 26 percent of all planted acres, up from 25.6 percent in 1989, according to the technology center, which is a division of the National Association of Conservation Districts. Kentucky led the nation with "conservation tillage," at 55.15 percent of all crops, while West Virginia was seventh among the states at 38.16 percent, up from 34 percent in 1989.

County field offices of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service (SCS) make approximately 3,000 reports for the conservation tillage survey. SCS district conservationists work with extension offices and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in compiling the local data.

SCS state conservationist Rollin N. Swank pointed out that cropland acreage in the Mountain State is relatively small. Only seven states have smaller acreages — Rhode Island, Alaska, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Nevada and Vermont.

"But leading the nation in percentage of no-till corn is still an important accomplishment," he said. "It shows many West Virginia farmers are conscious of conservation and are as up-to-date with technology as farmers anywhere in the world."

Perry Co. Extension Holds Meeting

ELLIOTTSBURG (Perry Co.) — Perry County Cooperative Extension Association recently held their 70th annual meeting at the Messiah Lutheran Church. The dinner meeting was highlighted by the presentation of several awards and a keynote address by Dr. Stanley Curtis, chairman of the department of dairy and animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Curtis spoke on the issue of animal rights, showing pictures of recent research involving hogs. The research was designed to allow pregnant sows to choose what type of environment was most comfortable to them while at the same time continuing their economically important rates of gain. Curtis pointed out that the animal rights groups are proposing animal housing and management systems that are not only economically unfeasible, but also promote disease transfer.

However, Curtis stressed the need to study animal behavior and response to environmental changes. He pledged that the department of dairy and animal science would begin research in this area with all species. The goal of such work is to provide factual information to counter claims by special interest groups and to provide reliable information to help lawmakers intelligently write the legislation that Curtis says, "will inevitably come."

The annual extension award was presented to Ted Williams, director of Perry human services. Williams was honored for his many hours of volunteer work in the 4-H program, serving as a leader of local 4-H clubs and as a member of the county 4-H program development committee. Williams was also cited for his interagency efforts in communication and programming between Perry human services and Perry County Cooperative Extension.

The Perry County Conservation District awarded two outstanding conservation farm awards at the meeting. Buffalo Bell Farm, Newport, owned and operated by Oscar and Winnie Campbell and Perida Farms, Loysville, owned and operated by William Stahl and family were the farms honored. Both farms utilized conventional soil saving techniques such as stripcropping, waterways, and diversions in addition to various conservation tillage methods. Conservation District Chairman Robert Cauffman presented each farm with a Conservation Farm Award sign.

During the business meeting, new directors to the cooperative extension board were elected to 5-year terms. Elected were Teresa Leiby, Loysville; Jeff Conrad, Duncannon; and Becky Lictenberger, Landisburg. Retiring board members having completed 5 years of service were Resta Tressler, Newport; Pat Sepannan, Loysville; and Rhonda Haas, Elliottsburg.

York Co. Moves Ag Land Board

YORK (York Co.) — The York Co. Ag Land Preservation board has relocated its program office to better serve the needs of the agricultural community.

The new office is within the Planning Commission at 118 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402. Office hours are Monday thru Friday 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Board meetings are every first Monday and third Tuesday at the county department building on 118 Pleasant Acres Rd. at 7 p.m.

The January 1991 application cycle generated 10 additional applications for board review and consideration for the Conservation Easement Program. Applications were received from the following townships; Dover, Codorus, Hopewell, Warrington, Shrewsbury, York, Hellam, Peach Bottom, and North Hopewell. These 10 applications offered a total of 1,317 acres to the program.

It's the right time to apply lime

Lime application during the winter allows the limestone time to react and gives you the advantage of rich, pH-balanced soil for your spring planting. Winter ground conditions also reduce soil compaction and rutting during spreading.

Baler Improves Center-Line Design

RACINE, Wis. — The new Case International 8555 baler combines increased capacity, dependability, and serviceability with the ease of operating a center-line machine. It produces tight, uniform, 16-by-18-inch rectangular bales regardless of windrow size.

"Design improvements, particularly in the pickup, knotter, and needle shuttle areas, make this a more reliable, more productive baler that is easy to service and operate," said Dave Hess, Case International hay and forage product manager. Hess adds that the changes were made in response to customer requests and our own field test experience.

For higher capacity, centering auger speed has been increased and a high-speed plunger packs dense bales at 105 strokes per minute. New heavy-duty, split-frame knotters allow easy removal of a knotter assembly for servicing.

New twine fingers with revised timing reduce knotter drive effort. A positive lockup drive clutch prevents kotter overrunning. With the shuttle drive moved to the right side, loads on the knotter shaft are more evenly distributed. And a disc knotter brake holds the needles in position more effectively than a caliper brake.

Durability improvements include high-tensile-strength pickup tines, redesigned tine bars to reduce bending, a larger diameter knotter shaft made of high-carbon steel, and heat-treated ductile iron knotter cam gears.

The new Case International 8555 baler produces tight, uniform, 16-by-18 inch rectangular bales regardless of windrow size.

Uniform bale shape, minimal leaf loss, and easy operation continue to be characteristics of the center-line design balers. "The hay flows smoothly down the center, in a straight line from the pickup to the discharge chute. There are no hard 90-degree turns to knock leaves loose and the prepacker forms consistent bale flakes," Hess said.

The Model 8555 requires a tractor with 540 rpm PTO, at least 50 PTO horsepower, and one remote valve for the pickup lift cylinder. Hydraulic density control and six-ball twine storage capacity are standard equipment.

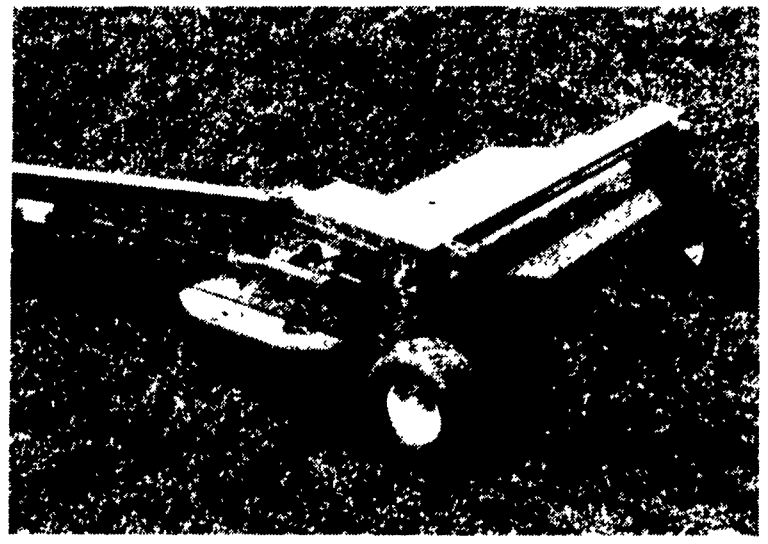
- 31x13.5 - 15", 8-ply flotation tires.
- Working light kit.
- New centralized lube system for the knotter.
- Quarter-turn discharge chute.

The Model 8555 will replace the 8550 baler in the full line of Case International hay and forage products.



The John Deere 1470 rotary mower/conditioner cuts a 11½ -foot swath. Seven rotary disks spin at 2,610 rpm and produce a knife tip speed of 186 mph. This gives the 1470 the ability to handle even wet conditions and tangled hay at field speeds up to 8 mph.

Mower/Conditioner Increases Capacity

MOLINE, Ill.— John Deere has introduced the 1470 rotary mower/conditioner with approximately 18 percent greater capacity than the next largest John Deere rotary model.

Seven rotary disks in the 1470 span 11½ feet and spin at 2,610 rpm, producing a knife tip speed of 186 mph. The result is the ability to handle wet conditions and tangled hay at field speeds up to 8 mph.

At 8 mph, the 1470 can cut and condition up to 12 acres per hour.

To match its cutting capacity, the 1470 has 106-inch-wide conditioning rolls. The 10-inch diameter intermeshing, urethane rolls have intermittent cleats with added indentations that multiply the crimping edges to decrease drying time.

Urethane rolls are straighter and more cylindrical than rolls made from other materials. When adjusting roll spacing and roll pressure to match varying crops and conditions, the settings will be equal across the entire length of the rolls.

Other adjustments that help fine-tune the 1470 for varying crop conditions include turnbuckle adjustment of the cutterbar angle, gauge shoes to adjust stubble height, and a single-lever swath board adjustment to control windrow width.

Options for the 1470 include a rope-controlled tongue positioner, a hydraulic tongue positioner, and a swivel hitch for increased maneuverability during sharp turns.

Keystone Farm Credit Declares Dividend

SHOEMAKERSVILLE (Berks Co.)— The board of directors of Keystone Farm Credit, ACA declared a 5% cash dividend to all holders of common stock as of December 31, 1990.

These dividends will be payable to stockholders on March 15, 1991. This is the second consecutive year since Keystone's inception by merger in late 1988 that the association has declared a dividend.

The ability to pay this dividend is reflective of Keystone's strong financial position. According to Bernard C. Flory, president and chief executive officer, "Keystone's strength is due, in part, to our competitive pricing, our loan staff's aggressive marketing of loan products and financial services and the support of the agricultural community. Most of all," Flory said, "the support of our membership has greatly contributed to the overall well-being of the association. We appreciate their continued patronage."

Keystone Farm Credit, ACA serves approximately 4,100 farmers and rural residents in the 15 county southeastern Pennsylvania area.

Art's-Way Acquires Skid-Steer Products

ARMSTRONG, Iowa — Art's-Way Manufacturing Co., Inc. announced the recent acquisition of a skid-steer loader product line from Kinsey Equipment of Ohio.

Certain models of the product line were previously built under private label for International Harvester, Massey Ferguson, and Ford. One of the earliest models was introduced in 1965.

Production and distribution of the Skid-Steer™ line have been moved to Armstrong, IA. Art's-Way will continue offering this line to both the agricultural and construction users.

Along with its own product line, Art's-Way also manufactures equipment for a select number of major companies.

Auction Receives Ad Awards

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — The Alderfer Auction Company was the recipient of four advertising awards at the 43rd Annual Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association Convention held at the Harrisburg Marriott on January 10-12.

The awards received were 1st place for best black and white auction promotion brochure; 2nd place for best newspaper display classified advertisement; 2nd place for best real estate auction advertising; and 2nd place for best speciality brochure. The awards were presented by at the 43rd annual convention awards banquet.

The Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association (PAA) Convention is made up of members from five chapters throughout Pennsylvania. The Alderfer Auction Company is a member of the Lehigh Chapter of the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association.

Vernon Martin, executive vice president of real estate sales for the Alderfer Auction Company, was also president of the PAA in 1990.

At last year's annual convention, Sanford A. Alderfer, who founded the company in 1959, was inducted into the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association Hall of Fame. The company now has four divisions handling weekly gallery auctions, on-site auctions, real estate, and transportation services, with offices in both Harleysville and Hatfield, Pa.

WITH AUCTION CLOSED, WHAT CAN PORK PRODUCERS DO?

Dr. Richard Barczewski
Extension County Ag Agent
University of Delaware

The only livestock auction in this area has closed its doors. I don't know the reasons. I only know that one week, without warning, no auction was held. What does this mean to the local agricultural community?

livestock auctions serve the agricultural community in a special way. livestock farmers, like grain and vegetable producers, need to be able to market their products. For many small operations, the only regularly available market they have to sell their animals is the local stockyard. For this reason, it is important that producers support these markets and help to keep them viable.

As people involved in livestock production, we've often discussed the pros and cons of selling livestock through an auction market. It's true that premium prices can be realized by selling products directly to consumers, but what do we do with the animals we can't sell directly? That's why a local auction is important to the livestock industry.

Local auctions offer producers an easy local way to dispose of cull or surplus animals that they can't market any other way. In addition, local auctions help to set prices for many private sales. Now we have only one livestock auction left in the area.

Auctions for the livestock industry still exist, but these appear to be getting fewer and farther away. This is a disadvantage for producers with only a few head of livestock to market. The impact of fewer markets on the swine industry will be felt at all levels. We are fortunate to have two major market hog buyers in the area, but the third alternative, the stockyard, where smaller buyers purchase their animals, is no longer available here.

The impact on other classes of animals appears to be even harder. Think about the fact that producers of cull sows and boars have an even smaller marketing avenue. Some hog buyers won't consider buying animals outside of specific weight ranges or confirmation types. In these cases, producers may be limited to only one disposal source and that is never the best way to market.

Feeder pigs are another market class that must be considered. One advantage of the Delaware auction was that it held a graded feeder-pig sale; now not one is left in operation on the peninsula. The graded sale offered buyers a chance to purchase animal that had been sorted by size and grade to help buyers get uniform lots of pigs. Also pigs with physical defects were excluded. This sale offered a good source of both light- and heavierweight feeder pigs to many buyers. The options available to these feeder-pig producers here is now greatly reduced.

Where does this leave us in the swine industry? The productivity and profitability of any industry is directly related to the availability of a market. Remove the market, or make it less competitive, and the result is negative.

Who knows if this turn of events is permanent? I hope not,because we need a viable livestock auction. The swine industry needs it. So do the cattle and sheep industries. It's hard not to be pessimistic when reviewing the situation, but hog producers are going to have to work together to determine how to fill the void left by the auction's closing.

Campground Association Offers Directory

EMLENTON (Venango Co.) — The Pennsylvania Campground Owners Association (PCOA) has made its "1991 Pennsylvania Campground Directory" available.

The directory divides the state into six regions with maps, color coding, and a detailed facility listing for each region.

Officers and directors of PCOA are listed with their campground name. Each of the 170 members of the association are listed, with the name, mailing address and phone number. Access directions, number of sites, and a listing of all facilities available are also listed.

PCOA is an association of private campground owners dedicated to the advancement of family camping. The association is an affiliate of the National Campground Owners Association, a 3,000-member association in 40 states in the U.S.

For a copy of the Directory, send $2 for shipping and handling to PCOA, c/o Beverly Snyder, Box 147, Emlenton, PA 16373.

Thomas Dimick
Project Assistant
Dept. of Food Science

Salmonella Enteritidis (SE) is a pathogenic (disease producing) bacterium that can cause severe foodborne disease outbreaks.

During 1985-1989, state and territorial health departments reported 244 SE outbreaks, which accounted for 8607 cases of illness, 1094 hospitalizations, and 44 deaths.

Of the 109 outbreaks in which a food vehicle was identified, 89 (82 percent) were associated with shell eggs.

From January through October in both 1989 and 1990, 49 outbreaks were reported. Four (8 percent) of the 49 outbreaks reported in 1990 occurred in hospitals or nursing homes, compared with 20 (26 percent) of the 77 outbreaks in 1989.

The decrease in hospital- and nursing home-associated SE outbreaks may reflect efforts to improve food safety in these settings (in particular, using pasteurized eggs).

Although infections with SE first emerged as a public health problem in the New England and mid-Atlantic regions, 22 (45 percent) of the 49 outbreaks reported in 1990 occurred outside these areas.

Most cases of SE infection occur as sporadic cases or in limited family outbreaks. Many of these sporadic cases and limited outbreaks may be associated with consumption of contaminated eggs that have been insufficiently cooked to kill Salmonella. Therefore, the occurrence of infections acquired by eating foods prepared in the kitchens of private homes might be reduced by improved education of consumers regarding the risks of eating raw or undercooked eggs and by increased availability of pasteurized eggs.

To reduce the risk for SE infection in other settings, such as nursing homes and hospitals, pasteurized egg products should be used in recipes that call for undercooking or pooling of eggs. Similarly, commercial food service establishments can reduce the risk of outbreaks by using pasteurized egg products in such recipes.

An estimated 0.01 percent (i.e., one in 10,000) of shell eggs contain SE. Consequently, foods containing raw or undercooked eggs (e.g., homemade eggnog, hollandaise sauce, and Ceasar salad dressing) pose an occasional risk of infection with SE.

The likelihood of serious morbidity or death as a result of infection with SE is greatest among very young, elderly, or immunocompromised persons — these persons should be especially careful not to eat foods containing raw or undercooked eggs.

Commercial eggnog is made with pasteurized eggs and is safe.

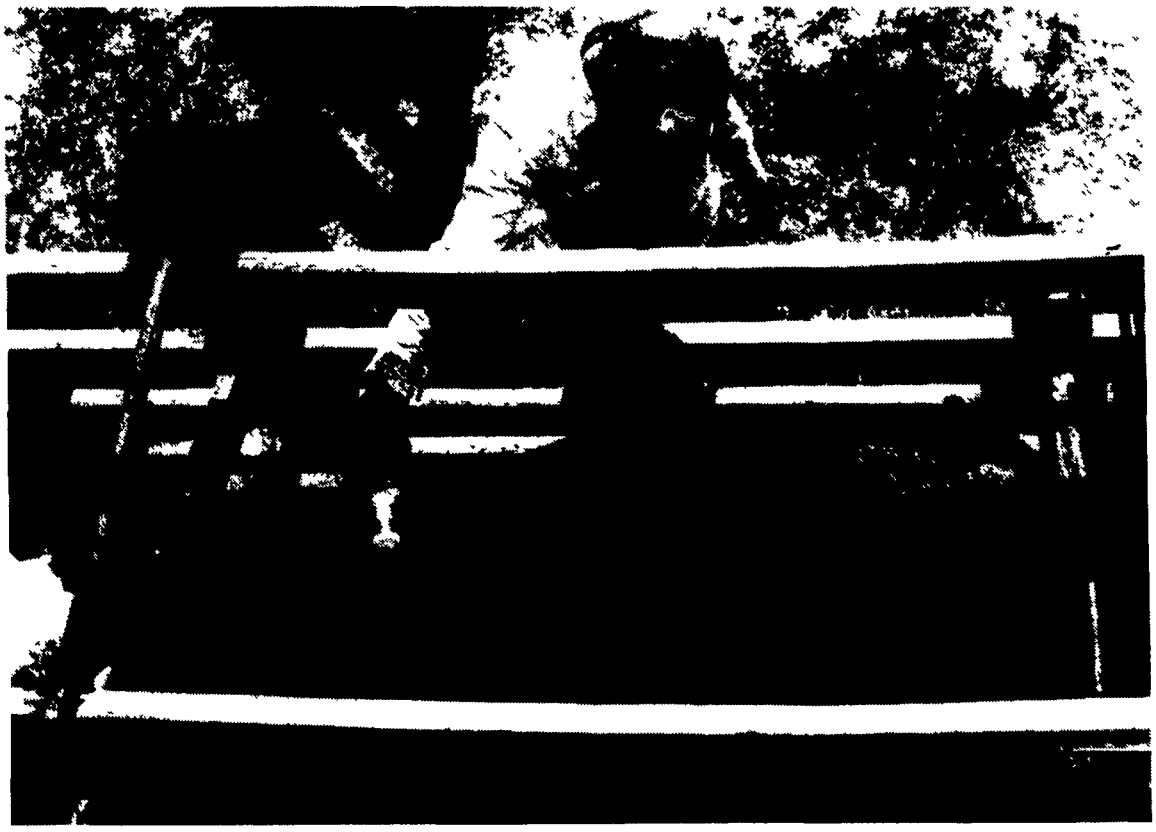
MAGICAP Allows Fast Dosing Of IVOMEC



Magicap™ – the squeeze/measure/pour delivery system developed by Merck & Co., Inc. -- assures fast and convenient dosing with no product waste. The company recommends applying Ivomec® (ivermectin) pour-on for cattle in a straight line, from the withers to the tailhead.

RAHWAY, N.J.— Magicap™ -- the delivery system for Ivemoec® (ivermectin) pour-on for cattle that was developed by Merckk & Co., Inc. -- could prove to be as revolutionary as the product itself, said Rodney Goodall, cattle products manager for MSD Agvet, a division of Merck & Co., Inc.

"Magicap™ assures fast and convenient dosing -- without product waste," he said. "In fact, in New Zealand, Canada and the seven European countries where Ivomec pour-on is already available, we think the packaging has had a direct impact on the rapid success of the product."

Dr. Bill Clymer, a livestock parasitologist in Amarillo, TX, who had a chance to work with the unique delivery system before the product was launched in the United States, said he was impressed with the way Magicap™ performed.

"The product goes straight from the bottle to the animal, with no mixing or spillage. It's fast and easy. And most importantly, it gives you the correct dosage rate for the size animals you're treating,," he said.

Magicap™ is a semi-transparent, plastic metering cup that screws on to the product's 250-ml or 1-liter polyethylene squeeze bottle. The dosage rate is set by turning the knurled section at the top of the cup so the pointer aligns to one of four body weights (220, 330, 440, or 550 pounds) marked on the cup's side.

When the body weight of the animal is between settings, MSD Agvet suggests using the higher setting to ensure adequate dosing. Cattle weighing more than the maximum setting on the cap should be dosed in increments.

During administration, the bottle should be held upright and squeezed gently, just enough to fill the cup with slightly more than the recommended dosage. When the user stops squeezing the bottle and releases the pressure, the excess product flows back into the bottle and the dose automatically adjusts to the correct level.

Once the correct dosage is in the cap the bottle can be tilted to pour the product along the backline of the animal in a narrow band, from the withers to the tailhead. The small spout on top of the Magicap™ allows accurate placement with no runoff. The metering device in the neck of the Magicap™ traps the rest of the liquid in the bottle to deliver the dose without waste. The off (stop) position of the unique delivery system can be set to close the cap between dosages.

Ag Economy Could Turn Around, Banks Feeling Federal Restraint

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

PRESCOTT (Lebanon Co.) — The agricultural economy could begin to peak next year, but banks' ability to make agricultural loans to help take advantage of growth could be restrained by federal intervention, experts said recently.

According to a Penn State University economist who spoke at Lebanon Valley National Banks' 12th annual agriculture seminar held last week at Prescott Fire Hall, historical statistical comparisons between weather and economic swings in agriculture seem to correlate, indicating drought and higher commodity prices in coming years.

Also, Albert B. Murray, president and chief executive officer of LVNB, talked about a "Changing Banking Environment," which he said resulted from the large federal debt from the savings and loans failures. He said the federal government's reaction has been to over-regulate banks to the point that making loans has become extremely difficult.

Several hundred area farmers attended the all-day seminar which focused on current agricultural conditions and projections for the coming year.

The agriculture seminar is held to help LVNB's clients and potential clients understand the possible direction of the industry.

An understanding of possible changes can help agriculturalists make better decisions.

Other portions of the seminar dealt with reminders on rabies, newspaper bedding, barn storage and labeling of farm pharmaceuticals, heifer care and pesticide laws.

Scheduled speaker H. Louis Moore, agricultural economist for Penn State University, was unable to attend the meeting — the first time in the 12 years LVNB has sponsored the seminar — because he was serving in Poland as a consultant.

In his stead, Penn State University economist Greg Hanson presented his views on agriculture and future trends.

According to Hanson, despite current low prices in milk, grains and forages, agriculture is on an upswing.

A former forcaster for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Hanson said that he is too new to PSU to make any accurate short term predictions.

However, for the long term outlook, "Agriculture should continue to be a growth sector at least for the next several years," Hanson said.

"In 1991, we're in the same position as in 1972. The trend (between dry weather and better ag prices) is statistically prominent. It indicates a peak in agricultural growth because of weather for the early 90s."

Hanson said that while low dollar values on the world market hurts the American consumer's ability to purchase imported items, it benefits farmers.

"Last week the German (Deutsche) mark reached an all time high against the dollar.

"Our dollars today buy about half as many marks as they did in 1985 and 1986. During the farm financial crisis, the dollar shot up. Now it's back to the level of the late 70s, it's down about 40 percent from its high.

"For a farmer the lower dollar is a win-win situation because you do not buy your feed and generally your fertilizer or machinery from Japan or Germany. So your dollar still has purchasing value here.

"However, you sell . . . to Europe. Whether it's corn, soybean, beef, swine, poultry, or powdered milk, this lower dollar means we as farmers can sell things much cheaper," Hanson said. The ability to sell cheaper in world trade means more markets for U.S. commodities.

The possibility of increased world markets, possible poor growing seasons and low federal grain inventories makes the tight supplies

"In terms of a livestock complex, you all know that we have got very strong beef, swine and poultry right now. Dairy is taking a hit. The USDA is forcasting dairy prices down about $2.30.

"On the crop side, we have very little stocks. Our corn stocks are less than 1.2 billion bushels, that's down from about 4.8 bushels from two years ago. We have about one third the corn stocks than we had in 1986 or '87. We also have a lot of uncertainty on the crop side.

"The prices are fairly volatile. Right now the prices are about even with last year, in terms of corn and soybeans. Of course wheat is lower, but it seems like each new report sends jitters through the market, whether it's the drought in Brazil, or what the Russians are doing with their credits ... and then of course we have the Persian Gulf situation right now which is certainly clouding our outlook.

"Production expenses are down about 25 percent in real terms, after inflation.

"Adjusted for inflation, in terms of machinery purchases, interest and debt, all of those are down 50 percent on average from '79 and '80. There is tremendous progress on cost (control).

"I tend to see trends. I see roughly a 20-year trend in agriculture and I'm one of the few economists who directly links that to the weather.

"There are (crop) yield statistics going back 150 years. Mathematicians have used those yields, just to see if there was a pattern, and what they discovered was that every 18.6 years . . . there will be a peak in income. Nine years later there will be a drop. Another 9 years, income would come back.

"In early 50s we had farm income peak, then it went down for 10 years, up another 10 years. In the early 70s another peak. I think we're going to have this cyclical income peak in the early 1990s.

"It turns out that this trend in the weather parallels, exactly (with the historical farm income peaks) and

HOW TO AVOID GETTING BLACK...

(also) an 18.6-year change in the declination of the moon.

"The dean emeritus of the agricultural meteorologists, Lewis Thompson, at Iowa State, tells me he is not a betting man — he would not go to Los Vegas — but he would bet on this cycle," Hanson said.

Hanson said the theory also has some other historical proof of its accuracy.

"A group of economists, meteorologists and climatologists went to USDA in 1972 and warned the department to expect dry weather and because of that, farm prices would shoot up, inflation would . . . and so on.

"Dr. Thompson wrote a letter in the mid-80s, forcasting a farm depression. It all leads back to the wet and dry phases of this weather cycle. Right now, in 1991, we're in the same position we were in 1972.

"Now this may not work out. All I can tell you is that it is a trend that is statistically prominent. It's a trend that goes back 150 years. It's a trend that some experts believe in and some mathematicians make sense of.

"It may not occur," he cautioned.

"My projection is that we are going to see about five- to 15-percent real growth, above inflation, between now and the end of the early 90s," Hanson said.

Also Hanson advised livestock producers to watch grain use.

"When the farm bill was announced toward the end of Novemeber, they made it clear they were going to ship more from market stocks and less from government stocks.

"Essentially, it takes record yields for us to not draw down our corn stocks even further because we're selling or using more than 8 billion bushels a year. Last year we grew only 7.9 billion bushels. We're having trouble right now growing as much as we can use.

"According to the meteorologists, the best odds (for a drought) are for 1992. But if we do have a major drought, we don't have those big buffers of major (grain) stocks to get us through that.

"What this means, if your are a livestock producer, you may want to be a little bit careful about the level of grain or silage in your bunker silo, or whatever.

"I'm not saying that this rosey outlook is that way from here on out. We do have problems, especially during the next six months.

"In the long run, we have a much better balance in our basic economics than we did three or four years ago. We are clearly at the strongest point in agriculture than we've been at since 1980.

"The staying power, is essentially the farmers and lenders,in this scenario," Hanson said.

"In our case, milk prices are low, corn prices are low. I think in agriculture, if we look more to the long run, if we focus on these fundementals — the debt position of our farms, the position of our stocks in this country — and as we make that commitment of staying in agriculture . . . we are going to see a lot of success on our farms, in our businesses.

"And I think the agricultural fabric of Pennsylvania is going to prosper," Hanson said.

However, on the down side, LVNB's CEO Murry said changing federal regulation of banks and increased costs of insuring deposited funds have injured all banks' abilities to make loans.

Overall, what the changes mean to bankers is that they will be operating with higher overhead and a reduced ability to make traditional loans, Murry said.

As of now, Murry said that LVNB's agricultural lending has not been affected, and they still don't know if it will be. However, Murry said LVNB will continue to be "aggresive" in agricultural lending.

"We are the third largest agricultural lender (in the area)," Murry said. "LVNB has been aggresive in agricultural lending and will remain aggresive in agricultural lending."

However, while agriculture is safe for now, LVNB's other lending is changed. Compared to last year at the same time, about 70 percent of all commercial loan applications at LVNB were approved. This year only about 10 percent are being approved because of the regulations.

According to Murry, who also sits on the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, because of the fear of failed loans, federal regulators are not taking into account borrowers' banking history, nor indirect sources of income which can be used to cover loan payments, such as paying off one business loan with income derived from another source.

He said that all loans over $50,000 which require real estate to be used as collateral must also have an appraisal performed before the loan application can be considered. He said that bank directors who approve loans that do not have the appraisals face large penalties.

He also said that banks' practice of setting aside money as a sort of self-insurance to cover higher risk loans is going to increase.

It means higher operating costs for the bank.

According to Murry, the U.S. treasury Department has the authority to order banks to declare certain loans as high risk and "has banks afraid."

Another source of financial drain to banks comes from bailing out failed banks.

About $28 billion is thought to be needed to complete the bailout in the United States, he said. And in order to keep the problem from getting any more serious, he said that federal authorities are apparently over-reacting.

Murry also said that federal guidelines as to what are unacceptable loans are not clear and that the treasury department recently mailed out video tapes to certain banks in order to provide some idea of what they want.

Further evidence of the banking industry's reluctance to lend money are lower interest rates. Caused by the treasury department to stimulate lending and the economy, the low interest rates are not resulting in an increase in loans.

Furthermore, he said that the nation's 14,000 banks are to pay off the anticipated $28 billion debt for the bank bailout through increased FDIC payments.

As of January 1989, LVNB paid 8.3 cents for every $100 in customer deposits for federal insurance.

The insurance rate is now at 19.5 cents for every $100 deposted and is expected to rise to at least 23 cents by July. He said most predictions are for the rate to rise to 25.5 cents per $100 deposited.

For LVNB, the premiums are substantial. In 1989, LVNB paid $363,000. This year they expect to pay almost $1.3 million for the same federal insurance.

Also, there have been changes to the types of deposits which are covered.

Federal insurance covers deposits up to $100,000. In the past, a man and wife could protect up to $300,000 by depositing money in two separate accounts and one joint account. Now the joint account is no longer covered.

'In the long run, we have a much better balance in our basic economics than we did three or four years ago.'

Greg Hanson, PSU Ag Economist

Just one application (at labelled rates) in the field before transplanting fights black shank, blue mold and Pythium all season long.

Ridomil stops disease on contact in the soil. Then its systemic action allows it to be absorbed into the plant through the roots, keeping it safe from disease. You get a healthier plant, higher quality tobacco.

So this season, use Ridomil. Before a few of tobacco's biggest enemies beat your bottom line black and blue.

Choose Insecticide Wisely

WILMINGTON, Del.— Corn growers thinking about new sulfonylurea postemergence grass control this season should select their insecticide carefully.

The sulfonylurea herbicides -- Du Pont "Accent" and Ciba-Geigy's Beacon -- have a significant phytotoxic interaction with Counter insecticide, an organophosphate, which could result in serious crop injury, according to Scott Rowe, Du Pont corn herbicides product development manager.

"Counter insecticide should not be used in the same growing season as these sulfonylurea herbicides, regardless of whether the insecticide is used at planting or over-the-row at cultivation," Rowe said.

Counter 20CR, a new forumlation of Counter 15G, is purported to reduce the chance for interaction, but Rowe warns that additional studies still need to be conducted before any label changes will be recommended for Accent.

"The majority of weed scientists who have worked with Accent, Beacon, and Counter still have limited data on the 20CR insecticide formulation," Rowe said. "They conclude, like we do, that more studies are needed."

Although corn growers have several insecticide options that give excellent pest control, the new sulfonylurea herbicides are the only products on the market for consistent control of some grass species. Accent provides the broadest spectrum control of grass weeds such as shattercane, seedling and rhizome johnsongrass, foxtail, woolly cupgrass, quackgrass, wild proso millet, and others.

"It's important for corn growers to keep their options open, especially if they might need to apply a sulfonylurea herbicide for tough grasses later in the season," Rowe said.

Rowe explains that the corn plant rapidly metabolizes a sulfonylurea herbicide to nonphytotoxic materials as soon as it gets in the plant. More than 90 percent of the Accent that enters the corn is gone within 24 hours of application.

"Unless there is interference with that metabolic pathway, injury will not occur when Accent enters the corn plant," Rowe said. "If there's an organophosphate insecticide in the plant when you apply a sulfonylurea herbicide, however, the organophosphate inhibits metabolism of the sulfonylurea in the corn plant. That can result in plant injury."

The injury level is related to how much of the organophosphate is in the corn plant and is translocated to the growing points. Counter is more systemic than other organophosphate soil insecticides and thus has a greater chance of reaching the plant's growing points.

Phytotoxic interaction can lead to temporary discoloration of the leaves, chlorosis, leaf wrinkling, bending, or death of the corn plant.

Other organophosphate soil insecticides, such as Lorsban, Dyfonate and Thimet, can be used prior to a sulfonylurea application since they are less systemic than Counter, greatly reducing probability of interaction.

Foliar organophosphates such as Lorsban 4E, Cygon 400, Dyfonate 4-EC, and others may be applied in the same growing season with certain restrictions. Growers should wait a minimum of seven days after treating corn with one of these foliar-applied organophosphate insecticides before applying Accent.

"The reason is that you may need up to seven days to get the organophosphate out of the corn's system before you apply a sulfonylurea herbicide," Rowe said.

If the Accent is applied first, growers should wait at least three days before applying a foliar-applied organophosphate.

Carbamate insecticides such as Furadan and pyrethroid insecticides such as Asana XL and Force can be applied to corn according to their respective labels without fear of interaction.

Phytotoxic interaction of Counter insecticide and a sulfonylurea herbicide can result in discoloration, wrinkling, and bending of the corn leaves.

Simmental Association Publishes Sire Summary

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The American Simmental Association (ASA) has published the spring edition of its "National Sire Summary." It will be distributed with the March issue of "The Register," ASA's official publication.

A total of 22,962 Simmental bulls were evaluated, a substantial increase over the previous year. Of those, 7,399 were considered "active" - having sired one or more calves in the past two years. Active sires were then ranked according to the highest level of accuracy, resulting in data on 2,627 bulls.

An additional 420 purebred Simbrah sires (5/8 Simmental and 3/8 Brahman) were evaluated, providing data on 133 Simbrah bulls printed in the new summary.

ASA works with the Animal Breeding Group at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., pioneers in genetic sire evaluation, to provide the most complete and accurate analysis possible.

Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) are provided for seven economically-important traits: calving ease, birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, maternal calving ease, maternal weaning weight, and maternal milk.

"For these seven traits, EPDs are the best tool available for comparing animals genetically within the Simmental and Simbrah breeds," said Dr. Bruce Cunningham, ASA director of research and education.

"The Sire Summary represents the combined efforts of the ASA staff, the personnel at Cornell University, and the 12,000 breeders of Simmental and Simbrah cattle," Cunningham said. "We are blessed with a database of 2.63 million animal records, a very sound foundation that lends increased authenticity to our sire evaluation."

For a complimentary copy, contact the ASA headquarters, (800) 548-0205 or write ASA, One Simmental Way, Bozeman, MT 59715.

Ephrata Young Farmer Barn Meet

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)—The adult farmers of the Ephrata Area School District held a dairy herd managment barn meeting Monday at the farm of Carl Martin. The topics included a new udder hair removal technique, heat detection aids, a new calf dehorning method and discussion of a heat synchronization program. In addition, at the time of the meeting a cow was flushed to obtain embryos for transplanting in recipient heifers.

The program was under the direction of ABS resource persons.

For many years, the Martin herd has maintained a very high classification score and at present have 16 excellent, 42 very good and 34 good plus with a BAA score of 105.8. The cow that was flushed on Monday was the fifth generation excellent and an excellent sister stood next to her in the barn. The flush was successful and six good embryos were transplanted into recipient heifers.

NFU Calls Madigan A Good Choice

DENVER, Colo.— Leaders of the 250,000 member National Farmers Union say they are "generally pleased" with President Bush's nomination of Illinois Congressman Edward Madigan to be U.S. agriculture secretary.

"Ed Madigan's record in Congress shows that he's accessible and receptive to the concerns of family farmers," said NFU's President Leland Swenson.

President Bush nominated Madigan to replace USDA Chief Clayton Yeutter, who will become head of the Republican National Committee in March. In making the nomination, Bush called Madigan a "compromiser" who "cares deeply about our farm policies."

Swenson said he hopes Madigan will place the needs of production agriculture at the top of his list of priorities. The farm leader wrote Bush earlier this month saying the new secretary should "serve as a spokesman for production agriculture," and "be their (family farmers') representative in Washington and their ambassador around the world."

NFU officials say they think Madigan will prove to be more moderate and pragmatic than Yeutter has been. "Secretary Yeutter simply has not represented family farm agriculture," said Swenson. "That was evident in the low-price policies he pushed during the farm bill debate, and in his position during the GATT talks."

The NFU chief says the next several years will be difficult ones for farmers unless changes are made in the 1990 farm bill. NFU has been an outspoken critic of parts of the farm bill that it says "will devastate rural America."

"The President admitted that not all farmers are doing well," Swenson said. "That's the first time we've heard that from this administration, and I hope it's a sign that they're beginning to recognize how srcious the problems of the rural sector have become."

Although Madigan's legislative proposals have sometimes run contrary to NFU's positions, Swenson said he would expect to have disagreements "with anyone Bush appointed" at USDA. "We have some very basic philosophical differences with this administration, but as long as the new secretary will hear us and consider our concerns, it's a step in the right direction," he said.

Madigan led the fight in Congress to maintain USDA's authority for cutting loan rates, countering one of NFU's major objectives in the farm bill. But Swenson says the economic situation for farmers has worsened since the farm bill was passed, and that "hopefully, Mr. Madigan will be open to making administrative changes in it."

Fungicide Newly Cleared For Alfalfa

GREENSBORO, N.C.— Establishing a healthy stand of alfalfa can be challenging. Even with good management practices such as proper fertility, variety selection, and seedbed preparation, newly planted alfalfa can still run into problems.

Soilborne pathogens such as phytophthora and pythium can attack young alfalfa plants and significantly reduce the stand and plant vigor.

University and Ciba-Geigy researchers have tested Ridomil® fungicide on alfalfa for the past eight years. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recently approved a label change that allows the product to be used on either spring- or fall-planted alfalfa.

In more than 30 trials across the United States, alfalfa treated with the fungicide had average stand increases of 25 percent. Individual increases varied by production and disease conditions. Positive results were recorded in both fall- and spring-planted alfalfa.

For disease to develop, there must be a disease triangle: 1) a susceptible host; 2) a favorable environment; and 3) disease pathogens. Pythium and phytophthora both can survive in the soil for long periods of time without a suitable host. When susceptible crops such as alfalfa are planted into infested soils and environmental conditions favor disease development, it is likely for these disease pathogens to infect the crop.

Pythium is most likely to occur when there is ample soil moisture and cool temperatures. Warm temperatures and wet soil conditions precipitate phytophthora.

University research shows that alfalfa stands and plant vigor increase when the fungicide is applied at planting. Dr. Erik Stromberg, plant pathologist at VPI & SU in Blacksburg, VA, has seen significant stand differences in greenhouse trials.

"I had a 20-percent increase in stand in greenhouse trials with the fungicide," said Stromberg. "Alfalfa was planted into soil infested with pythium ultimum. I had two different treatments, one with a seed treatment, the other with a soil application. Both showed positive results compared to the nontreated control. The soil application had the greatest increase in seedling number."

Dr. Landon Rhodes, associate professor of plant pathology, Ohio State University, Columbus, has seen significant differences in plant vigor. In 1989, he also saw yield increases in his alfalfa field trials.

"We have seen noticeable differences in alfalfa plant vigor where Ridomil was applied," said Rhodes. "The plants are taller and have a healthier appearance. In 1988, conditions were dry and not conducive to disease. In 1989, however, disease conditions existed and we saw significant yield increases and increased plant vigor."

Rhodes tested Ridomil at one- and two-plant rates on untreated seed. The best results were from the one-pint rate, which increased dry matter yields nearly 1,000 pounds.

"This is a substantial yield increase in the seedling year," said Rhodes. "We plan to continue monitoring the field to determine a yield history. Because of the conditions in 1988, we don't have significant information for second-year results." (1990 information is not yet available.)

Ciba-Geigy, in cooperation with several universities, has significant research data on Ridomil's ability to improve alfalfa stands by controlling seedling diseases. Tests completed in the Northeast show stand increases of 14 percent with one-pint broadcast applications of Ridomil. Tests conducted in the West and Midwest show similar stand increases of 11 percent to more than 20 percent depending on conditions.

Ciba-Geigy and university researchers stress that although the fungicide controls seedling diseases, and improves seeding-year stands, plant vigor and yields, it is not a substitute for good management. "Controlling disease is important, but if growers don't cover the basics of good management, the disease control is almost pointless," said Rhodes. "To produce the best possible alfalfa, growers need to start with soil tests and fertilize to get the proper nutrients in the soil."

Fertility is one basic management practice. Other practices to consider include soil type/site selection, variety, insect control, and harvest schedule.

Many production practices vary with location, but most university researchers agree on some basics, such as a suitable site for alfalfa. "The soil must allow for good root development," said Vern Marble, extension agronomist, University of California, Davis.

Once the field is selected and properly prepared, the variety used should be adaptable to the area, with a performance record that meets expectations.

Marble encourages growers to monitor for insects. Weeds and pests such as gophers and rabbits also should be controlled.

A harvest management schedule is very important. In California, Marble says growers should cut their alfalfa at the bud stage. In Ohio, Rhodes suggests a schedule based on standard time intervals rather than growth.

Production practices and harvest scheduled will vary. Alfalfa growers should check with their local extension agent for recommendations in their area.

Franklin Co. Extension Board Reorganizes

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Linda Bender, 1118 L. W.E., Chambersburg, was recently elected president of the Franklin County Cooperative Extension Association board of directors. Reorganization of the board took place February 11 at the County Administration Building, Chambersburg. Bender, presently in her third year on the board, had previously served as vice president.

Other officers elected for the coming year include vice president, Clifford Hawbaker, Chambersburg; secretary, Fran Horst, Orrstown; and treasurer, John Hart, chief clerk of the Franklin County board of commissioners. Board members elected to fill the remaining two seats on the executive committee included Diana Meyers, Chambersburg and J. Wilmer Lehman, Willow Hill.

Other reorganizational activities included the appointment of county representatives to the Capital Region Cooperative Extension executive board. Selected to serve 2-year terms were J. Wilmer Lehman, delegate and Herbert Zeger, Antrim Builders' Supply, Greencastle, alternate delegate. These joined Jeffrey L. Grove, Shippensburg, and Frank S. Beckner, B Equip, Waynesboro, who are presently also serving as delegate and alternate delegate, respectively, to the regional board.

The county board also set the time and place of the association's 1992 annual meeting. It will be held Friday, January 17, 1992, at Kauffman's Community Center. Snow date is Saturday, January 18.

Barley Promises High Yields

ROBERT E. LEIBY AND
DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh County Cooperative
Extension Office

Farmers who raise barley soon will be able to plant a high-yield variety which promises greater bushel weights than other popular cultivars. The new variety, called PENNBAR 66, recently was released by Penn State researchers following several years of field testing in Centre and Lancaster counties.

During field trials, PENNBAR 66 produced grain yields similar to other widely grown high-yield varieties, such as Wysor and Pennco. But PENNBAR's advantage, says Dr. Marvin Risius, professor of plant breeding, is its consistently higher bushel weight.

No laboratory tests were run on PENNBAR's resistance to disease or insects, but field observations showed very low incidences of leaf rust, net blotch, scald, and powdery mildew. Because PENNBAR 66 has fully awned spikes, the cultivar also is less likely to sustain heavy damage from deer grazing.

The new variety is best suited as a feed barley for livestock, but it eventually could become an ingredient for flour or other food products, notes Risius. He said that certified seed should be available for farmers by 1993.

Batch-In-Bin Corn Drying

Drying grain in a bin within a relatively short period of time and then moving that grain to storage and drying another batch is called batch-in-bin drying. In order to dry the grain quickly, high temperatures and air flow rates are used.

Paul Walker, Penn State agricultural engineer, says air temperatures of 120 to 160 degrees F and air flow rates of 8 to 15 cfm (cubic feet per minute) per bushel are often recommended. Because of the large air flow rates, the grain depth is usually limited to three or four feet to avoid high fan costs.

Typically the drying period is about 20 hours, adding time to move the grain in and out of the bin, so a batch can be completed each day with a little time to spare. If two batches per day were desired, a drying time of 10 hours could be used.

One of the obvious advantages of using batch-in-bin drying is that the bin can be used for grain storage after the other grain has been dried. The dryer bin is then filled and dried using a technique called layer-drying.

Other advantages are that the system easily can be constructed to match the needs of each farm operator and that the drying depth can be varied on a daily basis to provide some harvesting flexibility.

Batch-in-bin drying also can be more energy efficient than many other high temperature dryers, according to Walker. A disadvantage is that drying, and, therefore, the need for supervision, usually continues throughout the night.

The complex relationships that exist between grain moisture, bin size, fan powers, air flow, drying time, and energy cost make it very difficult for a designer to select the best size batch-in-bin drying system for a particular farm.

For this reason, a computer program has been developed at Penn State to help pick the best bin size and operating parameters for drying shelled corn based on the conditions for any particular farm. The program determines the optimum bin diameter, grain depth, air temperature, air flow, and drying cycle time. A similar computer program has been developed for grain storage bins. Contact your county extension office for more information.

Manufactured Dairy Feeds

Many dairymen use custom-mixed dairy feeds with ingredients bought at retail mill prices. Richard Adams, Penn State dairy scientist, points out that these mixtures may be more expensive than comparable manufactured dairy feeds.

Those who are short of cash should consider switching to a manufactured feed if it will reduce feed costs. In some instances, however, it may be necessary to continue with a custom mix to meet special nutrient requirements. Make certain that commercial concentrates will adequately balance the forage rations being used. In some cases, feeding a standard commercial mix may save as much as $35 per cow per year.

Safety With Animals

Though farm animals are farmers friends, and they help pay-off mortgages, they still are responsible for many disabling injuries. Other injuries and illnesses occur in connection with buildings, tools, and supplies used in their care. Good handling and housekeeping practices can prevent most mishaps:

- Take good care of animals and treat them with respect.
- Use adequate restraining and handling facilities.
- Leave yourself an "out."
- Provide good footing for handling operations. Keep floors and ramps clean. Roughened concrete, cleated boots, "no slip" strips, etc., could help reduce risk of falls.
- Wear protective clothing, footwear, and headgear as the job demands.
- Train inexperienced workers in safe livestock handling before allowing them near animals.
- Stay clear of animals that are frightened, hurt, sick or have newborn or young offspring. Be cautious around strange animals.
- Use the appropriate respirator to protect your lungs when working in confined housing and on dusty jobs.
- Use a self-contained or supplied-air breathing device when entering a silo or manure facility where toxic gases may be present. When agitating or pumping manure, open windows and doors and turn ventilating fans to maximum.
- Protect children by keeping them out of animal facilities. Keep barn chemicals and medications out of reach. Keep unauthorized persons, especially children out of grain bins, silos and other hazardous areas.

- Tractor-Safety Training (6 sessions), Thursdays, February 28 through April 4, 7:30 p.m., Lehigh County Agricultural Center, Dorney Park Road, Allentown.
- Garden Center Conference, Wednesday and Thursday, February 27 and 28, 9 a.m., Wilson World Hotel, Route 10, Morgantown.
- Soybean Day, Thursday, February 28, 9 a.m., Se-Wy-Co Fire Company, Route 378 (Wydnor), Bethlehem.
- Veal Growers Seminar, Friday, March 1, 9:45 a.m., Wysox Fire Hall, Wysox (Bradford County).
- Christmas Tree Growers Meeting, Saturday, March 2, 8 a.m., Mountain Laurel Resort and Conference Center, White Haven.
- Dairy Nutrition School (3 sessions), Wednesday and Thursday, March 6 and 7, 10:30 a.m., Warren County Extension Office, Route 334, Belvidere, New Jersey and Thursday, March 14, Paul Smith Farm, Bangor.
- Forage School, Wednesday, March 6, 9 a.m., Polk Township Fire Hall, Route 209, Kresgeville.
- Grain Marketing Workshop, Wednesday, March 6, 9:30 a.m., Days Inn Conference Center, Routes 309 and 22, Allentown.
- Horse Clinic, Saturday, March 9, 8 a.m., Ag Arena, Penn State University, University Park.
- Potato Day, Wednesday, March 13, 9:15 a.m., Schnecksville Grange Hall, Route 873, Schnecksville.

Clarion Co. Readies Swine Health Check

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — The 1991 Swine Health Check and Carcass Evaluation is ready to go. The entire program can only handle 40 hogs, that is, two from 20 different producers in western Pennsylvania.

Twelve of those should come from six Clarion County farms. Remember there is no charge. If you are new, send in your consignment form or call, (814) 226-8230.

More than seed...

"The W-L I planted two years ago is giving me better yields and higher protein than any previous crop. I had a public variety in this field last time and I had to take it out in the third year. This W-L alfalfa is sure to go a full four."

For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfas have been bred, tested and produced to give high yields, leafy, fine-stemmed forage with long stand persistence and multiple pest and disease resistance. For the best return on your investment, you can't afford less than W-L.

BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness
To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best again is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas
2. MAKING A NEW START spray on brush in painting on the renewed surface or resurfaced wood siding The above mentioned AIM of coating thickness can prevent future peeling and resurfacing cost & effort Simple, old fashioned brushing does most of the trick This film will let moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10 years of more Southern exposures usually wear faster

Make Preparations For Pruning

EDWARD J. WOODS
Washington Co.
Agricultural Agent

Many backyard gardeners who have fruit trees should be making preparations for pruning.

There are four important things to remember in the pruning process. The whole job goes much smoother when you do each stem in sequence rather than trying a "mix and match" method.

It might be best to consider pruning as four separate jobs. The first job is to examine the tree closely for any signs of dead branches. Try to determine reasons why the branches died. This will help you develop corrective measures during the coming growing season.

Secondly, go over the tree to locate and remove any broken branches. Broken branches may not be dead but any fruit they bear will surely be damaged and useless by harvest due to the rubbing of the broken part against other branches.

The third job is to remove 1-and 2-year olds shoots and branches that may be growing up in the center of the tree, or that may be growing back through the tree from the point of origin to the other side. These young shoots and crossing branches serve as an insect and disease harbor, restrict the penetration of spray material, and exclude light and air from the interior of the tree.

The fourth and final part of the pruning is to thin out the remaining branches so that each is equally exposed to sunlight, air, and spray material. Try to visualize what the tree will look like with a full load of leaves and fruit. The limbs will of course be bent downward. For this reason, no limb should be permitted to grow directly over another. Pruning one such limb will avoid limb rub and damage to the fruit skin from rubbing.

Apple and pear trees are the hardiest of fruits. They can be pruned now. Because peach are more tender delay their pruning, particularly the younger trees, until late March or early April.

Evaluate Manure Plant Food

Our agronomists have told farmers for many years that a ton of dairy manure is equivalent to 100 pounds of 10-3-5 fertilizer but recent research indicates that much of the nitrogen is lost when manure is spread daily and left exposed to the elements.

Current data have confirmed that a ton of stored dairy manure is equivalent to 100 pounds of 10-4-8 fertilizer (page 25 of the "1991-92 Agronomy Guide"). The nutrients in fresh manure are equal to those in inorganic fertilizers for crop production, but more slowly available. If the manure is incorporated immediately, very little nitrogen is lost; if incorporated after 2 days, 40 percent is lost; after 4 days, 60 percent is lost; and 7 days or longer, 80 percent is lost. Studies concur with this and show that corn fertilized with fresh manure applied and plowed down in the spring produced the most corn silage.

Yields were lowest when the manure was applied in the fall, left exposed on the soil surface all winter, and plowed down in the spring. Be sure to include the nutrient value of manure when calculating your crop needs. It's important to manage manure applications just as you manage other areas of your operation.

Correct Drainage Problems

The late winter and early spring provides a good chance to observe the water drainage problems around many homes and farmsteads. If surface water drains into farm buildings or into homes, then something should be done about it soon. Surface water should be directed away from buildings by way of terraces or diversion ditches.

Water should not be permitted to flow down against buildings from upgrade. This will weaken the structure and wash soil away from the foundation. Water that seeps into a building from underground is a different problem and more difficult to control.

However, the surface water can be directed around and away from farm buildings. Also, the area around wells should be protected from surface water contamination Water from feedlots and barnyards should not be allowed to flow directly into streams; pastures or holding areas will reduce the possibility of pollution.

Farm Financing Program Holds Off Payments

WEST BEND, Wis. — A new equipment financing program will enable farmers to purchase needed equipment this winter without making a payment until the end of the busy summer season.

The program, called Freedom Financing™, was introduced February 1 by the Gehl Company, the leading manufacturer of specialized, non-tractor agricultural equipment.

The Freedom Financing program includes two delay payment options:

- No payments until August 1, 1991; followed by a 7.9 percent annual percentage rate for up to 30 months, or
- No payments until October 1, 1991; followed by a 12.9 percent APR for up to 48 months.

"Economic uncertainties and cash flow concerns make purchasing capital equipment for the farm a tenuous decision during this time of the year," said Joe Ecker, vice president of marketing for Gehl's Agricultural Division. "The delay payment option is designed to help those farmers who have identified a need for equipment, but want to protect their cash flow."

In addition, the Freedom Financing program has two options that offer no finance charges:

- No finance charges for 12 months with reduced payments; followed by 9.9 percent APR for up to 36 months, or
- No finance charges for 18 months.

Gehl Publishes Catalog

WEST BEND, Wis.— Gehl Company's full line of agricultural equipment is showcased in the new "1991 Gehl Farm Equipment" catalog, which is now available.

The eight-page, full-color brochure contains information about the complete line of forage harvesters, blowers and boxes; sicklebar and disc mower conditioners, round balers, disc mowers, rakes, TMR mixer feeders, grinder-mixers, skid-steer loaders, manure spreaders, and straw storm/chaff storm combine attachments.

To obtain a free copy of the 1991 Gehl Farm Equipment catalog, contact your local Gehl dealer or write Gehl Company, Marketing Services Department, 143 Water St., West Bend, WI 53095.

Survey Supports Ethanol's Benefits

WASHINGTON, D.C.— With recent passage of the Clean Air Act, and its provisions requiring increased use of oxygenated fuels in our worst carbon monoxide (CO) and ozone non-attainment areas, millions of new consumers nationwide will have the opportunity to use oxygenated fuels, such as ethanol, as part of a comprehensive new federal clean air strategy.

With more than 800 billion miles being driven using ethanol blends, it is clear that over the past decade the consumer acceptability of ethanol and other oxy-fuels has increased dramatically. However, as the new Clean Air Act is implemented, what will be the view of this new generation of drivers toward increased ethanol use. The answer is overwhelming support.

In a recent survey of consumers in Denver, Albuquerque and Phoenix, cities with existing oxy-fuel programs, it was found that:

• Nearly half of those surveyed in those three cities believed the program had improved air quality in their area.

• Of those who expressed a preference, 73% expressed a distinct preference for ethanol over MTBE.

• At an average ratio of well over 3 to 1 (62%), drivers in all three cities indicated they would be more inclined to purchase an ethanol blend from a pump labeled "Containing Ethanol for Clean Air," assuming price was not a factor.

• In all three cities, more than 75% of those surveyed believed that the government should be doing more to promote the use of renewable fuels such as ethanol.

• Nearly 70% of those surveyed said that the crisis in the Persian Gulf had made them more concerned about how the U.S. looks at alternative fuels as a means to ease our dependence on foreign oil.

These results clearly demonstrate that consumers in cities with existing oxy-fuel program not only support the use of ethanol as part of a clean air strategy, but also support an increased use of renewable fuels, such as ethanol, as part of our energy security needs.

FRESH COWS STALLING OUT???

Now There Is Something You Can Do About It!!!

Purina Freshener Pak Starts Cows Right.

Fresh cows go off of feed for a number of reasons: freshening problems, mastitis, forage changes, too much grain, ketosis and just plain stress. That's why Purina has come out with a product designed with this key problem in mind.

Dairy Freshener Pak is designed to not only stimulate your fresh cow's appetite, but it also helps her maintain a proper immune response.

HERE IS WHY

Niacin - This slows fat metabolism and fights ketosis.

Vitamin A & D - Extra vitamins for periods of low feed intake.

Vitamin E & Selenium - Essential in the immune function of the body and helps to maintain structure and function of muscles.
